'Deathbed confession' may re-open Quilt case

RCMP's Dalton

Christine Quilt
. . . 'backed up truck'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The widow of Chilcotin Indian Fred Quilt made a deathbed confession that she accidentally backed their pickup truck into him two days before he died, an RCMP official said Thursday.

Chief Superintendent Gordon Dalton also said the evidence may result in a new inquest.

Quilt, 55, of Alexis Creek, died Nov. 30, 1971, of peritonitis in Williams Lake Hospital. Indian leaders maintained he had been injured by being struck and jumped on by RCMP officers, who took him from his truck and drove him to a nearby Indian reserve.

Dalton said that police have learned that on Sept. 15, 1976, the day she died, Mrs. Quilt confessed that she accidentally backed their pickup truck into her husband, knocking him down, the night of Nov. 28, 1971.

Attorney-General Garde Gardom said in Victoria he has asked for more information from the RCMP before making any decision on a new inquest.

Dalton said that a witness to Mrs. Quilt's death also said the woman confessed to the 1968 killing of Rose Satah. Stephen Hink of Williams Lake was convicted of killing Rose Satah and spent three years in prison.

Hink was charged with non-capital murder after Satah, 22, was shot to death with a .22-calibre rifle early in the morning of Dec. 20, 1968.

Dalton said police learned of the confession only recently, and now were preparing reports for Gardom and the National Parole Service. The parole service could consider ordering a pardon for Hinks, who now is free, Dalton added.

"It's just a recent development," Dalton said, when asked why the deathbed confessions had suddenly surfaced six months after Mrs. Quilt died.

"We found out only recently, but we've since found out that it (the confession) had been rumored in the area (of Williams Lake) for some time," Dalton said.

He said Mrs. Quilt told the witness, who has not been identified, that she accidentally backed the truck while Quilt was standing behind it urinating. The truck struck Quilt, but did not pass over him. He then climbed into the back of the truck.

"That was before RCMP arrived on the scene," Dalton said.

"We have interviewed the witness and are now in the process of providing the information to the attorney-general."

Dr. John Sturdy, consulting pathologist to the inquest into Quilt's death, held in Kamloops, said in a telephone interview from California, where he is vacationing, that "off the top of my head, I would say that Quilt's injuries would be consistent with that kind of an accident."

"I've always known there was something about that injury that didn't fit the autopsy," he said. "I testified at the time that Quilt's injuries were not consistent with a kick or a series of kicks.

"If he (Quilt) were run over by a vehicle, it could compress the small bowel against the spinal cord and sever it," he added.

Lawyer Harry Rankin, a Vancouver alderman who acted for the Quilt family at the inquest, asked, "How does a deathbed confession suddenly appear in someone's files

Gardom denies payoffs for crown testimony

By JEFF BOMEY
Colonist Reporter

Attorney-General Garde Gardom denied Thursday that witnesses in key trials in B.C. are offered payment to testify for the crown.

He made the statement in answer to a two-week-old question asked by Conservative leader Scott Wallace regarding the Ross murder trial recently concluded in Nanaimo. During the trial an RCMP officer admitted under oath that a key witness, Gordon Caldwell, had been offered varying sums up to $50,000 to testify.

Gardom said that while witnesses were not paid for their evidence, there were instances where the police offered "protection, relocation and a change of identity" to witnesses who could be in danger from other criminal elements.

"That is sometimes done to simply keep the witness alive," Gardom said.

Wallace said he was far from satisfied with the attorney-general's answer. He said that while it was true that Caldwell had not received the $50,000 promised or any cash at all "I'm gathering information on other cases which I shall be bringing up later."

He said he had a copy of a $25,000 cheque made out to a witness in another trial but said he wasn't prepared to release the background until he had checked further. "But

Jumblatt revenge: 68 slain

MUKHTARA, Lebanon (Reuter) — At least 68 people have been reported killed in revenge murders following Wednesday's assassination of leftist leader Kamal Jumblatt.

Tens of thousands of people flocked to this mountain village for the funeral of Jumblatt, who was shot in his car by unknown attackers.

Sectarian killers seeking revenge struck quickly in the wake of his death, murdering people in the mountains and in Beirut before the Syrian troops of the Arab League peace force could intervene.

Christian villagers said they knew of at least 58 Christians killed in the villages around Mukhtara, ancestral domain of the Jumblatt family.

Ten more people were killed in Beirut, informed sources said.

There's fuel aplenty but costs gushing up

OTTAWA (CP) — The country has the potential oil and natural gas resources it needs to make itself self-reliant in energy but the costs of developing the supplies will be high, federal Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie said Thursday.

Gillespie said it still was not clear what price would be necessary, but added that it would be significantly higher.

He made the comments after tabling in the Commons energy department papers saying there is a 90-per-cent chance that up to 229 trillion cubic feet of natural gas and 25 billion barrels of oil would be discovered.

The country now uses about 1.4 trillion cubic feet of gas and about 730 million barrels of oil annually.

But Gillespie says "there is a heck of a big difference between proven reserves and potential."

The figures in the report reflect only an estimate of how much oil might be removed from the ground, with no consideration of the cost.

An additional report, making an economic assessment, is expected by about mid-year, energy department officials say. It will likely reduce the estimates of potential reserves.

The new figures significantly reduce the estimates from those given in 1973 when the department put the potential at 99.2 billion barrels of oil and 782.9 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

The cuts result from exclusion of inaccessible areas and new information provided from exploration programs in the North.

A separate study on the oil sands and heavy oil deposits in Alberta and Saskatchewan says they might yield between 80 billion and 200 billion barrels of oil. But economic and technical problems remain to be solved before the area reaches its potential.

The report says there is a 50-per-cent chance that up to 277 trillion cubic feet of gas will be found and a 10-per-cent chance of 378 trillion.

There is a 50-per-cent chance 30 billion barrels of oil will be found and a 10-per-cent chance of 43 billion.

It says 85 trillion cubic feet of natural gas has been discovered in Canada, including 25 trillion in the frontier

Zaire's crisis worsens

KINSHASA, Zaire (UPI) — A U.S. Embassy official said Thursday the situation in the former province of Katanga was "deteriorating" and ordered the evacuation of more Americans.

Zairean forces, bolstered by emergency U.S. and Belgian military aid, said thousands of invaders which it hinted were Soviet-backed Cuban troops were advancing through the copper-rich region but avoiding any engagement with government units.

Government sources said the invaders were "welcomed as liberators" by some Zaireans in towns they captured.

The government confirmed Thursday a small town — Sandoa, 55 miles from the Angolan border — has fallen to the rebels, who overran Dilolo, Kapanga, and Kisenge shortly after they invaded Zaire last week.

But the Zairean news agency AZAP early today denied reports by a foreign news agency that the invaders had overrun Kolwezi, a city of 200,000 persons.

Belted Ontario records 12-year low in road toll

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's traffic death toll dropped in 1976 to the lowest level recorded since 1964, James Snow, minister of transport and communications, said Thursday.

"The only reading I can get from such statistics is that the seatbelt legislation enacted on Jan. 1, 1976, coupled with lower speed limits, is working," Snow said.

CALL TO UN

Expand rights, Carter pleads

Colonist Wire Services

UNITED NATIONS — U.S. President Carter made a strong plea Thursday night for the world expansion of human rights, saying no country can claim that mistreatment of its citizens is solely its own business.

Carter, who has previously criticized the treatment of dissidents in the Soviet Union, South Korea and South America, said U.S. responsibility and support for human rights is a commitment and not just a political posture.

In remarks prepared for delivery to United Nations permanent representatives here, he also called again for a comprehensive Soviet-U.S. Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty.

"While the SALT negotiations remain deadlocked, the arms race goes on and the security of both countries and the entire world is threatened."

He preferred strict controls or even a freeze on new types of weapons, and a sharp reduction in strategic arms held by the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

But he said the two countries could perhaps more easily conclude a more limited agreement and hold further negotiations for fuller arms limitation.

Discussing the world economic situation, Carter pledged the U.S. would support an open international trading system, a concern primarily of Japan. But, he added, business concerns in the U.S. must not be ignored.

The president did not name any country in discussing human rights but said the search for peace and justice also means respect for human dignity.

"All of the signatories of the UN Charter have pledged themselves to observe and respect basic human rights," he declared.

"Thus, no member of the United Nations can claim that mistreatment of its citizens is solely its own business."

He said human rights ideals had not always been attained in the U.S., but the American people had an abiding commitment to them and were determined to deal with their deficiencies quickly and openly.

"The solemn commitments of the UN Charter, the UN's universal declaration of human rights, of the Helsinki Accord . . . must be taken just as seriously as commercial or security agreements."

Quebec soloists face federal delegation bar

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau says he will bar Quebec from attending international conferences if provincial officials continue to renounce their ties with the rest of Canada.

Trudeau said at his weekly news conference Thursday that Quebec government officials cannot go to international meetings and "behave as though the province has an international personality."

"If they do that, they won't be invited to come along on future international delegations," Trudeau said. He said international organizations will be warned by Ottawa not to invite Quebec to conferences because the province does not represent all of Canada.

Trudeau was responding to the actions of two Quebec cabinet ministers at international conferences on pollution and education in Argentina and Belgium respectively.

Quebec Environment Minister Marcel Leger startled a world water conference in Mar Del Plata, Argentina, Wednesday by announcing that he would speak for Quebec and not for Canda.

In Brussels, Quebec Education Minister Jacques Yvan Morin refused to preside over the entire Canadian delegation at an international conference of French-speaking education ministers. The Canadian and Quebec groups sat at separate tables bearing separate flags.

Trudeau said no province has the power to speak for Canada outside the country, but provincial officials often are asked to lead delegations to international meetings on education and other subjects under provincial jurisdiction within Canda.

Trudeau said provincial officials can talk about activities in their provinces at international meetings but they cannot formally represent Canada or bypass federal authorities in dealing with other countries.

Saying nay to Ney

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Reporter

NANAIMO—The coat and Sherlock Holmes hat hit the chair on the fly and managed somehow to cling to the edges. The scarf loses the battle to gravity and is left on the broadloomed floor by a man too busy to worry about its fate.

Frank Ney is on the phone giving information on tourism to someone from B.C. Ferries, at the same time pointing to a picture of himself fishing with former baseball great Mickey Mantle.

Behind him is a carton full of miniature bathtubs to be handed to visitors as a plug for the city's big annual attraction—the Nanaimo-to-Vancouver bathtub race.

"Funny thing," he says, hanging op the phone and toying with a cigar, "but here I am giving facts on tourism from one government department to somebody from another."

THIS IS NEY talking as mayor and tourism booster—not at city hall—but in the fourth floor office he occupies in the building that serves as the hub of the local real estate empire.

Life has been good to Frank Ney. Business and political success. Respect. Popularity. Widespread recognition. But now the two worlds he occupies—civic administration and real estate — are being questioned and controversy is coming into his life.

Until now the newspaper files bearing his name have been crammed with stories ranging from flattering to colorful—stories picturing Ney as both a tireless civic leader devoted to the betterment of his city, and a clown prince who doesn't mind playing the role of the buffoon to attract tourists.

But now, controversy is entering the bulging files.

A concerted effort is being made to picture the 56-year-old Ney as a big-time realtor with an obvious conflict of interest, a man who stands to gain with others as expansion takes place.

A BATTLE that concerns the man's reputation and possibly even the future direction of the enlarged city of Nanaimo is being fought over such basic subjects as sewers and water.

The questions that have been posed are these:

- Has Nanaimo become, or is it becoming a developers' paradise?
- Should a man with a deep interest in real estate and land development serve as an elected official in the area concerned?
- Or, are the intentions of Ney and his council being misunderstood, or perhaps misrepresented?
- Are those opposing the council simply a "no growth" group intent upon halting the march of Nanaimo into a bustling future?

The citizens—or at least the portion of them who actually care—have been split into two camps, one fighting against a $15.5 million sewers and water program, and the other spending considerable time and money to ensure that it goes through.

PAT BARRON and his Concerned Citizens claim that under the current scheme the taxpayers would be subsidizing developers who stand to make a considerable profit once the sewers and water system reaches outlying areas. The proposed expansion is for the servicing of suburban areas that became part of the city through amalgamation in 1974.

The 60-year-old Barron, a gadfly and obstructionist to those who don't like him, also makes these charges:

- That property tax inequities are so severe that people in plush "new" area homes are paying considerably less than those in much less expensive homes in "old" Nanaimo;
- That planned long-term financing would actually more than double the $15.5 million cost of the program;
- That because he stands to benefit through his real estate connections, Ney was in conflict of interest in voting with council for the sewers bylaw.

So far the "gadfly" Barron, has won one and lost one on the current issue. The sewers and water bylaws were to go through on council's vote alone, but the Concerned Citizens came up with enough signatures on a petition to force a referendum, scheduled for April 2.

THE LOSS has been the failure of the committee to convince Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis to call a public inquiry into the affair.

Curtis, who doesn't hestitate to defend Ney's reputation, has nevertheless put the matter before Deputy Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Long "for review." Long is tackling the job in his other role as inspector of municipalities.

Ney doesn't argue with Bar-

six to eight months after her death?

"I'm extremely suspicious of any such statement," he said.

"There was no evidence to confirm that he (Quilt) was run over," said Rankin. "If he had been run over there would have been tire tracks on his coat and jacket and body, and there wasn't."

Quilt's death in hospital triggered an investigation that caused prolonged racial controversy.

He had been taken from a stalled truck two days before by two RCMP constables who said Quilt had been drinking.

He was taken to a home on the Anaheim reserve nearby and subsequently taken to hospital in Williams Lake by ambulance on the day he died.

Two inquests were held into the death, which caused widespread attention because of Indian complaints that Quilt was beaten by police.

The first inquest, held in Williams Lake in January, 1972, was quashed by the B.C. Supreme Court on the grounds there was an association between two members of the jury and the RCMP.

A verdict at that inquest absolved the police of blame.

A second inquest, held Aug. 3, 1972, in Kamloops, ruled that Quilt died following an injury received while being handled by police; however, the jury attached no blame and said the injury was caused by an unknown blunt object applied with unknown force.

A nephew, Robin Quilt, 20, testified at the second inquest that Quilt told him shortly after the incident that "the police hurt me."

Quilt's widow, and sister-in-law Agnes, testified that they saw a police officer in plain clothes jump up and down on Quilt, shouting, "Get up, you son of a bitch."

Robin Quilt testified that his uncle, who was "pretty drunk", was driving and stopped the truck on the highway Nov. 28, where police later found the group. He said he did not see police jump on his uncle.

RCMP officers testified they took Fred Quilt from the driver's seat of the truck and that Quilt fell as he was being pulled out.

Rankin said after the inquests that the case was the first to rally native people around "an issue of national importance and perhaps international importance."

I'm convinced payments are made," he said.

As for the attorney-general's statement in the house, Wallace said Gardom was playing "a semantic game."

"Since bringing the matter up I've received several letters from people who would like to talk to me," he said. "I'm not prepared to say who they are at this time, but I will be coming forward with some more cases which need answering."

The trial referred to in the Legislature was of David John Ross, 34, Victoria, who was convicted for what Gardom termed "a vicious, drug-oriented murder" of Malcolm Preston Cunningham, 23, also of Victoria.

During the trial, Caldwell claimed he was offered $50,000, a new identity and passage to Australia if he testified for the crown. The statement was eventually confirmed by the police witness.

There was also testimony in the trial that Caldwell was questioned for 23 hours while police officers worked in shift. The trial statements suggested that Caldwell eventually broke down and agreed to testify.

In the Legislature, Gardom said the total time Caldwell was being questioned was eight hours although he was in custody for more than 20 hours. Gardom said that during that time he was provided with meal breaks "and all other amenities."

The attorney-general noted that at the time of his interrogation, Caldwell "was a prospective accused, or the only eyewitness to the crime."

In defending the procedure by which crown witnesses were offered relocation, new names and other special considerations, Gardom said they were necessary because "some of our criminal elements are very lethal and may well attempt to remove those whom they consider would bring them to justice or transgressed so-called underworld codes.

If Quebec takes such action, their officials will not be included in Canadian delegations for future meetings and international organizations will be told not to issue separate invitations to the province.

"They just won't come — too bad," Trudeau said.

Trudeau said later that Canadians must get used to the idea that the challenge to national unity in Quebec will be around "for a long, long time."

And his government will persist in efforts to persuade the country to rededicate itself to unity even if popular interest in the challenge should wane.

Responding to a series of questions about the Parti Quebecois government of Quebec at his weekly news conference, Trudeau also made these points about the movement to establish an independent state of Quebec:

- The federal government would intervene to disallow any Quebec legislation that curtailed the constitutional rights of English or Protestant minorities.
- "A state based on an ethnic notion might end up as a totalitarian state."
- If Quebec separated from Canada, "I would no longer by here — I'd probably be in Quebec somewhere."
- Trudeau maintains regular communications with Quebec Premier Rene Levesque and, if necessary, he would meet with Levesque. But Trudeau does not believe he could dissuade Levesque from seeking Quebec independence.

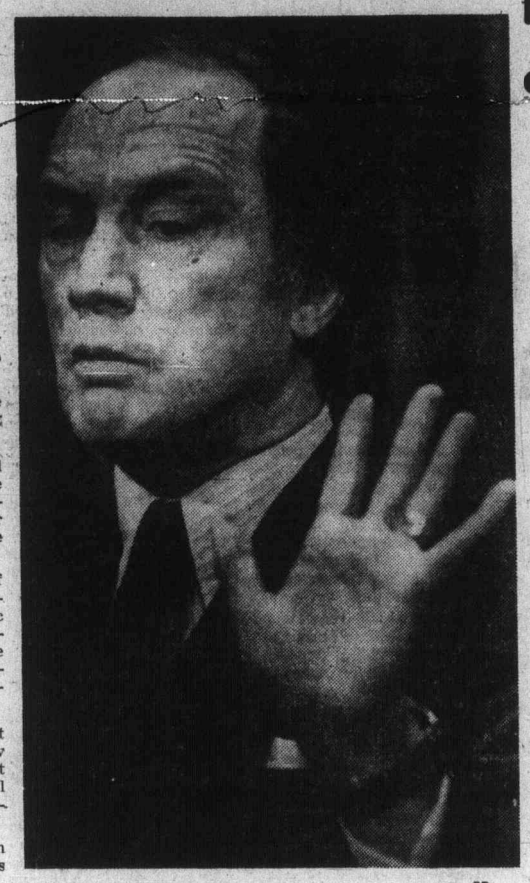

Trudeau was asked whether he is worried that popular interest in the Quebec independence issue might wane in time, and if his government in that case would act to keep interest high.

"Canadians should realize we'll be in this problem for a long, long time," Trudeau said. "It is a deep, ongoing problem."

The prime minister said that even if independence-minded Quebecers lose a promised referendum on independence, "if there is an active, dedicated, energetic minority of 40 per cent, they are not going to lie down the day after a referendum and say: "We love Canada!"

If Canadians say they have not heard from Leveeque lately and forget about the problem, Trudeau said, then "it is our duty as a national government to create a rededication to the union on the part of all Canadians."

And the unity problem is not only because of Quebec, he said. Albertans also feel isolated and badly served by Confederation.

Some firms to shed crown role

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Bennett said Wednesday that some B.C. crown corporations will soon be returning to private enterprise.

Bennett also told 235 party supporters at a $100-a-plate Social Credit party fund-raising dinner that the government will not use legislation to regulate construction industry bargaining this year even though 65 per cent of major labor contracts in the province are up for negotiation.

He made the comments during a question-and-answer session following his speech.

Bennett's shortest answer of the night came when asked if any crown corporations would be returning to private enterprise.

"Yes, and soon," he replied. He did not elaborate.

"This is a very difficult philosophical question," he said when asked about regulating construction industry bargaining.

Forcing unwilling unions to join one group would be as odious as doing the same to management groups, he said.

"Your companies should stop dealing in one-year contracts and get some stability into the industry," he said. "Collective bargaining can't be solved by more and more government legislation."

The government will bring in amendments to the labor code, he added, but "we're not prepared to take heavy action against any side."

Bennett also said he does not believe the federal government will end the anti-inflation board program this year, but if it does, B.C. is considering alternatives to replace the program.

Bennett said the government is studying all taxes, and the first tax it would remove in future would be the sales tax. He did not elaborate.

areas. Oil discovered totals 8.5 billion barrels.

The study says "the bulk of the hydrocarbon potential, mainly gas, lies in the three frontier regions — the Mackenzie delta-Beaufort Sea, Arctic Islands and the Labrador shelf regions which are expensive and difficult to explore."

It adds that in the frontier the largest part of the potential likely will occur in offshore areas "with very hostile environments and attendant high costs, logistical problems and environmental risks."

The federal government sees the oil sands and the heavy oil deposits as a significant source of petroleum, but adds that it will be expensive — between $15 and $17 a barrel compared with the current domestic price of $9.75 — and much of it awaits new technology.

With only one plant in operation and one more being constructed, Ottawa and Alberta are discussing ways to make industry more interested in oil sands development.

Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a woman, 33, and quite healthy. On my right buttock I have what is called a lipoma. Could you please tell me a little about this? Should it be removed? I don't have any pain or discomfort from it, but I do realize it is there, — Mrs. V.

A lipoma is a fatty tumor (lipo means fat). It appears as a localized lump of fat. Actually it is sometimes difficult to tell it from surrounding fat deposits. They are painless and only rarely malignant.

Lipomas are quite common, occuring most often at the back of the neck, the abdomen, buttocks and arms. If they become a nuisance they can be removed surgically. However, the result may be a depression at the lump site, so it's a choice you have — the lump or the depression.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please tell me why my gynecologist insists on a Pap smear when I had a hysterectomy five years ago. I am 47. — S.K.

Because the cervix apparently remains and is still subject to the same problems as before removal of your uterus (hysterectomy).

Irish police recapture IRA guerrilla

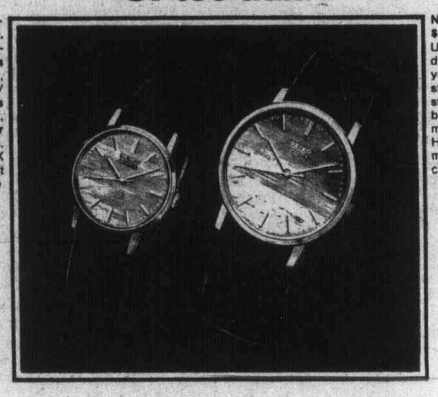

DUBLIN (Reuter) — One of Britain's most wanted men, IRA guerrilla Kieran McMorrow, has been captured after a gunbattle near the Northern Irish border, police said Thursday.

McMorrow, 26, had dodged arrest since 1973 when he headed a list of guerrillas suspected of bombings and murders in England.

He had a number of spectacular escapes from British law before being caught by Irish troops after a gunfight on a farm.

'They will write own epitaph'

Jews threaten ready Muslims

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Jewish Defense League threatened Thursday to bring busloads of their followers to challenge the Hanafi Muslims headquarters Sunday. The Muslims responded by warning the militant Jews "they will write their epitaph in self destruction."

Begum Khadyja Khaalis, wife of the Hanafi leader whose men occupied the headquarters of the Jewish Organization B'Nai B'Rith and two other Washington buildings last week, responded to the JDL retaliation threat at a news conference outside the Hanafi's heavily guarded Washington mansion.

Clad in a trenchcoat and a blue scarf that partially veiled her face, attended by a dozen Hanafi guards including one armed with two scimitars and a knife, Mrs. Khaalis said the Hanafis had received a threatening phone call and a telegram from JDL leader Meir Kahane in New York.

"We, Hanafi Mussulmans throughout America, say to the Zionist Jew controlled Jewish Defense League and all Zionist Jews and their allies, that they will write their epitaph in self destruction and the blood of their people," she said, reading from a printed statement in a tremulous voice.

"We . . . sincerely warn all Zionist Jews and their allies that we are not alone and not to be misguided by what they think they see."

District of Columbia Mayor Walter Washington told a news conference the issue was "very sensitive" and said "matters are still being sorted out."

He said he talked with Police Chief Maurice Cullinane "and I have confidence in the law enforcement officials in terms of their ability to handle the entire matter, and at this juncture that's about all I can say about it."

A police spokesman refused to say how many men now were stationed around the Hanafi home mosque but promised "if additional manpower is needed it would be summoned."

Five nations 'no' to U.S. arms aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — El Salvador Thursday joined four other Latin American governments in renouncing U.S. military arms aid to protest a state department investigation of human rights.

The five countries rejected a total of nearly $74 million in military assistance and military sales credits in response to publication of the department's human rights survey.

The five nations — Argentina, Brazil, El Salvador, Guatemala and Uruguay — were among the 32 countries on which the state department prepared brief human rights reports for the Senate foreign relations committee in apportioning U.S. aid programs.

'Free Uganda' force formed

Exiles aim to oust Amin

NAIROBI (UPI) — Ugandan exiles in the United States have formed a "free Uganda" force to try to overthrow President Idi Amin, it was announced Thursday. Amin told an emergency meeting of Anglican bishops in Kampala he personally guaranteed their safety.

Radio Uganda said Amin met 10 of the 12 remaining Anglican bishops in Uganda to assure them he was "not anti-Christian in any way" and would "never allow the church to collapse."

Amin told the bishops that "the freedom of worship will continue to be supported" in Uganda.

The radio report of the meeting followed the death last month of Archbishop Janani Luwum, the expulsion of Bishop Brian Herd and the flight of four other Anglican bishops. There have been reports of widespread killings of thousands of Christians in Uganda.

The Ugandan exiles, in announcing their new movement based abroad to overthrow Amin, also said that Amin had launched a "genocide against Christians" in Uganda.

Amin said the reports of widespread massacres had been spread merely to create confusion about Uganda.

Senior church officials who escaped Uganda said they had eyewitness proof Archbishop Luwum was shot and killed and was not the victim of a car accident as the government claimed.

Amin, meanwhile, again accused the U.S. of setting up an air base in a neighboring country and positioning ships in the Indian Ocean for an invasion of Uganda.

Former Ugandan attorney-general Godfrey Binaisa said the exiles had decided to form an Association of Free Uganda to mobilize their resources toward liberating their country from the despotic rule of President Idi Amin."

In a letter to Canon Burgess Carr, general secretary of the All Africa Conference of Churches, Binaisa said the new association will be "equivalent to the Free French forces in the Second World War which fought the Nazis under the leadership of Charles de Gualle.

Leyland strike settled

LONDON (Reuter) — Three thousand tool-makers voted Thursday to end a month-long strike that has badly damaged Britain's largest car-maker, the state-owned Leyland Motor Corporation.

In meetings at Oxford, Birmingham and Liverpool, they decided almost unanimously to accept a recommendation from their unofficial strike committee to return to work on Monday.

The strikers, who wanted extra pay for their skills, were warned by Leyland management on Tuesday that if they were not back at work after the weekend, they would be fired.

The leaders of the trade union represented at Leyland supported the management. They told the strikers, who had ignored repeated union pleas for peace, that they could expect no aid if dismissed.

Statue sells for $190,000

LONDON (Reuter) — A grey-green granite statue of Ser, son of an ancient Egyptian king, was bought for $190,000 at Christie's sale rooms. The 26-inch statue, which dates from the sixth century BC was excavated at the temple of Mut in Ansher in 1895-1897.

Death sentences for 29 in China

PEKING (Reuter) — Twenty-nine persons are reported to have been sentenced to death in the cities of Shanghai and Canton as a law-and-order campaign gathers momentum in China.

The Shanghai Supreme Court has ordered the death penalty for 26 "counter-revolutionaries." Meanwhile, travellers said three Chinese had been executed for espionage in Canton.

The sentences follow reports from other cities of executions in the wake of last year's political upheavals and widespread unrest in the provinces.

An official notice in a Shanghai street listed 53 convicted criminals, sources who read the announcement said.

Of the 26, only two were guilty of actual political crimes, one for hampering criticism of the purged "gang of four" radicals and, the other for opposing the policy of sending educated youths to the countryside.

The remaining 24 faced various charges, including murder, stealing mail and looting state grain stores.

The Shanghai Supreme Court announcement said the cases were debated by factory workers and peasants in accordance with Chinese law. Sentences had been based on "Central Committee directives on handling counter-revolutionaries," it added.

Last week nine persons were reported to have been executed in the eastern city of Hangchow, most of them for political offences. Travellers have also seen death notices in central Changsha and Wuhan.

'Moonies' normal phychiatrist says

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A defense expert denied Thursday that five adult "Moonies," whose temporary custody is sought by their parents, have suffered bad psychological effects from their experience with the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church.

During a six-day hearing, the parents previously presented two experts who said the children had been "brainwashed" by the movement.

It was contended the young people had bad memories, short attention spans, narrow ranges of emotion and levels of intellectual functioning far below their levels in the past.

Pressure on Uganda

IT IS TO THE credit of External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson that he continues to express Canada's concern over Ugandan President Idi Amin's massive violations of human rights so persistently and forceably — even though his attitude caused British Prime Minister James Callaghan to express surprise at what he called the Canadian "obsession" over the Uganda leader.

Would that other world and Commonwealth governments were equally obsessed. If ever a regime deserved international investigation and universal condemnation, it would seem to be the Kakwa killer's. Yet time and again the criminal activities of this murderous man are studiously ignored by the very international organizations that should be doing something to bring to an end his rule of terror.

Not only have such bodies as the United Nations, the Organization of African Unity, the Commonwealth Secretariat and the International Commission on Human Rights remained ominously silent on the issue but the leading Western powers seem equally tongue-tied and morally paralysed.

The complete control Amin has over his own hapless people in Uganda is easily understandable, but what is this strange power he now appears to hold over the rest of the world? Is he indeed, as he claims, a great mganga with the supernatural ability to immobilize every thought, word or deed of all those who oppose him?

This is sheer nonsense of course. It is not African witchcraft that has silenced the Western governments, it is the realization that any show of diplomatic or punitive force against Uganda would run the very real risk of offending the Third World nations, who, encouraged by their Communist-bloc friends could interpret such action as an attempt by the West to restore white imperialism in Africa.

Third World repercussions against the West in this event could be severe. Trade restrictions — including oil — could be imposed and the West's position and influence in Africa, already minimal, could be further weakened, leaving the continent wide open to further Communist expansionism.

Clearly if Amin is to be brought down, he must be brought down by and through the actions of the governments and people of the black African states south of the Sahara. The time will never be riper nor the stage better set for a concerted move in this direction.

Kenya to his east, Tanzania to his south and Zaire to his west have suffered long and patiently his threats and insults. He has murdered thousands of their nationals within Uganda and has directed dozens of terrorist raids into their border territories.

It is not without the realms of possibility that if these three governments form a solid front against Amin, the remaining co-members of the Organization of African Unity could be persuaded to join them. If this could be accomplished enough pressure could be brought to bear on Uganda for even its mad pyedog to sit up and take notice.

To avoid violence

WITH CANADA agreeing to contribute nearly $448 million over the next three years to a development fund for poor countries, as announced by the World Bank at the beginning of the week, perhaps, as Prime Minister Trudeau said in the House of Commons Wednesday, we are living beyond our means.

But then again, although its credibility is frequently questioned over instances of frightful waste in its administration of foreign aid, the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) gives more than pause for thought with the views it holds on the world situation.

In its annual report for 1975-76 issued last month, the CIDA warns that a new global order is necessary to reduce the gap between rich and poor countries if violent confrontations are to be avoided; confrontations, it might be added, that could spell doom for everyone.

It says the threat of violence will continue to grow unless the spread in standards between the developed countries and the have-not nations, where the bulk of the world population exists, is markedly reduced.

Canada has been generous in the past, but it is in an advantageous position. It has the second highest wheat surplus, after the United States, that could make the difference, at least in the short term the report says, between survival and starvation for millions of people.

That is not the complete answer, though. The developed countries are faced with a challenge to devise a new global order "in which it will be possible to define new relationships, not only in the economic but also in the political and cultural spheres."

And that's where the deep thinking can begin. The CIDA doesn't say how it might be possible to reach this state, which will take more than the shipping of food and money to the poor.

A five-part economic policy

By RICHARD JACKSON

Joe Clark said he wasn't going to be pushed or panicked into policy pronouncements.

Nor has he been.

His caution in holding his policy fire until he could be reasonably sure of his target — and more importantly, of bull's-eyeing it — has cost him.

He's paid the price in plummetting popularity in the public opinion polls while Pierre Trudeau's previously falling star has been soaring.

And Clark has taken a beating in the "reviews" in the media — press, radio and TV — on his first "anniversary" of Conservative leadership.

He had no policy, they complained.

What were his positions, they asked.

Well, now after his opening year as top Tory — largely spent, it may reasonably be suspected, in trying to jell the usually ridiculously fluid party — he is staking out his position on the most important policy of all: economic.

It's central to everything.

For if the economy isn't ticking over smoothly, it's rough for everyone.

The marginally self-supporting working poor fall back on enemployment insurance and welfare.

The wealthy belt in a little, after their own fine fashion, and don't get to spend the whole season in their villas on Lyford Key.

The rest of us work and worry.

So after 13 months The Leader (the Conservatives are using capital letters when speaking of him in that sense) has produced the framework of a policy designed to end economic stagnation.

It comes in five parts.

The first move must be a renewed declaration of faith by the government — the coming Clark administration, presumably — in private enterprise as the prime generator of new jobs and wealth.

Interchangeable with acceleration of the private sector is deceleration of government growth.

"We must," Clark says, "gradually halt and then reverse the demands of government on individual and collective national income."

Clark's second step would be to give business, industry and indeed the individual working Canadian some sense of continuity in the government's economic policy.

"We will end," he promises, "the off-the-top-of-the-head system whereby the government, by whim, changes the rules in the middle of the game and catches everybody out."

Step number three, continues Clark, will be to induce what he calls "co-operative competition" between governments with each administrative level, federal, provincial, regional and even municipal, striving to help rather than hurt each other in developing an acceptable national policy.

Joe Clark's fourth shift of government gears would be to restore what he terms "intregrity" to the taxation system.

But how?

By revamping the whole rate structure to channel a higher proportion of income — and as a result, savings — into investment.

"When you compare Canadian and American tax laws," observes Clark, "a U.S. citizen or corporation ends up with 20 per cent more return on an investment in Canadian enterprise than a Canadian does on the same investment in his own country.

"We will establish a system that ensures that investing in Canada is at least as attractive and rewarding to Canadians as it is to foreigners."

The fifth move would pull the whole thing together by involving business, labor and government in an intelligent collective effort to oil, grease and fine tune working relations and get the sand and sludge out of the productive system.

Basic to the whole thing, confesses Clark, himself a politician — and nothing but a politician with little background in anything else but politics — is to restore public faith in political institutions.

"Canadians," he admits, "just don't trust their political leaders anymore."

Restore faith, he believes, "and you restore our sense of energy. Then it all comes alive again."

Precise? Not really.

Explicit? Scarcely.

Then definitive? Possibly — at least indicating inclinations in the right directions.

U.S. forecasts

More terror, less protection

By JOHN PINKERMAN

By pure coincidence two important U.S. government reports were issued recently and they illustrated an existing situation that should strike fear in the hearts of all Americans. One of the reports was by a justice department task force and it warned that the United States is in for another run of 1960-type urban riots and other acts of terrorism. The study urged communities to make contingency plans against disorder and terrorism.

It was almost as though the justice department had advance knowledge that Hanafi raiders would terrorize the American capital with raids on three buildings and the seizure of some 100 hostages in retaliation for the 1973 murders of seven Hanafi by rival Black Muslims.

"Many of the traditional indicators for disorders are clearly present and need but little stimulus to activate them," the report stated.

Just a day earlier, a Senate judiciary sub-committee on internal security issued an annual report on its activities in 1976. One of its capsule reports was entitled The Erosion of Law Enforcement Intelligence Gathering Capabilities.

The annual report of the committee headed by Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., was general in nature and merely stated that freedom of information laws, press hostility toward police intelligence work and other "right to privacy" laws had stripped law enforcement organizations of tools needed to combat terrorism.

However, if one should dig deeper and review the testimony offered before Eastland's subcommittee, he would read some startling things concerning the limits put on gathering advance information and retaining it in the course of efforts to stop terrorism before it does severe damage to people and property.

Those who testified represent a broad spectrum of the police fraternity: Los Angeles Police Chief Edward M. Davis, Illinois Bureau of Investigation Agent J. Philip Kruse and New Jersey State Police Intelligence Chief Justin Dintino.

All three deplored the fact that under new right to privacy laws, they are forbidden to keep files or share information with other law enforcement agencies on any suspected terrorists, regardless of how well-known the suspects are, unless there are actual conviction records.

Dintino told the committee just how restrictive new laws are regarding the vital task of gathering information and sharing it in the common effort to stop terrorism before it starts.

"Prior to the Freedom of Information Act taking effect," Dintino said, "all federal agencies had complete access to anything I had in file — and now I'm speaking of copies of reports, entire file drawers for a particular major problem. They were able to come into my shop and sit there and browse through reports for days on end and take whatever they wanted from our files.

"Now, and since 1975, I have greatly restricted this co-operation — because of the Freedom of Information Act. In fact, I would say that I have eliminated it entirely because they cannot guarantee me that this information is not going to be passed on to someone else, that it will not be compromised."

All three witnesses testified that the use of undercover informers has been greatly reduced because under new laws, these men and women face exposure in the press.

They thus are compromised and face retaliation from would-be terrorists on whom they are informing. And, Dintino says of this situation: "Who benefits from this? Certainly not the American people. The only beneficiaries are the criminal and terrorist and other conspiratorial elements in our society."

Los Angeles Chief Davis, as is his habit, was especially strong in deploring the limits put on law enforcement. "The municipal intelligence community must be permitted," he said, "to identify and act against those who would pillage, rob, rape, murder, and even steal our freedom from the citizens of this republic. Restraints on the intelligence function have caused some police administrators to completely abandon this vital activity.

"If there is any importance to be placed on freedom in this republic, the intelligence function must be permitted to again become active and strong. The alternative could mean our destruction."

Kruse, speaking of Illinois' problems, noted that he had been severely limited in fighting crime, and he also noted that intelligence work is needed because of the new breed of criminal. "Unlike the TV stereotyped bad guy," he said, "many of today's criminals are educated, enterprising businessmen. They are church-goers, civic supporters, family men and appear to be solid members of their communities. In other words they are a lot like you and me. This situation makes efficient intelligence work vital to public safety.

Eastland's summation of his committee's probe perhaps puts the whole situation in focus: "Illegal harrassment encountered by many intelligence units has been compounded by the apparent willingness of many people in our media to regard our law enforcement agencies as a prime enemy of our freedom rather that as a protector and to disregard or minimize the danger posed to our freedoms by the schools of extremist organizations openly committed to terrorist activities or to the violent overthrow of our form of government."

Freedom of information is a vital American constitutional guarantee. The right to safety is another guarantee — "the pursuit of happiness" it is called. With more terrorism threatened and weapons to fight it reduced, there would seem to be a need for some revised thinking — and quickly.

Man's nuclear puzzle

By MARQUIS CHILDS

As most of us pursue the routine of our daily lives, we are scarcely aware of the extent to which we have put ourselves in pawn to nuclear science. The extent to which this has happened in a few short decades with the abstruse, infinitely complex nature of this science is a transformation beyond the comprehension of the average individual.

That was well illustrated in the impassioned dispute over the nomination of Paul Warnke to be head of the U.S. delegation for a new arms agreement with the Soviet Union. It has the primitive sound at times, as though the quarrel was over another camp armed with bows and arrows and said to have more bows and arrows than our camp. The goal seemed to be to cripple Warnke in negotiating with the rival camp.

Yet each camp is armed with a power equivalent to a piece of the sun: the hydrogen bomb. It is a force capable of destroying virtually all life on this planet. Surely if there had ever been a time when dispassionate reason should have prevailed it was then.

Weaponry is not the only field in which nuclear science is the master of man's destiny. Nuclear reactors to generate electricity and fill the energy gap have stirred a fierce controversy between the environmentalists and the scientific-industrial community.

I wrote a column some time ago on The Unfinished Agenda, a Rockefeller Brothers Fund report. That report supported the view that nuclear reactors capable of producing weapons-grade materials as well as generating electricity were such a threat that they should be barred. A possible explosion endangering the lives of thousands, the problem of disposing of nuclear wastes radioactive for hundreds of years and the theft of plutonium for purposes of blackmail, whether on a criminal or national or international scale were considered potential threats posed by the reactors.

That column drew many letters, notably from scientists, who believe such dangers are minimal and who see nuclear power as our only energy alternative. The following is an excerpt from one of the most interesting letters, written by a scientist committed to nuclear power development:

"I suppose that I am selfish to want to maintain the quality of life that we enjoy. I chose nuclear energy as a career 20 years ago because I believed abundant and inexpensive energy to be essential to comfort and abundance. All that I have learned since then supports that early belief.

"I also believe that energy should be conserved and used wisely, but I do not believe that I should be cold or broke, or both, because energy is not available or reasonably priced. I will do my part, as a consumer, to conserve energy."

The writer challenges me to say why I cannot support the development of the nuclear energy alternative. I can only answer that the case for theft, accident and the problem of nuclear wastes seems to me very strong. But the challenger, with 20 years of experience in nuclear energy, may well say this is my ignorance — and perhaps I should plead guilty.

That there are alternatives to plunging headlong into what is called a "plutonium economy" is suggested by the current issue of The Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists. A lead article underscores the perils of the plutonium cycle:

". . . Fission explosives (highly destructive) small enough to be transported by automobile could be designed and built by small groups of people, even conceivably by individuals working alone, if they somehow managed to acquire the needed dozen kilograms or so of plutonium. Under some conditions, the work could be done in an ordinary home workshop, using materials and equipment that are easily available worldwide."

An alternative the Bulletin suggests is the use of thorium rather than uranium, which would result in far smaller quantities of weapons-grade stuff from the plutonium cycle.

It is an extremely complicated process and I must confess that while I read the article three times, I do not fully understand it. Yet I am willing to accept the word of these scientists, members of a Princeton University research team, that we should not take a headlong plunge without looking at alternatives.

Of one thing the Bulletin is certain. If a country is determined to acquire nuclear weapons, there are no controls that can prevent it from doing so. And it will be made easier by the rapid development of plutonium cycle reactors.

The United States is in process of discouraging West Germany from selling to Brazil a full cycle plutonium reactor and France from making a similar reactor available to Pakistan. This discouragement is hardly welcomed by the principals.

The grim truth is that man has unlocked the key to the universe and now does not understand what to do with his knowledge.

Basques share little but nationalism

By STANLEY MEISLER from Spain
Los Angeles Times Service

The Basque people make up one of Spain's more mystifying problems. Some critics argue that the Basque cause has no substance, no real roots. But the Basques feel differently, and their rage has burdened and endangered Spanish governments for a century and a half.

Hardly a week passes without an angry demonstration in the Basque region of Spain. The Basques want official sanction and use of their language; amnesty for all political prisoners, most of whom are Basque, and some form of autonomy. They recently demanded and won the right to fly a Basque flag.

There is some irony in this. As punishment for opposing him during the Spanish Civil War, the late dicator Francisco Franco tried to stamp out the Basques separatism and even their culture. When he began, there were signs that Basque nationalism was already waning. Only the poor and uneducated spoke Euskera, the Basque language. The industrial and mining areas around Bilbao were attracting thousands of migrants from the rest of Spain, diluting the character of the Basque provinces.

Much of the insensitivity has lingered in the government of King Juan Carlos and Premier Adolfo Suarez. The government sometimes seems confused about how to deal with the Basques. But, for the most part, its police, especially the Guardia Civil, suppress demonstrations with brutal force, intensifying Basque resentment.

Since Franco's death in November, 1975, 16 persons have died in police confrontations in the Basque land. On the other hand, Basque terrorists, who want complete independence for the Basques, have killed 17 policemen and government officials. Basque violence has accounted for more than half the political deaths in post-Franco Spain.

There is little doubt that most Basques think of themselves as different from most Spaniards.

"The Basque problem is not the same as the problem of Spain," Juan Maria Bandres, a Basque lawyer who has defended many political prisoners, said in a recent interview here. "They are a world apart."

Perhaps Basques exaggerate the difference. Thirty-five years ago, Spanish historian Salvador de Madariaga derided the basis for Basque nationalism. But then he admitted that his derision did not matter.

"The utter lack of a cultural, historical, political and above all racial basis for Basque nationalism is of course no obstacle to its vigor," he wrote. "Nationalism is a state of mind."

The four Basque provinces—Guipuzcoa Vizcaya, Alava and Navarra — have a population of 2.5 million, almost seven per cent of Spain's total population. Not all are Basques. In the 1960s alone, almost 300,000 people immigrated to the Basque provinces from elsewhere in Spain. At most, there are probably two million Basques in Spain. Another 200,000 live in France.

Bilbao, the largest Basque city, has been the industrial and shipbuilding centre of Spain for a century. The wealth fuels the grievance, for Basques believe that their industrial strength supports the rest of Spain and attracts non-Basques to their provinces. Vizcaya, the province of Bilbao, pays out 75 per cent more in taxes every year than it gets back in the form of government expenditures.

Much of the claim for Basque distinction rests on the Basque language, which bears no relation to any other modern language in Europe. Some scholars believe that the Basques and their language came to Spain from the Caucasus Mountains of what is now the Soviet Union a few thousand years ago.

Others insist that the Basque language, Euskera, is what everyone spoke in Spain until the Romans conquered the country. Under this theory, the Basques somehow escaped the "civilizing" force of the Romans, and the language was thus not latinized. This theory is favored by those who believe that the Basques are as Spanish as anyone else.

The history of Euskera, however, is less important than its use. Guipuzcoa is regarded as the most Basque of the Basque provinces with the most speakers of Euskera. Yet a visitor to San Sebastian, the quiet and pleasant capital of Guipuzcoa on the Bay of Biscay, almost never hears it spoken on the streets. Prominent Basque leaders in San Sebastian now study Euskera in small, private classes, much as some black Americans study Swahili.

The most generous estimate is that only one out of every four Basques can speak Euskera. Perhaps one of 10 speaks it well. In general, it is the language of the poor, uneducated, isolated, rural Basque.

Franco banned the use of Euskera after the civil war. No one could register the birth of a child with a Basque name. It was a crime to hang out a shop sign in any language other than Castilian (as Spaniards call the Spanish language). A publicity campaign admonished Basques to "speak Christian" — Castilian Spanish. The policy has eased by the end of Franco's reign, but the use of Euskera was still restricted.

Without Euskera, the Basque case for a separate or autonomous state is weakened. The Basques are therefore demanding that the Spanish government authorize Euskera as an official language equal to Castilian Spanish in the Basque provinces. Government would be conducted in both languages. Schools would be taught in both languages. That might ensure the survival of Euskera.

The Basques base their claim for autonomy in part on history. In medieval times, the kings of Castile (the region that later took over all Spain) would stand by an oak tree in Guernica and pledge to honor the 'fueros,' or special rights of the Basque people. These 'fueros' allowed the Basques regional assemblies, the right to raise taxes, control of customs and exemption from military service. Basques now probably romanticize and exaggerate the independence allowed by the 'fueros,' but these rights did confer a special status on the Basques.

The Basques lost their 'fueros' in the 19th century as punishment for supporting the wrong side in the Carlist civil wars. The Basques, a conservative, deeply Catholic community, allied themselves with the reactionary Spaniards who wanted King Carlos rather than Queen Isabella II on the throne. The victorious queen had the backing of liberal Spaniards who favored a strong central government. Even after the 'fueros' were abolished, the Basque provinces were left one distinction — the government in Madrid would levy a tax on the Basques as a whole, allowing the Basques to raise it among themselves in any way they wanted.

The grievance over the loss of the 'fueros' led to a resurgence of Basque nationalist feeling in the late 19th century. Its prophet was Sabino Arana, a poet who preached stark Basque racism.

"The features of the Basque are intelligent and noble, Arana wrote. "Those of the Spaniard are inexpressive and austere. . . The Basque degenerates in character if he mixes with foreigners. The Spaniard needs a foreign invasion from time to time to civilize himself."

"Most nations worry about how many will die if they're invaded. Here, we worry about how many will die if we're not invaded."

"The trouble with our human rights, comrade, is that there aren't many left."

Seal pup slaughter

I am writing to you to protest the unnecessary slaughter of the seal pups.

We have followed closely the news reports, also the research aspects.

So far it seems that the seal hunters' arguments are totally without justification and the emotion and sentiment they criticize us protesters for is something they obviously lack.

To my mind it seems they are standing their ground for only one reason. They enjoy their barbaric sport.

Their inhuman behavior calls for strong measures to stop this senseless killing of such beautiful creatures to satisfy vanity. Who needs a sealskin coat?

Those people who justify and participate in this hunt are uncivilized and so is the government for not having the strength to ban the seal hunt.

Crystal Pool

The public, through taxation, pays from 20 to 60 cents on every dollar it earns, into the public fund account. Therefore, the public should receive most benefit from disposal of these funds.

How come the provincial government gives $330,000 and Saanich $57,210 to a private institutuion in Victoria that provides service available to the public at the municipal Crystal Pool?

Yet Crystal Pool is told that too much public money is being spent on recreation and they must get by on the crumbs.

Sewage

There has been much criticism of Shoal Bay homeowners for trying to solve our sewage problems without desecrating the landscape which all Victorians enjoy. However, since our bid for a treatment plant has been turned down we are left with three chosen sites:

1. Shoal Bay beach, a good sandy beach, which is enjoyed by visitors and Oak Bay residents. This beach will be destroyed scenically.

2. Earn Street (The Gulley) and entrance to the park. In this site two and possibly three homes will have to be expropriated, more than 32 mature trees will have to be destroyed and the pump would still be within 50 feet of houses.

3. The golf course. This appears to all concerned the logical place. The structure can be tucked away in a corner and would cause little disturbance. As concerned citizens and human beings where do you feel the pump should go? I should be glad to hear from you. It takes a few minutes to sit down and write a letter, which will be forwarded to the proper authorities.

Murder in Uganda

I find it incredible and distressing that multitudes throughout Canada and the world are vigorously protesting the slaughter of the white seal while at the same time ignoring the slaughter of blacks in Uganda.

One can certainly sympathize with the seal pup. But isn't the systematic genocide of members of our own species more significant?

Reports indicate that Amin has for years and is at this moment annihilating entire sectors of the Ugandan population. His manner lacks the subtlety of Adolf Hitler. The Nazi dictator hid his atrocities in camps: Amin's henchman apparently murder in public. Hitler gassed; Amin hacks. Big Daddy's deeds area all the more despicable when considered in light of present humanist sentiments that were not as developed in the 1930s.

The world did not hesitate to confront Hitler who was recognized as a well armed adversary. How can we look the other way when an ill equipped megalomaniac wreaks terror and death on the innocent?

After the Second World War the United Nations was formed to prevent future outrages. What is it doing now? Every Canadian resident pays over $40 a year to assist less fortunate countries. Doesn't Uganda qualify?

There are always arguments against becoming involved in the internal affairs of another nation. Surely though, there is greater justification about becoming involved in Uganda than there ever was in Vietnam or Ireland — particularly if an international body were to take the initiative.

In the name of humanity, let us react!

Tracking down railway woes

Looking at the problems of the railways and the current federal move to take over all passenger service, it strikes me forcibly that Canada (like the United States) is aproaching the problem from the wrong end.

I think it's generally agreed that what puts the railways in a poor competitive position is the cost of building and maintaining track and other facilities, while trucks use public highways and planes use the air. Originally, the railways were given outright vast tracts of land, supposedly to pay for construction. Through a combination of shortsightedness and simple greed, they have sold off what what was meant as a perpetual subsidy, and now cry for help.

Well, we shouldn't give it to them. What our government should do is take back the remaining rights-of-way and maintain and operate them the same as airports and highways — open to all qualified comers on a fee or licence basis.

This done, one might well see, for example, Greyhound and others running passenger services via common rails, using their own trains. Freight could move by CN or CP or by co-operative pool trains, or even small independent carriers, using their own or leased equipment.

Trains, which can move the equivalent of 200 big truckloads of freight at high speeds, without interruption, over long distances, with crews of four or five men and low fuel requirements, have some large advantages over trucks, once the road costs are evened out.

Of course, rescuing the rights-of-way from their present miserable condition would be expensive, as would maintaining them properly in future, but I believe we would have seen the end of all other subsidies. I should point to the excellent West German rail system which in 1975 ran at a deficit of more than $4 billion, as an example not only of what a good system costs, but of what it is considered to be worth.

A system of independent trains would also, I submit, introduce a long-absent element of competition to the railways, to the country's great benefit.

Tub-thumper vs. 'gadfly': Issue is conflict of interest

ron's statement that he (the mayor) has a financial interest in some 90 companies and that 21 of these have some connection with property and land. The information was all there, he points out, when he made his public discolosures — and none of this has changed.

What he does argue against, however — and with some conviction — is that his prominent position in the real estate empire in any way keeps him from doing a good and completely above-board job as mayor.

"I OBJECT to the cloak and dagger inferences that have been aimed at council," he says.

Among other things, Ney is president of Great National Land and Investment Corp. Ltd., and Nanaimo Realty, its real estate arm. In its 12th annual report Great National Land was listed as wholly owning 13 other companies and having control of another nine.

As he hurries across Nanaimo in his luxury car during a typically hectic day, Ney seems momentarily stuck for an answer when asked if he is a millionaire.

In the end he says he isn't But he says so in the hesitant manner of someone who may not be sure what his dollars and cents worth is.

"I've only got a small interest in some of those companies," he says.

IT ISN'T the total worth that bothers Barron. It's Ney's involvement in development.

"We are strongly of the opinion that no land developers be allowed to hold office in the same community where their business is located," he says.

"We are concerned in our committee that because of the influence of developers, the taxpayers are being taken advantage of — that they are footing the bill for the developers."

Ney attacks this statement and the municipal affairs minister comes to his defence.

Barron has made a point of saying the minister is on record as declaring he doesn't believe that anyone having land dealings in a community should hold office in that community.

BUT CURTIS says he was not dictating rules, that it was only a personal opinion.

"As I recall it, I qualified this by saying it was a personal view — that were I active in real estate in a community I would be very reluctant to go into office."

While he said he held "no particular brief for Mayor Ney," Curtis said he found it necessary to point out that Ney's "activities have a very high profile and they always have had."

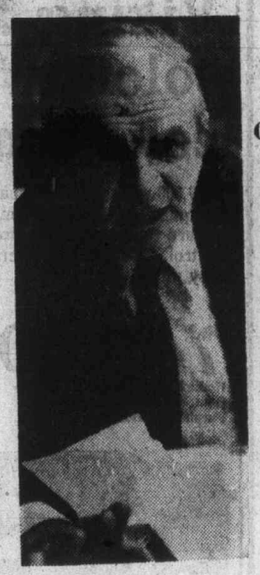

He felt that the referendum on the controversial bylaws would probably serve the cause better than any public inquiry.

"That's also a pretty good court," he said, indicating that the voting public would be the judge.

BARRON HAS tried unsuccessfully to meet with Curtis. The minister has said he would only agree to a meeting if both sides are represented. So far, that hasn't been arranged.

In a documented letter to Curtis, Barron argued that Ney's position with his large development company and his "personal holdings of land in these benefiting areas makes it impossible to be unbiased."

He adds: "It is the opinion of the Concerned Citizens Committee of Nanaimo that this is a grave abuse of public trust and of the public purse.

Citizen Barron:

'We are strongly of the opinion that no land developers be allowed to hold office in the same community where their business is located'

It is also the opinion of the committee that it constitutes a breach of moral and social justice and is clearly in conflict of interest."

In recent years Barron and his committee have successfully blocked a couple of controversial Nanaimo developments and lost out in one other such battle. They also failed in an earlier bid to prove Ney was in conflict of interest. In that case the ruling was that the zoning bylaw voted on was of general rather than specific nature.

BARRON HAS also been quick to pick other targets. He has accused the newspapers of Nanaimo of being lined up against him, has filed a complaint about the weekly Times with the Human Rights Commission and has also complainted officially about the radio station.

In addition to this, he has suggested to Curtis that "public disciplinary action" be taken against Nanaimo administrator Ted Chace. He accuses Chase of supporting the bylaws in public and making policy statements "outside the bounds of propriety."

In an interview, Barron said he isn't opposed to the sewers and water expansion in the areas where it is needed, but only to the manner in which it is being advocated.

He said the suggestion is that there will be a tax increase of about 10 per cent and that it will be across the board — the same for those in both the "old" and "new" city. This would only increase the disparity, he said.

HE GIVES these examples of the current tax situation: The owner of a $120,000 home in the choice subdiviion of Cilaire pays less than $1,000 a year in property taxes, while the owner of a $75,000 home in the "old city" pays $1,500. On Protection Island, the owner of a $50,000 home pays $160.

Ney says Barron should be aware that a five-year moratorium was set on the question of tax equality at the time of the amalgamation. The idea was to equalize the taxes over five years and in the first two years and two months the disparity has been reduced from a average of 25 mills to 19 mills, Ney says.

To greatly increase the rural taxes before the homeowners have the services would, he says, bring a great howl of protest.

Ney admits his companies will, like many others, have dealings in some of the areas to be serviced. But he says there was no conflict of interest on his part because the subject is once again general and not concerning a specific piece of land.

NEY ALSO denies the Concerned Citizens claim that the developers will be reaping big profits at the expense of the taxpayers.

"There are thousands of parcels of land. Some belong to developers, but some are owned by families who have owned them for 50 years.

"Unlike some cities, we make developers pay 100 per cent of the on-site costs, plus a $1,300 per lot impost fee—the highest of its kind on Vancouver Island."

But Barron says a developer told him at a public meeting it cost him $7,200 to put a lot "on stream" and that he would sell it for $17,500.

He said he asked the developer if he wouldn't be prepared to shoulder the service hookup costs as a result, but was told: "Certainly not—that's up to the taxpayers."

"I find that immoral," he said.

NEY EXPRESSES doubt that any developer would make such a statement. But if the man wasn't misquoted, then he (Ney) has no sympathy with him, he says.

He says one of the stipulations of amalgamation was to supply sewer and water service to all areas and now that the matter has been forced to a public vote, he fears the city may be facing a serious situation.

"I don't know what will happen if they vote against it," he says. "We'll be in a real mess."

The latest poll apparently shows about 55 per cent of the voters in favor of the bylaws.

Ney says he does not agree with the thought that real estate men and developers shouldn't serve on council.

"Under the democratic process, everybody has that right — everybody from every walk of life.

"When we start to segregate people we are getting into that old field of divide and conquer. And then we are getting into anarchy."

Mayor Ney:

'When we start to segregate people we are getting into that old field of divide and conquer. And then we are getting into anarchy'

Anyone who would rule out real estate people might eventually rule out others, he says. He suggests the next in line might be media people because of the fear that they "would control people's minds" and teachers because 54 per cent of the budget goes to education.

"If you start that kind of thing, where do you stop?" Ney asks.

He says he considers himself possibly the "hardest working mayor in Canada" and claims that as a real estate man he is in a position to offer much to the city, rather than hinder it.

"I am in a position to realize just what taxes mean," he says.

"I SHOULD know. This building of ours (new Nanaimo Trust building) pays $35,000 taxes a year."

If the whole question has split the city, there's no real uniformity to the two sides. There are businessmen for and against Ney and union people in opposite camps.

"I don't go for the guy's grandstanding, the pirate costumes he wears, the bathtubs he hands out and stuff like that," says one downtown merchant. "But I'll tell you this much: Frank Ney has done a helluva lot for this city. And he's given things to the city of his own without any publicity—like the cherry trees lining the road as you come into town."

The matter got as far as the executive level at the Nanaimo-Duncan District Labor Council, but never came into bloom before a regular meeting.

"The feeling of the executive," says labor council president Bob Rogers, "is that we should steer clear of this. We've got members on both sides of the questions. We didn't think it was worth splitting the membership."

MURRAY GRAY, a staff representative for the Canadian Union of Public Employees says: "I think the whole democratic system is being lost because of the pressure groups on both sides."

Opposing the Concerned Citizens is the Nanaimo Action Committee, seen by some as a developers' lobby. It has been taking out large newspaper ads and lengthy radio commercials.

One last word of defence from Frank Ney: "Sure I won by a good majority last time — 67 per cent of the vote. And I'll tell you this. Everyone who voted knew before they did so that I was in real estate."

Enterprise engineer

James Doohan

Beaming down with Scotty

By PAUL DE GROOT
Colonist Reporter

Now we know why they gave James Doohan lines like "The engine is going to blow, Skipper-r."

He came across as a wooden figure, uncomfortable and corny without cue cards Thursday night when he beamed into the Old Gym at UVic to capitalize on his portrayal as Scotty in Star Trek, television's all-time great sci-fi series.

But then, there is something logic-defying about Star Trek's incredible appeal today, and the 2,000 Trekkies who jammed the gym to talk Star Trek trivia and see a number of the old team went away happy.

They heard about the movie. No contracts yet, said Scotty, so don't ask about the film. But it will be good — the writers are laboring with love over the script.

Will there be another series? "No, I don't see another TV series. But there might be a series of films . . ."

Scotty talked family as well. His boyhood turned out to be of more than passing interest in a university crowd: his father had degrees in dentistry, veterinary science, and pharmacy, and ended up in Vancouver driving a horse team, with a PhD as his stable boy.

It was a bit incongruous to hear the man who beamed Enterprise personnel up and down complaining about the unreliability of the ferries, and how he had to leave his family in Tacoma with the motorhome.

Or how the engineer for light-years of space travel was thrilled by a ride on the latest model battery-powered cart developed by NASA.

He may have come even closer to pricking the Star Trek bubble with a showing of "bloopers," takes that didn't make it to the screen because of horseplay or mistakes in the shooting.

In the bloopers, icy heroines from futuristic planets become Hollywood starlets in weird get-ups who have (figuratively, this time) two left feet; the doors that always opened automatically fail to function, flattening a few noses; an engineer stokes the boilers of the Enterprise with a coal shovel; and unkindest cut of all, Spock smiles, a big silly grin worthy of Jimmy C.

The Trekkies got their fix as well — a commercial-less showing of "Assignment: Earth," a show nice and heavy on Scotty, with a taut ending, featuring a mystery man, Kirk, Spock, and a girl for everyone but Spock.

Now he must have some stories to tell . . .

Business tax cutback urged

By JIM GIBSON
Colonist Reporter

Victoria businessmen, students and theatre-goers all stand to gain if separate committee recommendations made Thursday are adopted by council.

- City businessmen could see a one per cent drop in their tax levy.
- The provincial labor department has $65,380 for summer student employment in Victoria if the city can come up with suitable programs and the support of its two CUPE unions.
- Theatre-goers can likely expect a refurbished Royal Theatre after a committee recommended the city pay its share of the $400,000 cost.

One committee recommended that the business tax levy be reduced from five to four per cent of the gross annual rental of the premises occupied or used for the purpose of a business.

The reduction was recommended in a brief from city manager James Bramley.

Bramley told the committee that many city businessmen were concerned that they would have to pay a substantially higher levy this year with a five per cent assessment on the new higher property assessments.

Under the five per cent the city would have collected $1,446,738 but at four per cent the total would be $1,157,390.

Ald. Ron McKenzie tried to have the business levy removed because of the existence of a $1 million surplus from the city's 1976 budget. But he could get no support for his motion.

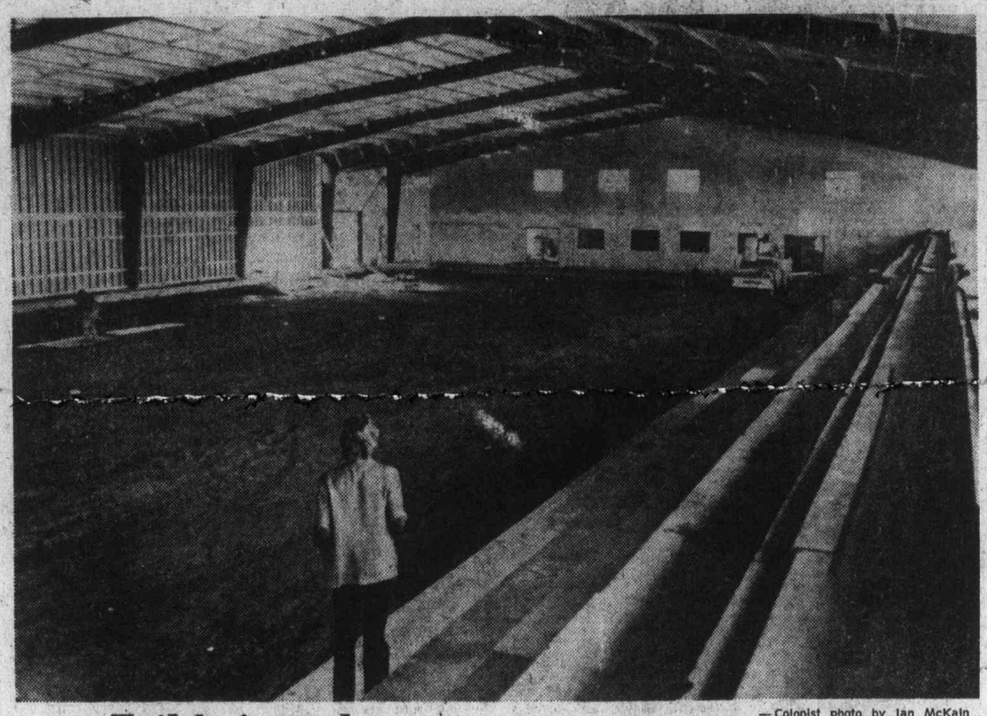

The committee also instructed Bramley to meet both city hall CUPE unions to see whether they would support the provincial youth employment program.

Bramley will also prepare a list of job proposals for the students. Two suggestions were city walking tours and an improved street-cleaning program.

The committee also recommended that the city pay its share, along with Saanich and Oak Bay, for the upgrading of The Royal Theatre, on the urging of Mayor Michael Young.

"If we're not going to tear it down, then we should fix it up," Young said.

Victoria's contribution to the $400,000 cost would be $158,702, but only $100,008 if a $133,333 grant from the community recreational facilities fund becomes available.

FACULTY'S QUEST

UVic studies 8% pay hike

An eight-per-cent salary increase, with an additional 4.3 per cent merit increase for faculty members who qualify, has been proposed by the University of Victoria Faculty Association.

The association prepares a report for the university administration each year in which it suggests changes in the salary structure, but the university administration ultimately makes the decision on its own, Dr. Rod Symington, president of the faculty association said Thursday.

The report this year also suggests an annual cost-of-living adjustment in summer session stipends, a change in the method by which "career progress increments" are awarded, and higher pay for faculty members on academic leave.

At present, faculty members receive a flat two-thirds of their regular salary while on leave. Under the proposed change, professors on leave would get the basic pay for an assistant professor ($15,500 at present), plus 60 per cent or the remaining portion of their salary. A professor making $21,000 a year, for instance, now gets $14,000 while on study leave. Under the new system the pay would be $18,800.

On another front, progress is continuing in the faculty association's quest for certification as a union.

More than 80 per cent of the responses to a mail ballot were in favor of a resolution calling for freezing of existing salary and tenure agreements, and a no-strike, no-lockout contract with compulsory binding arbitration if the association forms a union.

Next week the association plans to conduct a straw vote among its membership on the union issue itself, Symington said. The idea is strongly opposed by some faculty members, and the ballot should give some guidance to the new executive of the association which will be elected in March, he stated.

Labor divided on industrial democracy

Local labor is taking a cautious approach to the concept of industrial democracy.

There is such a mixture of opinion on the question of whether labor should involve itself, that the subject sparked a half-hour debate at Wednesday night's Victoria Labor Council meeting.

At issue was the executive's recommendaton against accepting an invitation for council representation on a community committee that is looking into the subject.

The question split the delegates with the executive winning support by a 23-18 vote and taking its lumps along the way from objectors, one of whom accused it of taking a "mealy-moth" approach to the matter.

Some of those backing the executive recommendation said industrial democracy as it exists in western Europe is weak and company-oriented.

Two members of the executive, first vice-president Linda Baker of the B.C. Government Employees' Union and Jim Walker of The Canadian Union of Public Employees are already on the community committee on an individual basis. As a result they registered opposiiton to the stand-off approach of fellow executive council members.

Council secretary Larry Ryan said it was not within the labor council's jurisdiction to become involved in activities that should properly be left to individual unions. Because the concept of industrial democracy could become a matter of negotiations, Ryan said: "We (council) don't tell them what they should negotiate in their agreements."

The committee is the brainchild of Charles Barber (NDP-Victoria), and is made up of Barber, the two labor people, two management representatives and three university professors.

In defending her presence on the committee and pushing for labor council involvement, Baker said there was no commitment to any hard-fast program. She said she was on the committee simply as an interested person, and that the objective of the committee was to promote education on the subject.

"None of us should ever profess to know everything about anything," she said.

Daryl Anderson of CUPE said he thought it was taking a "dangerous position" to agree "to get into bed with management at that level."

Walker reflected the feelings of Baker and some of the others when he said he could see nothing wrong with sitting on the committee as an observer and reporting later to labor.

Baker was still thinking of Anderson's comment.

"I take exception to the remarks that I am in bed with management," she said.

When the laughter had died away, Anderson said he hadn't been aiming his comments at her.

Railwest 'probe ordered'

Canadian Press

Charles Barber (NDP — Victoria) said Thursday that directors of B.C. Rail have ordered an inquiry into the operations of Railwest, the company's wholly-owned subsidiary which operates a railcar plant in Squamish.

Barber said the inquiry is being conducted without reference to the current royal commission into the railway.

He also said that Jack Fraine, chairman of the B.C. Rail board, had told him the board alone would determine whether any or all of the Railwest inquiry report would be made public. Attorney-General Garde Gardom said he has not heard anything about an inquiry into Railwest which is in poor financial shape because of a lack of contracts.

Governments 'stirring Indian storm rumors'

By STEPHEN HUME
Colonist Reporter

Rumors of political turmoil within the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs are encouraged by the provincial and federal governments, and should not obscure the common goal of all 193 B.C. Indian bands — the resolution of land claims.

Tsawout manager Gus Underwood said Thursday in an interview from Central Saanich that reports of the Nanaimo Indian Band Council formally breaking with the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs should not obscure the issue of land claims.

It was reported this week that six native bands — Kamloops, Musqueam, Sechelt, Squamish, Sliammon and Nanaimo — were seeking to withdraw from the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs.

Underwood said it is the prerogative of bands to pursue land claims in the manner they wish.

"The Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs is no different from the NDP or the Social Credit party in this respect — we disagree sometimes among ourselves. In this way we are no different from any other governmental institution."

The B.C. Union of Indian Chiefs has had difficulty unifying the 193-band organization since the spring of 1975 when it rejected federal government funds, executive council chairman Bob Manuel said in a news release Thursday.

Manuel said it was a "serious error" to reject the federal funds, even if it was done as an approach to achieve Indian independence "or as a means of bringing the land claims issue to the forefront."

In a letter released Sunday, the six withdrawing bands made a "formal request" to the union for a proportionate share of government financing to pursue their individual plans for economic development. The six bands represent about 4,000 people.

But Underwood said that as far as he knows Indian bands in Greater Victoria are not actively seeking to withdraw from the union.

"There is still a union of B.C. chiefs and we (Tsawout band) are still in it," he said.

"All B.C. is together on land claims. How we achieve it is another thing," he said.

Underwood charged that the department of indian and northern affairs and the provincial government were "great for putting band against band" by offering money to one band without offering it to another.

Meanwhile, the conference of B.C. Indian Chiefs, originally scheduled to be held April 26-28 in Prince George will not be held there after all. The Colonist learned Thursday night from union spokesman Theresa Nahanee that the union was informed there was not enough hotel space in Prince George. She said the conference was still scheduled for the same time, but where she did not know.

City firm to design TV station

A Victoria firm of architects has been named to design the proposed Canadian Broadcasting Corp. television station for a 1.6 acre site between Douglas and Blanshard at Kings Road.

The Bastion Group (Donovan Marshall, Gerald Sager and Raymond Goldsworthy) will work in association with CBC architects and engineers to develop a design most suitable for the region and the property, bought last year from the city for $550,000.

Capital costs of the building and equipment are estimated at $6.7 million. A transmitter broadcasting on Channel 10 is to be erected on Saturna Island at an estimated cost of $2 million.

Projected air date for the station is mid-1979.

Sewage bad spots: Priority list asked

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist Reporter

Sewage flows across the roads in the Ten Mile Point area, and it is discharged across Lochside Drive into Cordova Bay from a high school, but Saanich, council has no early intention of cleaning up the problems, a community health committee of the Capital Region Board has been told.

In all, eight problem areas were pinpointed by public health inspection director L. E. Benham in a report which had been requested by the committee.

Only two of the eight were dealt with by the committee — View Royal and Ganges.

"We have a list of eight areas which are polluted," View Royal director Pat Massy noted.

"Ten Mile Point, where effluent is flowing over the road, is passed over" by the committee.

The View Royal director agreed there was a serious sewage problem in her area, but said she objected to that district, which is unorganized, being singled out.

Over the years several approaches had been made to the public health board to have faulty systems corrected in View Royal, and to have building permits refused that would add to pollution.

Massy

. . . eight areas polluted

The health board had never given any aid.

According to the report, faulty sewage disposal systems existed on most roads.

"Many of the systems are on rocky lots and cannot be corrected except for hauling away,' the report said.

"Sewering would be very costly.

"Saanich has no current intention to undertake sewering."

Saanich is sewering two areas included in Benham's list — Beckwith Road-Panorama Drive, and Knibbs Place.

Drafting of plans for the Dunsterville, Hastings, Santa Rosa area, where there were a large number of faults, was also under way.

But there are no plans to extend a sewer trunk into the hillside slopes above Cordova Bay.

In this area "in addition to known housing malfunctions, the high school discharges many thousands of gallons each day into an open ravine which flows down and across Lochside Drive and then over the beach into Cordova Bay waters."

And there was no intention on the part of North Saanich council to clean up a problem on the west shore of the municipality.

There were a number of roads in the area, the major one being Madrona Drive, where there were a large number of faulty systems.

More social aid 'in 60 days'

There was a promise of a further boost within 60 days in social assistance allowances for British Columbians who are unable to provide for themselves, by Human Resources Minister William Vander Zalm Thursday night. (See also Page 15.)

The minister wouldn't say what the increase would involve or exactly when it would be paid "but it will be announced within 60 days," he said.

Under debate at the time was Vote 190, the welfare vote, totalling $193,920,046 for the next fiscal year. Rosemary Brown (NDP — Vancouver-Burrard) had asked when extra assistance might be forthcoming.

The income assistance program provides social allowances and special allowances to British Columbians who are unable to provide for themselves. Special allowances include grants for work incentives, special needs, educational upgrading, vocational training, dietary and pre-natal care, transportation and other costs.

The flurry of questions and answers on income assistance was the last before the house approved all human resources expenditures for the coming year, which total $569,826,615, shortly before 10:30 p.m.

The Legislature now moves to debate on the estimates of Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Coal issues posted strong gains in the stock market Thursday, but most other stocks were sluggish on the eve of the U.S. government's monthly report on consumer-price trends.

Meanwhile, bad news was expected today when the U.S. government reports on the consumer price index for February. It is widely believed that the report will show a double-digit rate of inflation for the month.

CLOSING AVERAGES

15 Utilities	107.36	+ .54
65 Composite	314.98	+ .16

Volume 20.7 million.

The coal group jumped ahead inn response to President Carter's remarks at an energy discussion in Charleston, W. Va. Carter, who said the U.S. must move away from oil and natural gas to coal, is to present a broad energy plan for the country to Congress in little more than a month.

Among the coal stocks, Pittston was up 1½ at $36⅝, Eastern Gas and Fuel gained 1⅝ to $28¼ and North American Coal climbed 1 to $54½.

National Mine Service, a producer of mining equipment, jumped 1½ to $23⅝.

The listless tone of the rest of the market was ascribed to several factors. Analysts said the recent rally in stock prices had shown signs of slowing on Wednesday.

Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal warned Thursday that the current economic recovery lacked the support of any strong pickup in capital investment by business.

Business Week:

Canadian economy in serious trouble

NEW YORK (CP) — Business Week magazine says the Canadian economy is in serious trouble and the slide of the Canadian dollar is only the most visible sign of it.

In its main story in the March 28 issue, the U.S. weekly magazine says the eight-per cent decline in the Canadian dollar since last November "is in fact only the most visible symptom of profound troubles in the Canadian economy."

While most of the rest of the non-Communist industrial West has been pulling itself out of recession, Canada's economy has been marching out of step, Business Week says. Having avoided the worst of the recession, Prime Minister Trudeau today finds himself with a slipping economic situation, compounded by political problems that threaten to pull the Canadian federation apart.

Inflation, which has averaged more than nine per cent for the last four years, still is running at a 7.5 -per-cent annual rate. The result is that Canadian products have been pushed out of U.S. and other world markets, and Canadians are flowing across the border to shop in the United States. Result: Canada's balance of payments is plunging deeply into deficit.

"Business investment, meanwhile, is being discouraged by shrinking profits and worries among businessmen about future growth prospects," the magazine says. Business and labor alike are chafing under wage and price controls, and although Trudeau plans to start removing them later this year, he risks unleashing still more pent-up inflation, the publication adds.

At the same time, Canada is facing growing structural problems in its economy. Its costs are to high, and its domestic market of 22 million is too small to support many domestic manufacturers except behind a shield of stiff tariff barriers.

Canadian government statistics underscore the seriousness of the country's problem. In 1972, Canada ran a trade deficit of $4.8 billion in manufactured goods. Only four years later, this had more than doubled, to $10.2 billion, "revealing the inability of Canadian manufacuters to compete with imports of many products despite high tariffs," the magazine says.

"The result eventually will have to be a dramatic slimming down of Canada's manufacturing sector, either by mergers and shutdowns or by government-sponsored reorganization."

Killer whale dies at zoo

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A killer whale calf, the first ever born in captivity, has died at Marineland.

business george gibson

This must be a longer winter than usual in Ottawa. There have been more than the normal number of items coming out of there recently with an air of hysteria attached to them. Some new examples of Your Government in Action:

The Anti-Inflation Board (more about them later) has ruled that the Wawanesa Insurance Co. of Winnipeg had $3.5 million in "excess revenue" last year so must give it back to its car insurance clients this year. However, this repayment will be made, according to the AIB, by way of discounts beginning April 1.

Think about that for a moment. What if the 1976 client decided to change his insurer for 1977? What do you think of his chances for getting a discount then?

Then there's the one about the S.I.N. to tell no lies. All you 4 million resident Canadians who haven't buckled under and obtained a Social Insurance Number are in for a nasty little surprise the next time you try to cash a coupon for a federal, provincial or municipal bond.

The clerk will now deduct 25 per cent of what you are owed as a "withholding tax" and ship it off to Revenue Canada Taxation where they tuck the figures away until the next time you file an income tax return. Then you may or may not get it back. But just produce the wanted card and there's no deduction.

Revenue Minister Monique Begin explains it all away by saying that some taxpayers have not been reporting the full amount of bond interest payments. No further indication of the seriousness of the problem.

However, she doesn't attempt to explain what happens to the penny-scraping pensioner who doesn't earn enough to pay income tax, let alone be bothered with getting a S.I.N. card.

Nor does her statement detail the course of action of a child who perhaps has been blessed with a bond or two from a doting relative.

The Unemployment Insurance Commission, which dispenses the cards, says that any child who can scribble his name can get one. If under 12, a parent's signature must also be supplied.

Back to the AIB. Their director of information services sent a letter to this office this week seeking an opinion regarding its press releases. Was it more useful to get them over a teleprinter or through the mail? Bearing in mind that it cost the taxpayers slightly more over the wire, he added.

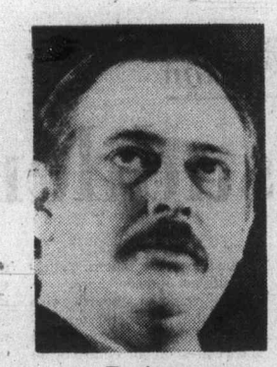

In reply, we suggested the mail route, adding that as a concerned taxpayer one felt obliged to remind him that any saving, no matter how small, was important, particularly in view of the limited future of the AIB.

Can you stand a couple more? One M. C. Proulx of the Department of Finance writes to advise this office that "the federal budget speech and supplementary material will again be released in your city at the same time as the speech is delivered by the Minister of Finance in Ottawa on March 31."

Then we were advised that we could pick up our copies at about 8 p.m. EDT at the Bank of Canada Agency on West Hastings St. in Vancouver.

Treasury Board release of March 15 tells the world that 832 employees in the Information Services Group of the federal government have achieved an average 6.89 per cent raise for a year, effective last Dec. 27.

"During the term of the agreement, the maximum rate of pay in the most populous level of the group, IS-3, will be increased from $20,108 to $21,468. The agreement is subject to review by the Anti-Inflation Board, but is considered to be within the guidelines."

Parizeau ... tough words

Q-bonds cashed

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebecers have chased in more than $70 million worth of Quebec savings bonds since last November's election, finance department figures released Thursday show.

Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau said in a written reply tabled in the Quebec national assembly that $705.1 million worth of provincial bonds were in circulation on March 8. This compares with a total of about $775 million in circulation on Nov. 15, when the Parti Quebecois government was elected.

Separation still aim

TORONTO (CP) — Quebec Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau reaffirmed his province's intention to seek independence in a toughly-worded speech Thursday that drew a cool response from a blue-chip audience of Toronto's industrial, political and academic leaders.

He said any attempt to interpret statements by the Parti Quebecois that it is withdrawing from its main objective of separation from Canada "is wishful thinking."

"Something that started more than 15 years ago is now coming slowly to fruition," he said.

Parizeau drew mild, polite applause from the estimated 1,400 persons who packed two ballrooms and a large gallery of the Royal York Hotel. He spoke to a special, joint luncheon meeting of the Board of Trade of Metropolitan Toronto and The Empire Club of Canada.

However, the audience reacted quickly with longer, more sustained applause when A. R. McMurrich, president of the Board of Trade, issued a warning that Canadians would fight to keep the country together when called upon to thank the speaker.

In his speech, Parizeau referred to what he described as a new theme that has been circulating throughout Canada in the last few weeks which was that an independent Quebec could not count on an economic association with Canadians.

While such an argument was excellent as a political threat, it "is pretty bad economics."

He said that while an economic association or monetary arrangement would be useful, the answer was a customs union between Quebec and Canada because it was essential to both sides.

"Tariff barriers between Quebec and the rest of Canada might not hurt the West very significantly, but they would produce in Ontario intolerable losses, just as they would on the other side of the Ottawa River."

Parizeau said free passage of goods and people is the only solution.

Security guards fail to oust Bison protester

TORONTO (CP) — Turmoil erupted again Wednesday between rival factions at a shareholders meeting of Bison Petroleum and Minerals Ltd. in a continuing controversy involving Canadian Javelin Ltd.

After unsuccessful efforts to unseat the existing board of directors, a dissident group continued the meeting after adjournment and elected its own officers.

Toronto lawyer Nelson Apple asserted his claim to the chairman's position despite efforts of security guards acting on instructions of Bison management to have him leave the room.

Apple is legal counsel for Canadian Javelin, which had been Bison's major shareholder until the issue of about 3 million Bison shares last month.

The security orders were given by Bison president William Wismer, a former president of Javelin. However, the election of officers was conducted and the slate included Raymond Balestreri, Javelin's current president.

The principal shareholder in Canadian Javelin is John Doyle, a fugitive from justice in Canada and the United States. He is charged in Canada in connection with trading in Bison shares.

Last July, a pro-Doyle faction regained management control of Javelin from the Wismer group at a court-ordered shareholders meeting. Wismer, as Javelin president, was ousted.

The two groups are involved in legal actions against each other in Quebec and Ontario. The Ontario securities Commission has said it wants to know more about the recent issue of new shares by Bison.

On March 3, the commission issued a temporary ban on trading of shares of Bison and of Dominion Jubilee Corp. Ltd. of Montreal. The ban was to expire after Thursday.

The commission decided Thursday to allow the ban to expire as scheduled except in the cases of 2.1 million Jubilee shares which had been issued to Bison and 3,276,287 Bison shares that had been issued to Jubilee.

The trading ban on those shares is to continue until further notice, a commission spokesman said.

Credit climbs

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer credit outstanding on the books of credit holders who report monthly totalled $21.731 billion at the end of January, up 16.3 per cent from a year earlier, Statistics Canada said Thursday.

Personal loans issued by chartered banks accounted for most of the outstanding credit holdings, with a value of $16.243 billion, up 22.5 per cent from a year earlier.

Relocated Ganges prompts action

Outfall 'a sudden concern'

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist Reporter

Ganges businessmen became concerned "all of a sudden" about sewage problems in the town because of an attempt to move the townsite, members of the Capital Region Board's community have been told.

Health inspector Daryl Anderson told the committee it is common knowledge in Ganges that that was the reason for the recently-expressed concern.

He said there was a planned project of a bank, six stores and a major supermarket "a mile or so down the road" as an addition to a shopping centre already there.

Victoria Ald. Ron McKenzie said the project in question was simply a matter of a person adding to a shopping centre.

"He's doing it without toilets," McKenzie said.

"This is a whole new setup," Anderson said.

"We are talking about a bigger entity than exists there now by far."

North Saanich Ald. George Westwood said that even if the new centre should become the main townsite it wouldn't be long before that centre would have the same sewage problems that exist at the present site.

"Would that mean the townsite would move a third time unless we did something?" he asked.

Regional health officer Dr. Allan Arneil said that statement presumed that a septic tank system at the shopping centre wouldn't work.

"No matter how you slice it, we will need some kind of sewage treatment plant there," Westwood said.

Ganges residents have asked the provincial government for assistance in putting in an experimental treatment plant for the town because of sewage problems.

Sewage bubbles out of the ground in some places, polluting ditches and sea shore.

The regional board also asked the provincial government to make a decision on the request in an endeavor to cure what it saw as an urgent problem. There has been no reply from the province.

Regional engineer Norman Howard said he could not understand the provincial hesitation.

Because of various provincial schemes to keep down the cost to taxpayers of putting in sewer systems, the province would end up paying most of the cost of the Ganges system regardless of how the problem was cured.

It was decided to write to the provincial government once again stressing the urgency.

In the meantime, Arneil said, he had no choice but to demand corrections of septic tank malfunctions which have caused a real health hazard in Ganges.

He estimated that 12 to 20 establishments would be included in any cleanup order.

Arneil said he could not allow holding tanks to be installed at this time because of the limited capacity of the present disposal ground where holding tank effluent could be pumped.

He said he has asked Salt Spring Island director George Keinekey three times to apply to the Pollution Control Board to enlarge the grounds, but he did not think Heinekey had taken action.

Police inquiry started after speeder wounded

An immediate investigation has been started by the Victoria city police in a shooting incident Wednesday night in which a 24-year-old Saskatchewan man received a leg wound.

Insp. D. G. Grant of the patrol division said Thursday morning the internal inquiry "has probably already begun."

The incident began at 9:59 p.m. when Constable Roger Barrie, on routine patrol in a prowl car, spotted a car going through a red light at Johnson and Government streets.

Grant said a chase ensued with emergency equipment (flashing lights and siren) put in operation. The police report indicated the pursued vehicle went through a total of three red lights, three stop signs and the wrong way on three one-way streets during the high-speed chase.

The driver of the car chased, whom Grant declined to name because of possible criminal negligence charges, left the car in the 500 block Yates Street and began running.

Barrie, who joined the city force Oct. 1, 1968, also continued the chase on foot and gave a verbal warning to stop before firing a shot.

Grant said the bullet apparently ricocheted and struck the victim in the calf of his left leg.

He was taken to Victoria General Hospital and treated for what was described as a minor gunshot wound and remained there under guard.

Grant said the incident was not reported to him until Thursday morning because there was no patrol inspector on duty when Barrie returned to file his report.

Under questioning, Grant said it was likely Barrie fired the shot with his pistol pointed to the ground rather than in the air.

Grant said the officer's report was consistent with this possibility because the slug taken from the victim's leg was flat on one side, indicating it had struck something before entering the leg.

Internal inquiries are not normally held in public, Grant said.

Japan cooling off on B.C. coal demand

Graham Lea (NDP — Prince Rupert) said Wednesday that he feared the Japanese demand for B.C. coal was slowing down and could make the proposed development of B.C. northeast coal fields premature.

He asked Economic Development Minister Donald Phillips in the Legislature whether the government was involved in negotiations that could result in smaller Japanese orders for coal.

Phillips said no such negotiations were taking place, although he said later outside the house that he could not speak for private companies.

"This government has a commitment to increase the B.C. percentage of Japanese coal purchases," Phillips said.

Lea told reporters, "It's my information that Japan is having difficulties finding markets for its steel and, consequently, they want to negotiate down for coal supplies."

He did not disclose the source of his information.

A coal industry spokesman had suggested that coal reserves currently being developed in southeastern B.C. were ample to supply projected demands for the immediate future, Lea said.

Home sale spared for hospital fee

Human Resources Minister William Vander Zalm promised Thursday to move quickly to prevent the sale of a family home to pay extended care hospital bills.

Vander Zalm made the pledge to Rosemary Brown (NDP — Vancouver Burrard) after she informed him of a case in Vancouver of an elderly father who had been taken to an extended care hospital.

"He lived until that time with his spinster daughter," she said. "And now she has been informed by human resources officials that the family home must be sold."

Vander Salm asked for the "names, address and details. My deputy will investigate immediately. The regulations could be interpreted that way but give me the details and I'll stop the hardship."

The NDP member said this year's budget showed a withdrawal of $5 million for services to children or $10 million in total services formerly provided. "At the same time the budget for the containment of juvenile is being boosted."

She said she found it incongruous to see the government cutting services at one end of the scale while increasing expenditures at the juvenile delinquency level.

"They are anticipating that these children, victims of the cut in spending, will shortly need containment (as juvenile delinquents.) This is very shortsighted. This minister is a burden to the taxpayers."

Vander Zalm also came in for criticism from Don Lockstead (NDP — Mackenzie.) Lockstead told the house that "like everyone else here I'm receiving a steady flow of mail from the elderly who are suffering" under Vander Zalm's programs.

"I'm not going to criticize the people who work in his department," Lockstead said. "It isn't their fault. They have to work with that minister and he's handicapped."

Scott Wallace (PC — Oak Bay) appealed to Vander Zalm to make known the details of the Social Credit proposal for universal pharmacare.

He said the waiting and wondering was particularly hard on the elderly who were fearful the new formula might include a deductible for drugs, thus seriously reducing their income.

"Will there be a deductible?" Wallace asked. "Will it be $50 or $25 or what? Tell us soon, preferably tonight."

Vander Zalm said he was aware of the impact the new pharmacare program could have on all who would be affected "and that includes this government."

"I thought the program sufficiently finalized for us to introduce it a month ago," he said. "But we have had many meetings with doctors, nurses, hospital authorities and pharmacists and I have received many letters and telephone calls.

"We wish to devise a change which will be beneficial to the majority of British Columbians. I'm still prepared to listen and the program is not yet final enough for me to take to cabinet."

Wallace said "that's the best news I've heard in a long time and I'm glad the minister isn't yet ready to introduce the program. I'm happy that he's still listening and I hope he'll listen to me when I appeal to him to keep prescription drugs for the elderly free."

The opposition earlier criticized Vander Zalm for his job-finding program and welfare fraud investigation unit.

Graham Lea (NDP — Prince Rupert) said the Provincial Rehabilitation and Employment Program (P.R.E.P.) is a hoax to make British Columbians believe the government is taking action to supply jobs to persons on social assistance.

The job-finding program was set up last year by Vander Zalm in an attempt to decrease the welfare rolls. The minister said earlier this week that the program had found 6,000 jobs since its inception.

The opposition also attacked his ministry's 12 eligibility officers, who were hired to stop welfare fraud.

Criticism of P.R.E.P. began Wednesday when Conservative leader Scott Wallace said some officials in the highways ministry were telling prospective workers to register with the welfare office before they could be hired.

Wallace said this practice allowed P.R.E.P. to claim the workers as finding jobs through the program, and the 6,000 figure was inflated.

Roberts Bank contests Nanaimo for steel mill

Nanaimo Mayor Frank Ney has an official rival in his bid to encourage construction of a steel mill in the Nanaimo area.

Walter Davidson (SC — Delta) said Thursday he had written the mayor and council of Delta and the North Delta Chamber of Commerce, urging them to consider the possibility of persuading the government to build the steel manufacturing complex at Roberts bank.

The steel mill proposal was revived last Monday when Economic Development Minister Donald Phillips suggested that the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island request him to conduct social and environmental impact studies in the Nanaimo area as a phase two project to bring such a mill to the Island.

Ney said Wednesday he would welcome such studies but David Stupich (NDP — Nanaimo) said he would oppose any attempt to locate the industrial plant on the Island. Stupich claims there is not enough water or power to support such a project short of nuclear power.

Nanaimo was one of the top sites selected in phase one studies undertaken by New Democratic Party administration but Nanimo was quickly removed from the list by cabinet order.

Davidson said he was convinced a modern steel mill could be built to meet "every environmental requisite."

He added that Roberts Bank "with its tidewater facilities and rail access, could be proven as the most desirable site in B.C. for this project."

It is estimated that if the Japanese-B.C. government project went ahead it would cost about $3.5 billion and would create hundreds of jobs in the construction stage of the on-going steel making proeesses.

Davidson said that if local officials in Delta responded favorably to his request he would do all he could to persuade the provincial cabinet to select the Roberts Bank site.

The proposed steel mill first came to public attention when Gary Lauk (NDP — Vancouver Centre) was economic development minister. He has accused his successor, Phillips, "of blowing the deal with Japan" during the minister's late 1976 trip to Tokyo.

Phillips said earlier this week that the proposed steel mill project had never been abandoned." The studies were just suspended," he said. "But the options and the interest are still very much alive."

Judge rules for Kuhn in suit filed by Finley

CHICAGO (AP) — Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has virtual dictatorial powers over baseball, a federal judge ruled Thursday.

Judge Frank McGarr of U.S. district court reached this conclusion in ruling against Oakland A's owner Charles Finley in his lawsuit against Kuhn.

McGarr ruled that Kuhn had the authority to void the $3.5 million sales last June of Oakland stars Joe Rudi, Rollie Fingers and Vida Blue.

There was no evidence of ill will or capriciousness on Kuhn's part, McGarr said.

"The fact that this case has commanded a great deal of attention in the vociferous world of baseball fans, and has provoked widespread and not always unemotional discussions, tends to obscure the relative simplicity of the legal issues involved," McGarr wrote.

All the rhetoric and name-calling, he said, boiled down to a single issue. The current major-league agreement and its history "are all to the effect that the commissioner has the authority to determine whether any act . . . is 'not in the best interests of baseball' and . . . to take whatever preventive or remedial action he deems appropriate," McGarr wrote.

"The questionable wisdom of this broad delegation of power is not before the court," McGarr said. "What the parties intended is. And what the parties clearly intended was that the commissioner was to have jurisdiction to prevent any conduct destructive of the confidence of the public in the integrity of baseball.

"So broad and unfettered was his discretion intended to be that they provided no right of appeal and even took the extreme step of foreclosing their own access to the courts."

"We seem to have a good result and I am obviously pleased," Kuhn said. "I think it's a good sign for the future of professional baseball."

'I've said right along that there really was more at stake here than a hassle between Charley Finley and Bowie Kuhn. What is more important is the fact that the court upheld the commissioner's authority to do what he thinks is right for baseball. The overriding question was what was good for professional baseball."

Finley was clearly disappointed, and said he will appeal.

"Maybe it's 18 years of blood, sweat and sacrifice down the drain," Finley said. ". . . This is the decision of just one man. We believe that 90 per cent of the judges in the United States would have reached the opposite decision and we think the judges of the appellate court will, too."

Joe Burke, general manager of Kansas City Royals, welcomed the decision backing Kuhn.

"It confirms, if nothing else, the power of the commissioner," Burke said. "The judge's decision really solidifies the commissioner's role at this point. It's tough to tell a man he can't sell his assets but all along we felt what Finley did was not good for the game."

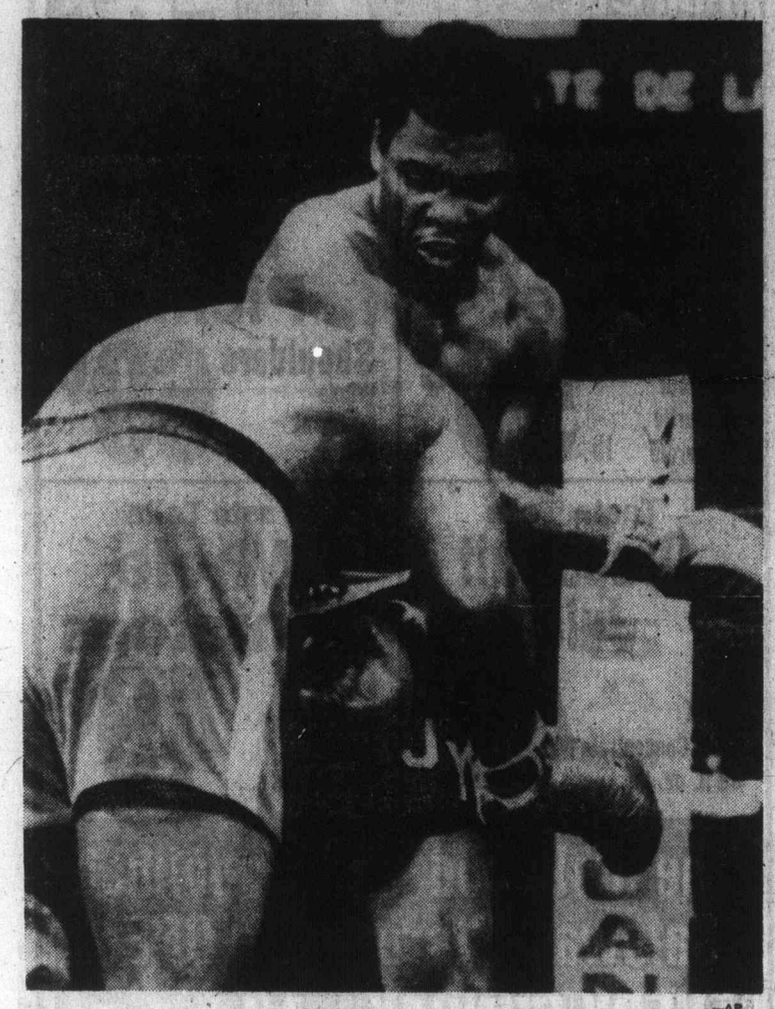

Kuhn said it was difficult to reach his decision to block the sales of Blue to New York Yankees and Fingers and Rudi to Boston Red Sox.

"The problem with the deals tipping baseball's competitive balance in mid-season was very apparent," the commissioner said.

"But the decision to go ahead and stop them was difficult because I knew it would generate litigation, trouble and harassment which the game didn't need. You must balance those things and do what you think is right."

Before halting the sales, Kuhn met with Finley twice.

"My discussion with him was serious and not acrimonious," Kuhn recalled. "Finley explained that he had to sell the players for the good of the team and would use the money to rebuild the team. My question was whether that was feasible."

Foreman admitted to hospital after stunning loss to Young

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Jimmy Young stunned the boxing world Thursday night by beating George Foreman, who about an hour after the fight was carried from his dressing room on a stretcher and taken to a hospital in an ambulance.

Gil Clancy, one of Foreman's trainers, said Foreman was suffering from the heat and fatigue.

Foreman was on the losing end of a 12-round decision and in the final round was knocked down by Young, who said he had sensed three rounds earlier that Foreman was very tired.

Young brought a sellout crowd of 10,000 roaring fans in the Roberto Clemente Coliseum to their feet in the 12th and final round.

With Foreman pressing him into a corner, Young unleashed a series of six solid head shots that sent the former champion reeling backwards, obviously hurt.

Foreman lasted the round, but the crowd sensed the outcome as it cheered "Jimmy Young, Jimmy Young."

Schmidt scored it 118-111 for Young under the 10-point must system. Judge Cesar Ramos saw it 116-112 for Young and judge Ismael Fernandez called it 115-114 Young.

Young showed his coolness in the seventh round, when it looked as though Foreman would end the fight with a knockout.

In the first 15 seconds of the round, as Young backed along the ropes, Foreman unleashed a powerful left hook that badly stunned the Philadelphian, who reeled across the ring with Foreman in pursuit.

For most of the first two minutes of the round, Foreman was in complete command, but could not land the punch to put Young down.

Young did not panic and did not try to fight his way out of trouble. His head gradually cleared and he came back in the final minute with several head shots that had the crowd cheering him on.

Before the fight, Young had said the fifth round would be the decisive round. He was two rounds off, but he could care less.

The victory may have earned Young another shot at Ali, to whom he lost a disputed decison last year. Promoter Don King shouted from the ring, "We're going to make Young-Ali."

When asked about a Foreman-Ali rematch, King said, simply: "We want to get George back into the ring as soon as possible."

While the loss does not rule out another Foreman-Ali fight, it certainly hurt Foreman's financial bargaining power.

Foreman, who seldom has had to go more than five rounds in his 47-bout career, proved to doubters that he could go the distance. But it was costly proof.

Foreman, who weighed 229, was paid $700,000 for the fight which was shown live on home television in the United States and parts of Canada. The payday could be his best for some time.

Young, who weighed 212, earned $250,000 as he continued his rags-to-riches rise, that got its start with his disputed loss to Ali.

Young's greatest victory was his 21st against five losses and two draws. Foreman's defeat, which snapped a five-bout winning streak that began after his title loss to Ali in 1974, was his second against 45 wins.

The end came at 2:03 of the sixth round when Escalera, defending his World Boxing Council crown for the eighth time, caught McGarvey with a right to the chin.

Referee Abraham Chavarria of Mexico gave McGarvey an eight count, and, after the challenger had regained his feet, stopped the fight.

By JIM TANG

Only British Columbia is left hanging on the ropes as unbeaten Manitoba and Saskatchewan, who meet this afternoon at the Victoria Curling Club, head into the last three rounds of the Canadian police curling championship.

The co-leaders both won their seventh and eighth games on Thursday, and only Bob Hawkes and his Victoria RCMP rink, at 6-2 after two Thursday wins, managed to stay close enough to retain a mathematical chance of catching up and getting a playoff chance at the Rothman Silver Stone. Eliminated Thursday were Alberta, New Brunswick and Northern Ontario, who shared third place with B.C. after Wednesday play.

On what happened Thursday, it looks like a toss-up in this afternoon's crucial matchup between the co-leaders.

Roy Gislason and his defending champions from the Winnipeg RCMP have looked stronger each time out, and Thursday never went into the ninth end in disposing of two potentially-dangerous opponents — Bill Dustin and his Thunder Bay City Police rink, by 8-2, and Murray Macara of Territories, 10-2.

It was tougher for youthful Norm Gilbertson and his Saskatoon City Police rink. The Saskatchewan champions did breeze in the afternoon, by 7-2 over then-winless Quebec, but Northern Ontario's Dustin yielded only to a last-rock hit-and-stay which brought a 7-6 decision on the evening draw.

The Saskatchewan-Northern Ontario game was easily the highlight of Thursday's play. Saskatchewan, stealing single points on the third and fourth ends for a 3-1 lead, appeared to have taken control. But Dustin got a point on the fifth end and stole on the seventh end after Gilbertson had deliberatedly blanked the sixth.

Dustin fanned on both takeout attempts on the eighth end, and again it seemed decided when Gilbertson had a free draw for three which sent him into the ninth end at 6-3.

A draw to the edge of the four-foot ring fully behind cover by second Bob Armstrong, set up the ninth end, and Dustin was able to draw for three after Gilbertson wrecked trying to come down to second rock.

And Saskatchewan was in early trouble on the home end, Northern Ontario getting a covered rock not far from the front of the four-foot ring. But three failures to replace the guard left Dustin facing an open house when he came down for his last rock.

He drew into the four-foot circle, and Gilbertson made a perfect hit to avoid an extra end.

B.C. started badly Thursday, and was 0-3 after two ends of the afernoon game against New Brunswick's Sonny Hirtle, who had been proving tough to handle. But the Victorians came on strongly and pulled away to an 11-5 win.

And it was surprisingly easy for the B.C. champions against Ken Ursuliak and his Edmonton City Police rink on the evening draw.

Hawkes, who had come up light with a free draw for two on the second end, started the turn on the fourth end with a delicate tapout for two to take a 3-2 lead. And Ursuliak completed it on the fifth end when he got only to the front rink with a last-rock draw against three B.C. rocks clustered in or close to the four-foot ring.

Ursuliak, the all-star skip in the Alberta Consols playdowns this year, has so far not hit expected form. But he could still have a big bearing on the decision about who is to take possession of the Rothman Silver Stone. He is in against Manitoba Saturday morning in the scheduled draw, and he could force a playoff if Manitoba defeats Saskatchewan this afternoon.

However, a Saskatchewan victory is expected by most to be decisive. The Saskatoon rink plays winless Newfoundland this morning and closes out against Ontario. Manitoba starts today against New Brunswick.

British Columbia's chance is almost negligible, depend- is almost negligible, depending on the winner of the Saskatchewan-Manitoba game losing both other games.

Bruins top Sabres for share of lead

Boston Bruins, the hottest team in the National Hockey League at the moment, are back in a first-place tie with Buffalo Sabres in the Adams Division.

Bruins stretched an unbeaten streak to 11 games Thursday by scoring a 4-2 win over the Sabres before 13,110 fans, one of the better crowds of the season at Boston Garden.

The Bruin victory, ninth in the unbeaten run, leaves each team with 94 points and eight games to play, including a return match March 30 in Buffalo.

Bruins never trailed in the game although Buffalo recovered from a two-goal deficit in the first period to tie the game heading into the final 20 minutes.

Veteran winger Don Marcotte snapped the tie midway through the final period by backhanding the puck over a mass of bodies in front of the Sabre net.

Defenceman Rick Smith, who returned to the Bruins this season after a stay in the World Hockey Association, cinched the victory with an unassisted goal with less than five minutes remaining.

Terry O'Reilly and Jean Ratelle, playing in his 999th NHL game, also scored for the Bruins and Jim Schoenfeld and Rene Robert replied for the Sabres, who were outshot 28-20.

In another key game, Atlanta Flames took a big step toward a playoff spot by scoring their first win in three years over Philadelphia Flyers at the Spectrum.

It was a 4-1 decision and stretched an Atlanta winning run to four games. The Georgia club now has a nine-point lead over New York Rangers in the battle for third place in the Patrick Division and each team has eight games left.

Eric Vail scored what proved to be the winner at 26 seconds of the second period, blasting a 30-foot slapshot behind Wayne Stephenson. It was the 30th goal of the season for the husky leftwinger, Calder Cup winner in 1975.

Ken Houston, Curt Bennett and rookie Dave Shand scored the other Atlanta goals and Harvey Bennett was the only marksman for the lacklustre Flyers, who lead the New York Islanders by three points in the fight for Patrick Division honors.

In a late game, Los Angeles Kings evened their record at 29-29-14 by scoring a 3-2 win over the visiting Detroit Red Wings.

Fans won't let Ilie change

LAKEWAY, Tex. (SP) — Romanian tennis star Ilie Nastase says he wants to change his "Nasty" image but fans and reporters won't let him.

"Everywhere I go, almost always the crowd is against me because of my reputation," says the world's No. 3-ranked player.

"They expect from me swear words and gestures. Everybody else swears, but I always get caught. I always pay the fines.

"Jimmy Connors is no angel. But he is an American. I am Romanian, so people are always out to get me. It is written badly in the papers whether I behave or I don't."

Baseball reserves belt big homers

Dave Revering and Dane Lorg, pair of little-known reserve infielders, belted grand-slam home runs Thursday to help Cincinnati and Philadelphia to exhibition baseball victories.

Revering unloaded his homer in the fifth inning as the Reds rocked Houston Astros 10-1. Steve Henderson hit a pair of solo homers and Joe Morgan had one for Cincinnati.

Lorg, pinch hitting for slugger Greg Luzinski, capped a five-run seventh inning with his homer as the Phillies whipped Toronto Blue Jays 12-6. Garry Maddox contributed two doubles to the Phils' attack.

Elsewhere, Tommy Smith had four hits and drove in four runs as Seattle Mariners outlasted San Francisco Giants, 13-11, in 10 innings.

Vikings close in on playoff spot

University of Victoria Vikings virtually clinched the final playoff spot in the first division of the Vancouver Island Rugby Union Thursday by scoring a 25-6 win over Castaways at UVic.

Vikings, who play their last schedule game against winless Velox, lead Castaways by two points and Castaways must face second-place Cowichan.

Ian Reston, Alistair Palmer, Reg Moore, Tom Gordon and Ian Benson scored tries for the Vikings, who held an 8-6 lead at the half and Brent Johnston kicked a penalty goal and conversion.

Barbara Ann 'home'

Barbara Ann was world champion in 1947 and won the Olympics title in 1948, aged 19 in a Switzerland snowfall.

Thursday, she attended a preview of the first of three films resurrecting great moments in Canadian sport including her own career.

Barbara Ann, married to a Chicago resident, has lived in the United States for the last 20 years, trains riding horses and has retained her Canadian citizenship.

Ottawa gave her a yellow convertible with licence 47U1 after she won the world championship in 1947, but she declined it to hold her amateur status for the 1948 world championships and Olympic Games.

When she returned from the 1948 competitions a double winner, she accepted the automobile, which had a new license number—48U12.

Bays outlast Mission to reach semi-final

By REG REYNOLDS

VANCOUVER — Oak Bay Bays dressed in their solid green uniforms for St. Patrick's Day but their lucky charm was Japanese.

A flock of fabric birds, a gift to the team from Japanese exchange students, adorned the Oak Bay bench Thursday as the Island champions scored a hard-fought 80-62 win over Mission Roadrunners in a quarter-final match of the B.C. high school boys basketball tournament at Pacific Coliseum.

Victory puts the Bays, who are seeking a record-tying fifth provincial title, into the semi-finals of the 32nd annual extravaganza. They meet Kelowna Owls, who defeated Centennial Centaurs of Coquitlam, 60-50, at 9 p.m. today.

The other semi-final will have Vancouver College Fighting Irish meeting Princess Margaret Lions of Surrey.

The Fighting Irish nipped Rutland Voodoos 68-67 in overtime with Mike Arnold sinking two free throws with only a few seconds showing on the clock.

Rutland had scored at the buzzer to tie the score at 61-6 and force the extra time.

Princess Margaret posted a 91-69 win over South Peace Penguins of Dawson Creek, the team which upset Burnaby South on Wednesday.

Luck wasn't a factor against the Roadrunners as the Bays showed poise and superior skill to down the pesky Mission squad.

"We played well," said coach Don Horwood, "and I was proud of the way the boys fought back under adversity."

The Oak Bay coach was alluding to the way the Bays came through despite being in foul trouble in the second half.

Oak Bay led 43-34 at the half but Ken Kirzinger, Craig Higgins and Tom Sinnot were burdened by fouls through most of the final 15 minutes.

Kirzinger took his third foul early in the third quarter and Horwood replaced the big centre with Kelly Dykeshire. The Bays weren't as effective without the six-foot-six Kirzinger and Horwood brought him back early in the fourth quarter.

But he took his fourth foul a short time and returned to the bench with 8:50 remaining.

With the Bays' top rebounder out, Mission chipped away at the lead and with four minutes remaining, Oak Bay was up only 67-62.

Kirzinger returned to action, took control of the boards and scored seven points as Oak Bay held a 13-0 edge through to the buzzer.

Higgins led the Bays with 27 points and Kirzinger and Sinnot each added 18 points.

Herman Braich scored 20 points for Mission and Walter Stein contributed 16.

"Mission played an excellent game and it was much closer than the final score indicated," said Horwood.

About third-ranked Kelowna, Horwood said: "We played them earlier this year and beat them by a point but we're playing much better now than we were then."

St. Patrick's Day was a good one for Nanaimo Islanders but it spelled the end of the road for Island-runnerup Spectrum, competing in its first B.C. final.

Nanaimo stayed alive in the battle for fifth place by edging Cranbrook 71-66 while Burnaby South Rebels downed Spectrum 110-81.

Islanders play Point Grey Greyhounds at 1:15 p.m. today.

Burnaby South's 110 points are a tournament record for a single game and gurad J. C. Kootnekoff's 46 points were 12 off the record set by Sam Vandermulen of Abbotsford in 1965.

In other consolation round play, Argyle Pipers of North Vanocuver defeated Terrace Kermodes 96-87 and Point Grey trimmed Burnaby North Vikings 70-68.

The tournament concludes Saturday night.

Home Lumber rallies after defence switch

SASKATOON — Defending-champion Victoria Home Lumber needed several strategy changes thursday before scoring an opening-round win in the Canadian senior women's basketball championship.

The B.C. champions were hard-pressed by a stubborn Nova Scotia squad before pulling away late in the fourth quarter for a 78-67 victory. Home Lumber must play Quebec at noon today and Alberta this evening to complete the round-robin portion of its schedule.

The top two teams from each of the four-team divisions advance to championship-round action on Saturday and Sunday.

Playing a man-to-man defence, Home Lumber trailed by 10 points in the first half but a switch to a zone helped reduce the margin to 40-35 at the break.

The Victoria squad pulled even at 60-60 with about six minutes to play and, after it got a fast break working, scored eight baskets and eased to the victory.

Angie Dobie played a fine two-way game for Victoria, scoring 19 points and grabbing 14 rebounds while Dee Freethy scored 16 points and Mary Coutts added 12.

In other first-round games, Saskatchewan edged Manitoba 68-66, Ontario topped Newfoundland 78-52 and Alberta nipped Quebec 64-59.

Alberta, British Columbia, Nova Scotia and Quebec are grouped together in Division A while Manitoba, Newfoundland, Ontario and Saskatchewan comprise Division B.

VICTORIA (78) — Donna Blackstock, Marilyn Bond, Larraine Tuthe, Angie Dobie 19, Diana Morris 2, Rose Jossul 2, Gail Klaver 10, Dee Freethy 16, Lorna McHattie 11, Mary Coutts 12, Wendy Grant 6.

B.C. suffers loss in junior curling

WINNIPEG (CP)— Bob Sigurdson of Manitoba knocked British Columbia from the undefeated ranks when the Winnipeg rink upset Gary Smart of North Vancouver 5-3 Thursday night in the tenth round of the Canadian junior men's curling championship.

Alberta pulled into a first place tie with B.C. at 9-1 when Paul Gowsell of Calgary downed Quebec's Alain Guy 6-3 to set the stage for a possible playoff today.

Sigurdson made two clutch draws in the final end against B.C., the second into the four-foot with his last rock, and Smart was wide with a takeout attempt that, if successful, would have given him three and the win.

Manitoba, now 7-3, led 4-3 after six ends and Smart blanked the next three ends in search of a big end. Third Peter Sloan made a difficult takeout to leave B.C. lying four in the tenth, but Sigurdson came through in the clutch.

Guy and his Three Rivers rink gave Alberta a tough game until the sixth end when Gowsell counted two. He stole another in the eighth to send Quebec to its seventh loss.

Earlier Thursday, Smart ran his record to 9-0 with a 5-3 win over a stubborn New Brunswick while Alberta struggled to a 6-4 decision over The Territories.

Salmon fishing success is starting to taper, but trout in the lakes are starting to come alive as spring starts to burst into bloom.

Salmon fishermen in the lower Island waters have experienced a dramatic drop in success — from 2.2 fish to a boat at the end of February to 1.3 fish to a boat last weekend. And success has been dropping each week.

But the occasional fish of fair size is being taken and the big chinooks should show in a week or so. Meanwhile a population of under-sized grilse has been building up off Victoria and Sooke.

Last weekend Sooke anglers recorded a miserable .6 fish to a boat average. Off Victoria success was 1.8, off Oak Bay 1.6, off Sidney 1.1, and in Saanich Inlet only .93.

Spin-casters off the rocks at Ten Mile Point have been meeting with success with salmon up to 12 pounds.

In Saanich Inlet the odd angler has been picking up a fair-sized chinook along the wall between Tod Inlet and Willis Point.

At Cowichan, anglers going very deep have been picking up the odd big chinook in Sansum Narrows but success on the smaller fish has dropped considerable.

Bright spot of the weekend was at Campbell River where Ross Spiers picked up a 30-pound chinook Saturday trolling on a fly on the surface in Willow Point waters.

Generally cooler weather has brought rivers down to low levels again, but the Cowichan is holding well and producing some March run steelhead.

Quamichan and Somenos have been good bets for trout and Cowichan River has been good for big trout, especially around the river mouths. A good spot has been around the mouth of Robertson River at Bear Lake, off the dropoff with paste or worm. Trollers have been getting them along the bars with blue Rapalas, lake trolls and small spoons.

On Saturday we saw Bob White and Gordon Richards trolling in Langford Lake and they waved a three-pound bass at us as we drove down our driveway.

The Chinook Club will hold a Frostbite Derby in Saanich Inlet Sunday, dawn to 2 p.m.

Regional Game biologist Daryl Hebert will talk on game management and collared deer experiments in the Nimpkish at Monday night's meeting of the Victoria Fish and Game Club, 8 p.m. Ingraham Hotel.

Big Qualicum Indian band is seeking a tri-party meeting between the band and federal and provincial officials, which it says would help clarify the band's position on the river-mouth reserve and set regulations for the possible use of Indian land by non-band members in the future.

Last year the Indians put a no-trespassing ban on its reserve lands in the lower reaches of the Big Qualicum, considered the best fishing part of the river.

The band, in a press release, also notes another reason for "strictly defining our property lines is that our band is getting large and in turn our needs will increase as our children reach maturity and start seeking employment."

"Our band is small and cannot support the population of the band unless the council maintains control over the land which we now have," the release explains.

"Until we can arrange a meeting and come up with a solution which will accommodate our band needs, conserve the stock of the river, preserve our land for future generations and satisfy the needs of sports fishermen the Big Qualicum River within the boundary of the Qualicum Indian Reserve will remain closed," it states.

Martina adjusting to new life

DALLAS (AP) — Two years ago Martina Navratilova was a Czechoslovakian amateur with a $17 per diem expenses and a fantastic tennis game.

Today the young expatriate is a Texan who loves the Dallas Cowboys football team and lives in a $125,000 home with a swimming pool.

When she moved to Dallas late last year, Navratilova was going through a difficult time in her life. She had just defected to the United States, was away from her family and her game had suffered.

It was a time of adjustment to her new freedom, she admitted this week. She gained weight and lost matches she should have won.

She still is trying to regain her tennis and physical form, but she is beginning to enjoy life.

A setback that hurt her was her first round loss to Kathy May in the Dallas tournament last week. She came back, however, to win the doubles title with Betty Stove.

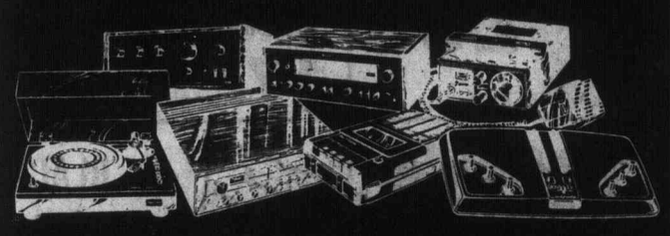

A friend says Navratilova has shed 25 of the pounds she gained last year.

"She looks like a diferent person in the body and it is reflected in the mind. As her dressmaker I have taken up her dresses 6½ inches in the waist."

Navratilova also has improved her relations with the press. After she turned 20 recently, she said: "They can't write that I am a typical teenager in jeans any more, can they?"

New Whitecap manager optimistic

Victoria Cup match here on March 26

By STAN COOPER

From fair to good to better to Best.

That's how it has gone for Vancouver Whitecaps, now starting their fourth season in the North American Soccer League.

Athough improving their record each year and reaching the playoffs in 1976, Whitecaps have been a less-than-sensational hit at the turnstiles, averaging between 8000-10,000 fans per game in 30,000-seat Empire Stadium.

That has been partly the fault of a front office loaded with former Canadian Football League executives with little soccer background, but that situation is changing.

It started last year with the hiring of international-calibre coach Eckhadd Krautzun, the stern west German who coached Canada's national team for about two years.

And the progress continued in the off-season with the addition of John Best as general manager. Best, a former English League player has been in the NASL since 1967 and latterly served as coach of the highly-successful Seattle Sounders.

Best was here Thursday to help promote the annual charity match between the Whitecaps and Vancouver Island Soccer League Selects. The game is set for Saturday, March 26, at Royal Athletic Park with a 2:30 p.m. kickoff.

Net proceeds will be divided between the Lions Easter Seals Telethon and the Lower Island Juvenile Soccer Association on a 75-25 basis.

It's the third annual match for the Victoria Cup, donated by C-FAX, and Whitecaps have two victories, a 2-1 decision over Los Angeles Aztecs in 1975 and a 2-0 win over the Selects last year.

While declining to pick a winner, Best told a media gathering he expects to field a strong side for the game.

Doubtful starters are goalkeeper Graham Moseley (Derby County) and defender Peter Simpson (Arsenal), two English Leaguers who have playing commitments in Britain.

"We have an excellent nucleus of players — perhaps the best North American players in the league — and we'll have two other signings to announce in a few days," Best said.

Best believes the Whitecaps lacked scoring punch last year and expects Krautzun, who has been on an extensive tour of Europe, will have the players he wants when he returns home this weekend.

"Imported players are only part of the solution," Best added "and we're always on the lookout for good Canadian players, including some from this area."

Whitecaps have signed Victorians Brian Robinson, who turned pro last season, and Bob Bolitho, a member of the Canadian Olympic team, and they tried out goalkeeper Ted Van Waes, another Vancouver Island Soccer League product, in an exhibition game on the weekend.

"We require a backup goalkeeper and I feel Van Waes has a good chance," Best said.

One of Best's priorities is the establishment of the reserve team for young Canadians not quite ready for the ever-improving NASL.

"It was a success in Seattle and its an absolute must for Vancouver."

But Best's main task is to lay a solid foundation for soccer in Vancouver and other parts of the province and, although a lot depends on the team's performance, he believes getting the fans into the park will help considerably.

He has cut ticket prices this season, with choice seats still $6 and others (all under cover) ranging down to $3, a reduction of $1, and special consideration for children and pensioners.

The plan has been well received as season-ticket sales have reached 1500, about 500 more than in 1976.

"But season tickets aren't our prime objective as there's plenty of room for fans, and all under cover."

There has been a change in prices for the Victoria Cup match, with adults again paying $2.50 but children and pensioners only $1.

University of Victoria Viking coach Brian Hughes will again handle the Selects and Hughes said he will have a squad of about 16 VISL players picked by the middle of next week.

Umpires plan annual meeting

Election of an umpire-in-chief for District I heads the agenda for the annual meeting of the Greater Victoria Baseball Umpires Association, Sunday at Mayfair Lanes.

All umpires with a 1976 ticket are eligible to vote at the meeting, scheduled to start at 8 p.m.

Baseball stubs toe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Baseball, which had its anti-trust exemption studied by the House of Representatives last year, has again stubbed its toe in Congress with commissioner Bowie Kuhn's refusal to let New York Yankees play an exhibition game in Cuba.

In a speech Thursday, Rep. Thomas J. Downey, Dem-N.Y., describing himself as a lifelong Yankee fan, said Kuhn's actions have struck a "serious blow to the image of baseball."

"Commissioner Kuhn has needlessly antagonized the Congress by his actions," said the Long Island congressman. "Baseball's political friends in Congress are frankly shocked by the commissioner's head-in-the-sand approach to baseball and diplomacy. His actions, unfortunately, confirm the public's suspicion that baseball is a business and not a sport."

Downey and Rep. Jonathan Bingham, Dem.-N.Y., had circulated a letter for signatures among their colleagues which they planned to send to Kuhn Thursday. It requests the commissioner to reconsider his actions. However, Kuhn has been quoted as saying he didn't see any reason for changing his position.

The letter says Kuhn's actions "do nothing to improve baseball's image and may have set back attempts to improve relations with Cuba."

The Cuban government invited the Yankees to play exhibition games on the island but, despite state departmental approval, Kuhn refused to permit the New York club to go, saying he preferred to have an all-star team make the trip.

Tiant rejoins Red Sox today

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Luis Tiant, the Boston Red Sox right-handed pitching ace, is ending a three-week boycott of spring training with the American League baseball team.

An apparent compromise was reached Thursday in Tiant's demands for an extension of his current contract, which calls for $180,000 a year through the 1977 season.

"I was with Dick O'Connell until early this morning and we came close to reaching an agreement — close enough to have Luis go to camp tomorrow," Woolf said by telephone from New York during a stopover on a flight north from Florida.

Tiant is reported to have been demanding a two-year contract extension through 1979 but the Red Sox balked mainly because of his age — 37 in November. Best guesses are that Luis settled for one extra year, through 1978.

Alberta girls capture title

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Cathy King's foursome from Edmonton won the Canadian girls curling championship title Thursday even though they lost their final game. They had a 9-1 win-loss record. Alberta clinched the title in the 10th-round morning draw with a 12-1 win over Prince Edward Island in a game which was conceded after six ends.

Ontario, the last team to play Alberta and until the 10th round the only team with a shot at upsetting the leaders, won the final game 6-4 earning a tie with Saskatchewan for second place. Both teams finished with 7-3 records.

Manitoba, at one point in the lead with a 4-0 record, finished with a 5-5 performance, tied with Quebec after fourth-place Nova Scotia which rallied from a shakey start and finished 6-4.

British Columbia and Newfoundland finished with 4-6 records, New Brunswick was 3-7 and the Yukon-Northwest Territories team won two of 10 games. This was the first year of competition for Yukon-Northwest Territories.

Australia wins test match

MELBOURNE (Reuter) — Australia won the Centenary cricket test against England Thursday by 45 runs after the game swung back and forth on a gripping last day.

The winning margin was exactly the same as when Australia won the first test between the two countries in 1877.

England's bid to win the match faltered after tea when they lost five wickets for 41 runs to be all out for 417.

The match ended when England wicketkeeper Alan Knott was trapped leg before wicket by fast bowler Dennis Lillee in the second of the last 15 overs of the match.

The Australians rushed up and carried Lillee from the field after his magnificent bowling display. He took six for 26 in the first innings and followed up with five for 139 in the second.

The special test was the only match against Australia on a brief visit by England following a victorious tour of India. Australia visits England on a full tour later this year.

Scores: Australia 138 and 419 for nine declared; England 95 and 417.

Hanratty quits football

TERRY HANRATTY, a former quarterback for the National Football League's Pittsburgh Steelers, has announced his retirement after playing part of the 1976 season with the 0-14 expansion Tampa Bay Buccaneers. Hanratty's agent said the 29-year-old, eight-year veteran was quitting to pursue unspecified business opportunities . . . Saskatchewan Roughriders of the CFL have signed veteran defence linemen Tim Roth and Jesse O'Neil to new contracts . . . Davy Lad gave Mick O'Toole, his Irish trainer, a fine St. Patrick's Day by winning the Cheltenham (England) Gold Cup steeplechase. Stewards held an inquiry into an incident at the last fence, where Davy Lad and Tied Cottage, who finished second, almost touched as they went over but the result was confirmed . . . Sixteen-year-old Lori Dirk of Coquitlam won the women's slalom of the Pontiac Cup ski final at Sutton, Quebec and moved into a commanding lead in the over-all standing . . . Portland Timbers picked Elson Seal and Tampa Bay Rowdies chose Dale Russell, a pair of forwards from Philadelphia Textile in the secondary stage of the North American Soccer League college draft. Seal was a first-round pick of Seattle Sounders in the primary draft and Russell was taken by Timbers but they failed to come to contract terms by the March 14 deadline and were placed in the secondary draft . . . Shortstop Fred Stanley has signed a three-year contract with New York Yankees leaving seven members of the American League baseball club still unsigned. They are Roy White, Sparky Lyle, Chris Chambliss, Dock Ellis, Oscar Gamble, Gene Locklear and Marty Perez.

Panthers bounce braves

Parkland Panthers strengthened their grip on first place Thursday in the Lt. Col Hodgins Division of the Victoria inter-high school rugby league.

Panthers travelled to Belmont and posted a 12-3 win over the Braves and increased their lead over second-place Reynolds to four points.

'Ban New Zealand'—Kenya

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuter) — The Kenya Amateur Athletics Association has called on the International Amateur Athletics Federation to keep New Zealand out of its competitions until that country severs sports links with South Africa.

Sam Ongeri, KAAA president, made the appeal Thursday in commenting on a statement by Adrian Paule, IAAF president, that if eight African countries entered in the international cross-country championships at Duesseldorf, West Germany, Sunday withdrew because of New Zealand's presence, he would propose that the African continental team be banned from the World Cup track-and-field meet in September.

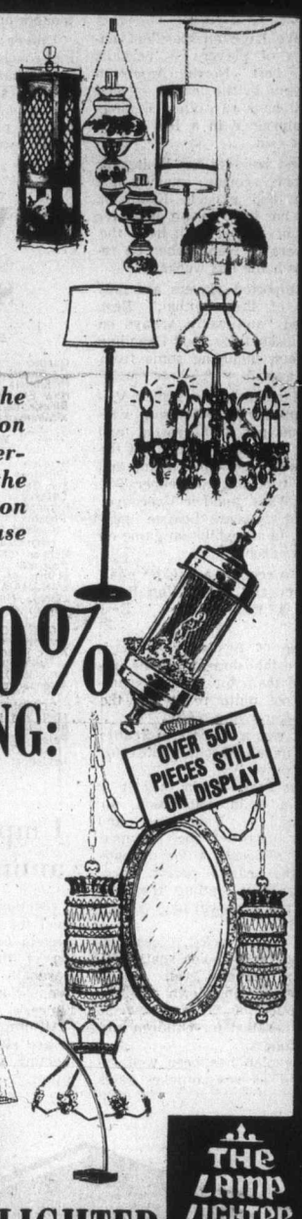

Ongeri described Paulen's statement as "a biased prejudgment of our case . . . a threat we can't stomach . . . a serious disregard against apartheid (racial segregation) in sport."

"I hope that the IAAF at its council meeting this weekend in Duesseldorf will consider the demerits and merits of our stand against New Zealand, and in the interest of preservation of human dignity in athletics, it should lock New Zealand out of its competitions," Ongeri said.

Teams from eight African countries — Uganda, Ethiopia, Sudan, Zambia, Tunisia, Algeria, Morocco and Nigeria — are entered in the cross-country championships.

Longshot grabs tourney lead

Tournament leader Mike McCullough

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Longshot Mike McCullough, who hasn't ceome close to winning in five years of tour activity, mastered the terrors and troubles of Sawgrass with a six-under-par 66 that staked him to a two-stroke lead in the first round of the $300,000 Tournament Players Championship Thursday.

McCullough, who played late in the day when the winds off the Atlantic were at their worst, birdied the last two holes to establish his advantage over Masters champion Ray Floyd, Tom Watson, already a two stroke lead in the first round of the McCullough, who played late in the day when the winds off the Atlantic were at their worst, birdied the last two holes to establish his advantage over Masters champion Ray Floyd, Tom Watson, already a two-time winner this year, and on bies, tied at 68.

"I hit some really fantastic golf shots," said Floyd, "but on this golf course a fantastic shot can get you a bogey. You can't expect to hit the greens. You can't expect to play textbook golf. To score, you've got to scramble."

He did just that, one-putting 13 times.

Watson agreed with Floyd's assessment of tough Sawgrass, 7174 yards of reclaimed march and swamp the tourists are playing for the first time.

"I was lucky to get in without getting in the really bad stuff, without visiting the snakes and alligators," Watson said. "It's a course you have to scramble on."

Another stroke back at 69 were tour newcomers Bill Kratzert and Ed Sabo, Australian veteran Bruce Devlin, who holed a 10-foot eagle putt on the final hole, and J. C. Snead, a runner-up in two of the three previous TPCs.

The rest of the best field of the year was strung out.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus shot a 73.

Some of the game's other greats were considerably more unhappy.

Johnny Miller had to rally for a 77. Bruce Lietzke, the year's leading money-winner and holder of two 1977 titles, took a double-bogey seven on the controversial fourth hole, played his front nine in 40 and had to settle for a 75.

Ben Crenshaw blew to a 79, one-stroke higher than PGA champion Dave Stockton and arnold Palmer. Hubert Green got around in 71, however, and Hale Irwin matched par 72.

McCreary sues Swig

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Former Cleveland Barons general-manager Bill McCreary has sued the owners of the National Hockey League club for $3.1 million on charges of slander and breach of contract.

In a suit filed in Summit County common pleas court, McCreary charged that after he was fired on Jan. 13, principal owner Mel Swig allegedly accused McCreary of stealing money from the club. McCreary says in the suit that Swig's comments were published in newspapers in Cleveland and San Francisco.

The former general-manager also charged that Swig reneged on his promise to carry out terms of his contract and that he was never reimbursed for expenses that should have been covered in the contract.

The suit asks for $2.5 million in punitive damages and the rest in compensatory damages.

Swig has said that McCreary was fired because he couldn't handle the club's business and hockey functions.

City to sue Jets, Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City plans to sue New York Jets to keep them from shifting two of their regular-season National Football League home games from Shea Stadium to Giants Stadium in New Jersey. The city also plans to sue baseball's New York Mets.

A spokesman for Leon Hess, president of the NFL team, called the proposed suit "illogical" and once again accused the Mets of reneging on an agreement for the sharing of Shea.

"I will permit the Jets to break their lease and play regularly scheduled home games away from Shea Stadium," Mayor Abraham Beame told a news conference Thursday. He said motions for preliminary injunctions and temporary restraining orders, to be filed in state supreme court, would also be sought by Friday against the Mets of baseball's National League, the NFL and the New Jersey Sports Authority, owner of Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J., where the NFL New York Giants play their home games.

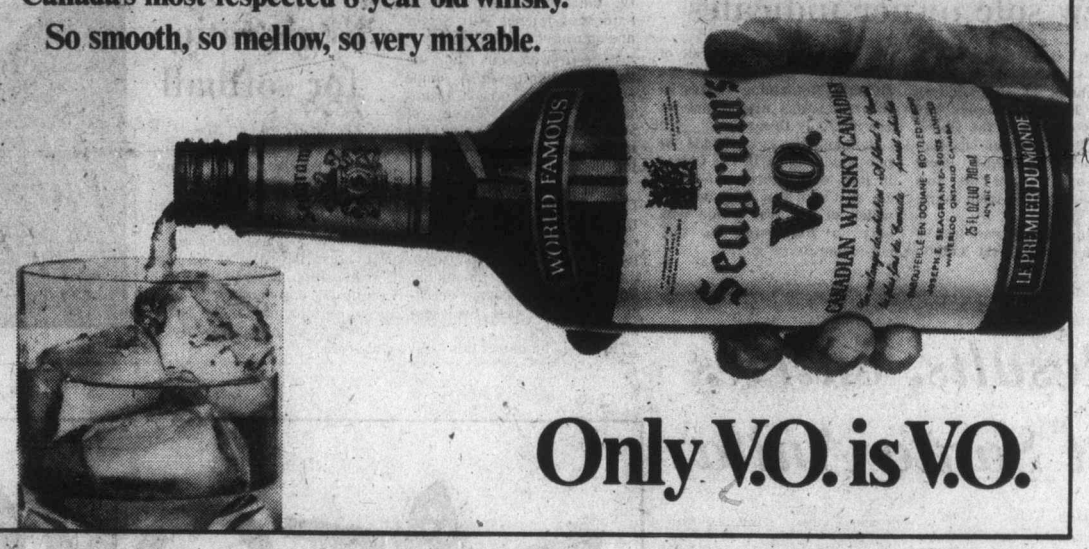

The whole problem surrounds the overlapping of the baseball and football seasons. The Mets, primary tenants at Shea since the stadium was completed in 1964, claim football might damage the natural turf. The Jets have offered to finance the cost of putting down synthetic turf. The Mets have rejected the offer.

Bulgaria wins

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Bulgaria defeated Belgium 17-4 on the sixth day of the nine-day world Class C hockey championship Thursday to move into second place behind Italy. Belgium has lost all four of its matches so far.

Jays confident youth policy will produce fast results

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — The newly hatched Toronto Blue Jays expect to struggle through their initial season on shaky legs with the youngest team and front office in baseball.

But Roy Hartsfield, a rookie manager at age 51, rejects the idea that his fuzzy-faced kids might rank among the worst first-year clubs in major league history.

"We figure we will be the youngest team in either league, but we feel we can come along faster than any expansion team of the past," said Hartsfield, who will be relying on 20 years of background in the Los Angeles Dodgers organization.

Based on past performances, baseball fans have come to expect the worst from first-year entries.

The ragamuffin 1962 New York Mets suffered through a season of pratfalls and hilarity on their way to a 40-120 record — the worst finish ever by a major-league club.

Seven years later, when the Mets were winning a world series, San Diego Padres and Montreal Expos entered the National League with identical 51-110 records.

The best maiden season by an American League team came in 1961 when Los Angeles Angels finished at 70-91. Last year, Kansas City Royals won a division title in their eighty year of existence.

While Hartsfield doesn't feel the American League did any favors for Toronto or Seattle Mariners in helping to stock the two expansion clubs, he is convinced the decision to go with youth will pay off.

"We decided to draft as young and as long as we could," he said.

"We've got just enough veterans to give us some stability," he added, ticking off the names of pitcher Bill Singer and journeyman Ron Fairly.

"The first day out I told the squad I didn't see a single postion locked up or promised to anyone. We've got some horse races going out there, and that has to be a healthy situation."

Hired away from the San Diego Padres' Triple A farm team in Hawaii, Hartsfield directed minor league teams to first-place finishes seven times in 13 years, including Pacific Coast League championships the last two seasons.

He said fundamentals and sustaining a winning attitude are the prime goals of the new organization headed by 34-year-old club president Peter Bavasi.

"Naturally, we're going to have some losing streaks, but we don't want our people doubting their ability," he said. "They have to remember that Pete Rose and Joe Morgan didn't break in as overnight successes."

Hartsfield said he would not trade places with any manager in baseball.

"We're starting from the ground level and we have a good organization. That appeals to me. I just wish I was 20 years old."

One Kamloops club to move new sole owner indicates

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A former shareholder of Kamloops Chiefs of the Western Canada Hockey League, who now has control of the Chiefs and its British Columbia Junior Hockey League farm team, says one of the two teams may move from Kamloops.

Ephram Steinke now has 90 per cent control of the Chiefs, and 65 per cent control of Kamloops Braves of the BCJHL. Remaining shares in the two teams are owned by lawyer Andy Berna.

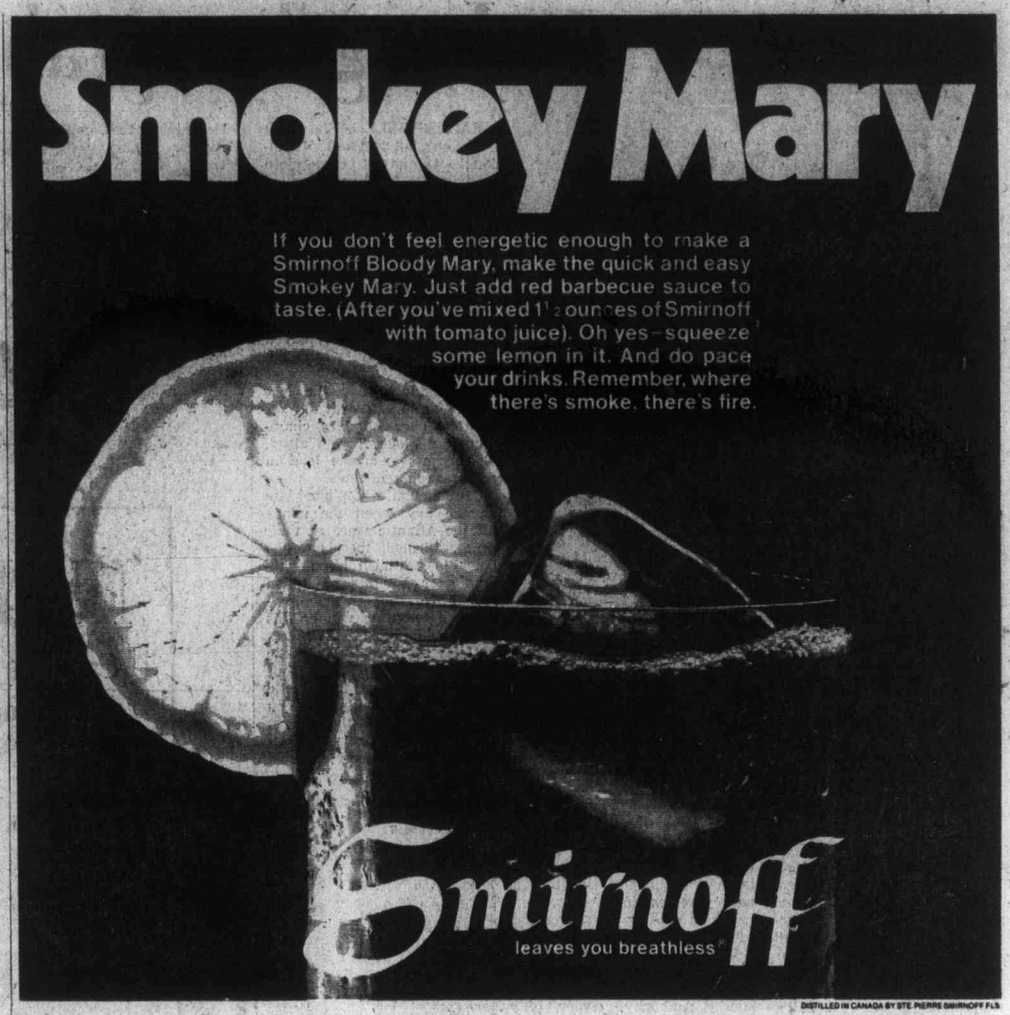

Steinke, who gave up his 40-per-cent interest in the Chiefs in 1976, said Thursday he will be making a decision on which of the two teams will stay in Kamloops. He did not elaborate.

Cauthen mount scores

NEW YORK (AP) — Very Distinguished, ridden by Steve Cauthen, rallied in the stretch to score a track-record victory by three-quarters of a length over Honorable Guest, the favorite, in Thursday's $18,000 Shamrock Purse at Aqueduct.

The three-year-old son of Stevward-Meadow Queen, owned by Sigmund Sommer, carried 110 pounds through the 1 1-16th miles in 1:43, cutting three-fifth of a second off the mark shared by Blue Times and Due Diligence.

It was Cauthen's 147th local winner and his 160th over-all this season, and was the year's 50th purse for Sommer and trainer Frank 'Pancho' Martin.

Some bargains in nutrition

MONTREAL (CP) — Consumers who cut purchases of expensive items need not worry about getting the required nutrients in their diet, says dietitian Helene Tremblay, if they substitute processed fruit and vegetables and if the rest of their diet contains a variety of foods.

Vitamins B and C are more sensitive to air and light than other vitamins, she said.

In winter consumers are never sure of the nutrients present as they're influenced by transportation time and the way produce is stored.

She said vitamin C content of oranges increases also at the fruit matures on the tree. picked for shipment, the vitamin C content is not that high.

Ms. Tremblay is president of the recently formed L'Association des Dietetists Autonomes du Quebec, which numbers about 70 private practising dietitians around the province.

To be sure you're getting enough vitamin C, she tells her patients, use frozen and canned orange juice in the winter. High quality, mature fruit is used for processing.

Four ounces of orange juice provides all the vitamin C an adult requires for the day.

Potatoes, are also a good source. One medium potato, peeled after baking because the vitamin C is right under the skin, will provide two thirds of the required amount as will one cup of mashed potato.

A medium banana supplies about a third of the day's requirement.

The B complex vitamins provided by vegetables are also present in whole grain breads and cereals and meat.

I'm for the world—Cardin

By JUDY CREIGHTON
CP Family Editor

TORONTO (CP) — Pierre Cardin, the French designer who brought high fashion into ready-to-wear 17 years ago, says that the popularity of blue jeans has been dangerous to the fashion industry.

"And jeans aren't fashion," he said in an interview. "Designers can do nothing about this revolution. I can do nothing about jeans."

The 55-year-old Cardin, whose signature now appears on a range of products from facial tissue and chocolates to furniture, jewelry and automobile interiors, said he does not consider it crass or over-commercial to lend his name because "it makes good business sense."

"I am one of the fashion leaders in the world and when people buy Cardin they know tye are buying quality."

Although he continues to dress many of the richest men and women in the world, Cardin said his main business interests are in the ready-to-wear field.

He said that most ot the top Paris fashion designers who have entered the ready-to-wear business are copying him and placing their signatures on everything from swimwear to T-shirts and scarves.

"But a lot of my clothes don't bear my signature on the outside, but Pierre Cardin's label is on the inside," he said.

Cardin has 346 factories in 46 countries producing his clothing and accessories. He employs 70,000 people.

"People were shocked when I went into ready-to-wear," he said.

"But I could see the writing on the wall, that haute couture — high fashion — would eventually die. Yet, people, many people, want quality and I could see the need."

He said that he has designed versions of the miniskirt for summer but "I only see that length on 16-year-old girls."

ann landers

Dear Ann Landers: There has bben a great deal of palaver lately about the "rat" who takes advantage of an innocent young girl. I cringe at your sanctimonious (but tardy) counsel — "she should have given him the bum's rush before she got pregnant." You have also been a strong proponent of birth-control information for girls who are sexually active.

Now will you please advise a young boy on how to avoid becoming trapped by an overly aggresive girl? Stress the signals for him to heed so he can "buzz off." And will you also remind him of his responsibility to use contraceptives no matter what the girl says?

Too often the boy is the object of "long-range planning" by a girl and her mother — and he is devastated when faced with an unwanted marriage or 21 years of child-support. Just ask me. I know all about it because I'm — The Boy's Mother.

Dear Mother: I have repeatedly emphasized the wisdom of both partners taking precautions against not only pregnancy but VD. I welcome the opportunity to do so again.

As for the signals to "buzz off" — sorry, dear, each individual knows his threshold of tolerance. The problem isn't in recognizing the signals but in mustering the self-discipline to stop short of the goal line.

Dear Ann Landers: A woman who started to work here last month has a southern accent so thick you could cut it with a knife. The men hang around her desk by the droves because she talks "so darlin'." Please tell the Southerners who come up north to learn to speak English. — Red, White and Blue.

Red, White and Blue: You sound green — with envy. The southern accent is very much "in" these days — and I love it.

Many workers lack pensions

Industry recoils at cutback

Canada Pension Plan: Is it the solution?

By JOHN FERGUSON
Last of Three

OTTAWA (CP) — A political battle is developing over how to provide for everybody retirement incomes deemed adequate.

One side favors improving the benefits of the Canada Pension Plan (CPP), the only one that covers every worker in the country. It now pays $2,100 a year at age 65.

The other side says the CPP benefits should be kept low, with private plans providing most retirement income.

Those who argue for private pensions — primarily the insurancde and trust companies that provide them and the investment experts who watch over their assets — want to keep pension fund money in the private sector.

As R. C. Dowsett, president of Crown Life Insurance Co., put it before a Hamilton, Ont., business audience: "Less reliance on governments — not more — is what is called for."

Robert Andras, president of the treasury board, says the expansion of the CPP "may be one of the big social plan thrusts of the future."

Improvements

Improvements in the benefits paid by the Canada Pension Plan have already been urged by the national Liberal Party in a motion passed at its November, 1975, conference. The 2.2-million-member Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) has also strongly supported an expanded CPP.

But Andras says such a move cannot be taken without intensive study, including completion of a federal government review of the problems of private pensions. The study will look into problems of pension plans in times of high inflation, the basis of their funding and the amount of coverage that private plans offer their members.

Don Lee, assistant director of the CLC's legislation branch, says private pensions have performed so badly that no Canadian worker can depend upon them for a financially-secure retirement.

He says there are more than 15,000 different private pension plans, all paying different benefits. The best tend to be those negotiated by strong unions in industries such as automobile manufacturing, steelmaking and mining industries that have the economic strength to pay them.

Exclusions

About 60 pert cent of the labor force are not members of pension plans at all. Many are employed in marginal industries, others are part-time workers and many work in such jobs as fishing and agriculture.

Among the over-65s who members of a private pension member sof a private pension plan, the average pension is less than $2,500 a year. More than half the pensioners over 65 need extra financial assistance from the federal government to make ends meet.

An expansion of the CPP would mean less money for private pensions. The private pension industry, which opposed the creation of the CPP in 1966, doesn't want to see the plan expanded.

In 1975, investments stood at more than $10 billion in bonds, more than $5 billion in stocks and nearly $2.5 billion in mortgages. The private pension funds were also invested in mutual funds and other short — and long-term investments. Total assets amount to $22 billion.

Investments

The industry argues it is a major source of the investment capital that Canada so badly needs and governments should be cautious not to interrupt it.

But Kevin Collins, an economist with the Canadian Council on Social Development, says the industry's importance in investment has been exaggerated.

He says capital investment totalled about $37 billion in Canada in 1975. Personal savings accounted for about $9 billion, of which only about a third came from private pension funds. More significant are such things as re-invested company profits.

Lee says the investment argument "has nothing at all to do with providing adequate retirement income."

"If we have an investment problem in this country, and I'm sure we have, then let's deal with that as a problem and not penalize pensioners because of it."

Supporters of expanded CPP benefits says the federal plan must be used to improve retirement pensions because it is the only one that covers just about everyone. Those between the ages of 18 and 70 earning more than about $20 a week are covered by the plan in every province except Quebec, which administers its own plan. The Quebec Pension Plan served as the model for the CPP and is virtually identical.

Portability

The CPP is also completely portable so that an employee who changes jobs doesn't lose any pension credits as now happens with most private plans. It is also indexed to rise with inflation so doesn't lose buying power.

Defenders of the private system argue that to extend the benefits of the CPP would be placing an unfair burden on future generations because the government-run plan is not fully funded.

By law, all private plans must place contributions into a fund to be invested so that if a plan ceased to exist, there would be enough money to pay benefits to current members.

The CPP is a partial "pay-as-you-go" system. Current contributions are higher than the amount now paid out in pensions. The surplus is lent to the provinces at favorable interest rates. In 1976, about $1.5 billion was borrowed from the fund by the provinces.

Unless the government increases the contribution rate — some have predicted this will happen — the fund will have to be subsidized from general government revenue within 20 years because more people will be drawing benefits.

Savings cut

Robert MacIntosh, executive vice-president of the Bank of Nova Scotia, wrote last year that "pay-as-you-go financing of pensions, would of course, by reducing savings and investment now, also reduce the level of output possible a generation hence, so adding further to the burden."

Joan Brown, who conducted an extensive study of pensions for the Canadian Council on Social Development, says any assessment of the costs of public pension schemes should recognize the costs of private plans.

She says companies pass on the costs of their plans in the form of higher prices. And since contributions to private plans by both employer and employee are tax deductible, there is a reduction in tax revenue.

Population

She said in her study that because these costs are passed along, the private pension system, which covers only 40 per cent of the work force "is in fact supported by the total working population."

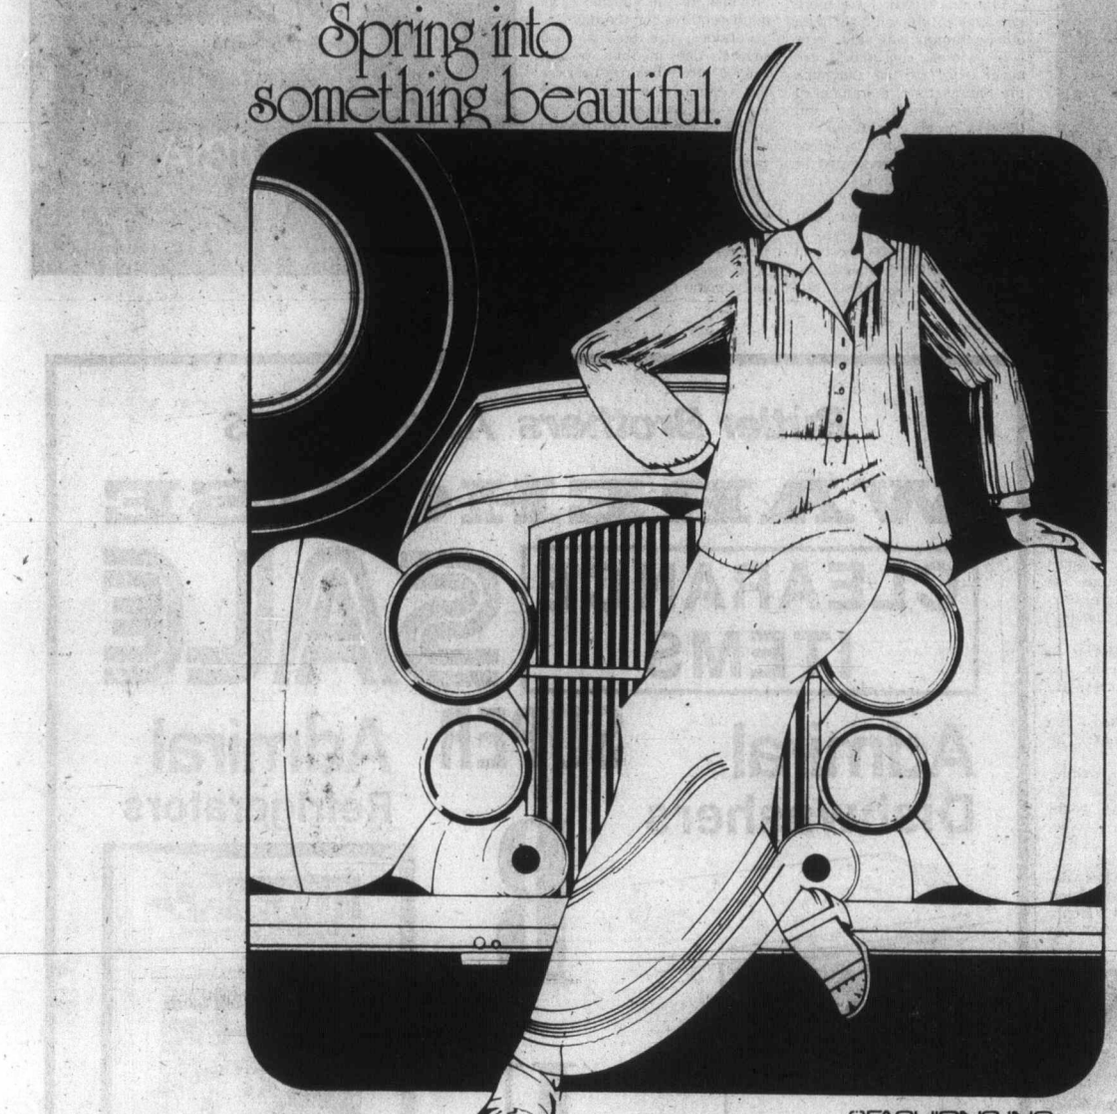

"We're very short on unbiased information on the economic effects of a shift to better government-run pensions."

She said she hopes the federal study of private pensions now under way will produce more balanced information so that the question of how to provide a better retirement income for all Canadians can be debated publicly.

Economist Collins says he doubts the technical arguments will ever resolve the issue because there are strong arguments on both sides.

"There are a lot of lobbies working on this issue," he said. "They are the ones with the most facility with the technical jargon and they can intimidate easily."

He says it's time for the issue to be debated by the non-experts — the public and the politicians.

Energy policy revamped

Carter rules out fuel independence

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — U.S. President Carter scuttled the last shreds of the Nixon-Ford energy independence movement Thursday, saying U.S. oil "may be more precious in the long run" if left in the ground than produced now to replace foreign oil.

Visiting an energy symposium held in the distressed Appalachian coal country, Carter said the U.S. must make an "inevitable major shift" from oil and natural gas to coal as its main energy supply.

The president's statements gave key clues to the comprehensive new energy policy he will announce April 20. Carter acknowledged the sacrifices he intends to demand could cost him some popularity.

Later, Carter stressed that prospect of unpopular public sacrifice when he talked with reporters en route to New York for a UN appearance.

"It's not going to please everybody, but there's no way to avoid it," he said of the demands that will be included in his energy proposals.

"It will change substantially the lifestyle of the American people . . . I'm going to take as much of the disapproval and disappointment of the American people on myself as president, to make it easier on Congress."

In Charleston, Carter outlined what he sees as an unavoidable shift back to coal as a primary energy resource.

"We now have 90 per cent of our energy reserves in coal and only 18 per cent of the energy we use comes from coal," he said. "The one inevitable major shift in the years ahead is away from oil and natural gas toward coal."

Carter abandoned the U.S. drive for energy independence, labelled by most energy experts as an impossible quest. Former U.S. president Richard Nixon launched the drive after the 1973 oil embargo, setting the goal of eliminating oil imports by 1985, and it was continued in modified form by Gerald Ford.

"I don't see any prospect or need for our country to be energy self-sufficient," Carter said.

With the price of oil what it is, he said, "the oil we leave in our ground may be more precious in the long run. Obviously we can cut down on the amount of oil we import."

His energy policy will be built on two key principles — conservation coupled with fuel efficiency; and a switch to more use of coal, the most bountiful domestic fuel, in the U.S.

Carter noted that recent public opinion polls have shown some 70 per cent of the Americans questioned approve the way he has conducted himself in office so far. He said that when he presents his April 20 energy proposal with its call for national sacrifices "we may slip 10 to 15 points" in popularity.

Two-price policy urged in farming

Canadian agricultural policy should tread the middle ground between government control and free competition, members of the B.C. Institute of Agrology were told Thursday in Victoria.

A two-price policy would protect farm incomes, yet would ensure fair prices for consumers through market place competition, said Dr. Clayton Gilson, vice-president of research, graduate studies and special assignments at the University of Manitoba. He spoke at the Strathcona Hotel.

Gilson said farmers should be given support up to a certain point of production. But farmers should also be free to produce at will, with goods above the guaranteed level competing in the marketplace.

"We should, in some explicit way, decide upon a reasonable level of support," Gilson said.

"I don't mean we should guarantee profits in the industry. We would give some support and after that commodities would be permitted a clear market.

"That is one way of reconciling the producers' and food consumers' interests in the country — some subsidy support plus a market clearing price.

"I don't think it would be wise to say to the farmer we will give price support at whatever level in a totally open-ended way. You have to say how much support you will give.

"An open-ended system would create more problems than it would solve. There should be some specified quantity beyond which the farmer could have the freedom to produce whatever he wanted and sell competitively through the marketplace."

Gilson, on a lecture tour of the country, said that up to the present all farm policy had been aimed at retaining marketplace competition and at making competition more effective.

Even farmers' co-operatives were designed to make the marketplace more competitive.

Some marketing boards, however, have been set up which manage both supply and prices.

Gilson said he did not think pure competition would work for farmers any more.

Young people going into farming should have some guarantee for the future, and some idea of the way the industry would go.

Irish 'lowered the boom' on bandit

Thursday was St. Patrick's Day and a popular tune was Clancy Lowered the Boom.

But for one would-be bandit, Sewell Lowered the Boom.

Mike Sewell, a 41-year-old, Irish-born former seaman and bartender, stopped a bandit the best way he knew how — with his fist.

Sewell was at work at the Party Mixer Shop, 639 Courtney, Wednesday night when a man who walked around the shop went up to him and demanded that all the bills in the till be put in a paper sack.

Sewe, who stans about the till be put in a paper sack.

Sewell, who stands about five feet, 10 inches and weighs 160 pounds, noticed the bandit was simulating a gun.

"If you've got a gun, you better use it," Sewell said.

The bandit, described as "a clean-cut sort of character," countered by producing a gun just as Sewell was reaching for a knife on the counter.

Sewell slapped the gun away with his right hand, grabbing the offender with his left and "driving" the surprised man with a right fist in the face.

The blow sent the bandit reeling backwards, to slam into a doorway before falling to the floor. The bandit shook his head and scrambled out the door.

The incident occurred shortly before 11 p.m., Sewell said.

Sewell, who admitted that the owner's instruction in any robbery attempt was to obey the bandit's orders, said at first there was "no way" he would give in, but later admitted he didn't know what he'd do if it happened again.

He said he went through police "mug shots" until after 2 a.m., and more when city police detectives went to the store the next day, without recognizing anyone, but said he would be able to recognize the man if he saw him again.

Sewell said he couldn't get to sleep after the incident until well after 4 a.m.

"I just kept thinking I did something stupid," Sewell said.

He had a bandage on his right hand for the skinned knuckles he got from the blow.

Seell said he might have injured the holdup man, but could see no blood after the incident.

The bandit is described as five feet, 10 inches tall, 170 pounds, with short, black, wavy hair and a black moustache. He was believed to be armed with a .22-calibre revolver.

M. V. Chesnut's Garden Notes

Looking over my last two dahlia columns, it occurs to me that I was guilty of using a lot of technical dahlia terms such as informal decorative and semi-cactus without explaining their meaning.

It so happens that modern dahlias are classified into divisions, each division representing a different type or shape of flower. In the flower show, and in particular in the specialist dahlia shows, a dahlia competes with other dahlias in the same class or division, just as in a dog show fox terriers compete against other fox terriers, not against setters or collies.

Formal decorative is the term used for blooms which resemble a fully double peony, with petals broad and more or less flat and overlapping, and with blunt or rounded points. When seed catalogues refer to "dahlia-flowered Zinnias," they are referring to flowers with these characteristics.

Informal decorative is similar but with petals a little narrower, less overlapping, less regular in appearance, longer and often slightly twisted.

The cactus class of dahlias has shaggy flowers, fully double, with thin, somewhat tubular petals, often incurved like a hothouse chrysanthemum, and often quite spidery in appearance.

Semi-cactus has broader and less pointed petals and a somewhat less shaggy appearance.

Ball dahlias, as the name implies, have ball-shaped or globular flowers, fully double, and are always four inches or more in diameter. If a globular flower is less than four inches across, it is automatically in the pom-pom class.

The ball and pom-pom dahlia flowers, while small, are becoming increasingly popular because of their excellence as cut flowers and for the unique effect they confer on a floral arrangement. The plants that bear these small flowers are just as tall and take up just as much garden space as their enormous mop-headed brothers.

Most of the kinds favored by the dahlia specialist and the exhibitor stand around five feet tall, but in recent years several shorter forms have been developed. The dwarf bedding dahlias, for instance, stand only three to 3½ feet in height, making compact, free-blooming, early flowering plants.

Even newer is a class known as early edging, making plants 12 to 15 inches tall, neat and compact, highly suitable for formal bedding and planters. The flowers are surprisingly large for such small plants, often five to six inches in diameter.

The Mignon dahlias are single-flowered and daisy-like, with a simple, homely charm of their own. The Anemone and Colarette kinds are what you might call semi-double, with a ring of wide guard petals surrounding a quilled centre. These, too, are especially useful as cut flowers, blooms if kept cut regularly and watered copiously.

All of these divisions, as you see, are classified according to the shape of the flower. There is another classification, perhaps of more immediate interest to the ordinary backyard gardener, whereby dahlias are listed according to the height of the plants.

All the kinds I have mentioned are grown ordinarily from tubers purchased under their variety name. There are several strains, though, which are quite easy to grow from seed and which come into bloom early enough to be used as bedding plants.

The Coltness Gems are single-flowered dwarfs standing 12 inches tall, while Unwin's Dwarf come in mixed singles and doubles, blooming in only 90 days from the sowing of the seeds. Unwin's Extra Dwarf, also known as Unwin's Ideal Bedder, are shorter still, about 15 inches as against 24 inches for the Dwarf Bedding. These have been known to bloom as early as Dominion Day when given an early start indoors or under glass.

Jack Smith

If I were looking for a symbol of the notion that innocent joy has gone out of life in the U.S. I might have found it the other day in the ashes of the merry-go-round at Lincoln Park.

It was a weekday morning and there was no one else around when I parked near the burned-out shell of what had been the merry-go-round and stepped into its charred and gutted interior. Nothing remained but the big round table on which the carousel had turned. Ashes were three inches deep on the floor. Doors had fallen from their hinges. The air was acrid. Nothing stirred. The silence was complete. It was the end.

The merry-go-round had been older than I was, though not much. I had ridden it as a small boy when we lived in Highland Park in the 1920s, and after my wife and I moved to Mt. Washington with our new family in 1950 we took our boys to ride it many times. So maybe this bleak cinder was not a symbol of the absolute end of innocent joy in our culture, but only of my own. Whatever it was, I felt its desolation personally.

Oh, well, I told myself, life is precarious and fragile. Nothing lasts. Rome burns. Tara burns. My merry-go-round burns. Life goes on. After all, the kids today get all the adventure they can handle out of violence on TV. Who needs a merry-go-round?

What had happened, according to a story in our local paper, was that business had got worse and worse for the merry-go-round, and finally last year the owners shut it down. It was only a matter of time before the vandals got in and set it afire. They're always out there waiting in the dark beyond our campfires.

Then a day or so after that sad pilgrimage to Lincoln Park, I received a note from Ramona Burnham, a school teacher who writes me now and then: "Dear Mr. Smith: You may remember that you met my kindergarteners and me by the merry-go-round in Griffith Park in February, 1975. To me it was a beautiful excursion, like our excursion to Cabrillo Beach and last summer when Mr. Walter O'Malley invited us to see the Dodgers best Pittsburgh as his guests. Mr. Ed Openshaw is kind enough to open the merry-go-round for us at 10 a.m. on Feb. 2. Drop by if you can."

I made a note on my calendar and meant to be there at round at Griffith Park. I 10 a.m., but something held me up at the office and it was 20 minutes before 11 when I hoped to hear the organ, but parked above the merry-go-it was silent, and I saw a line of small children lining up to board a yellow bus. Too late.

Well, maybe there were two contingents, I thought, and I walked down to the merry-go-round. It was deserted except for two young men who appeared to be locking up. I told them my story. One of them shook his head. "They've been here and gone," he said.

"Well, anyway," I said, "I'm glad to see you're still in business."

The merry-go-round was badly in need of sprucing up. The horses looked as spirited as ever, with flaring nostrils and wild eyes, but their paint has faded and chipped, and most of them had lost their tails. The exuberant paintings on the chariots and walls had faded almost into invisibility, but I could still see crouching Indians, rampant lions and what must once have been a spicy panel showing Adam chasing Eve.

"We're going to repaint everyting," one of the young men said. He turned out to be Don Rand, one of the owners, and the other was his partner, Openshaw. They had bought the machine a year or so ago and were running it on Saturdays and Sundays and holidays and every day in summer. Business was getting better.

"It's coming back. Those love-ins in the '60s destroyed it. They drove the families out. But they're starting to come back. The merry-go-round is making money for the first time in 10 years."

I was curious about Rand and Openshaw. What got young men into a business that seemed to belong to another time? Rand had been an artist, a movie animator, but he wanted to get outdoors. "I was confined to a windowless building, no sun, no wind, fighting rush our traffic, day in, day out. Then when Ed got out of the navy we went into the antique musical instrument business. Still have out shop down in Atwater."

The merry-go-round was simply the biggest musical instrument of all, and it has become the heart of their enterprise. "Can't beat it." Rand said. "I used to hang around this merry-go-round when I was just a little kid. I'd stand for hours in front of the organ, listening to the music. Now it's ours."

I wanted to ask if they'd mind playing me a tune — Tales of the Vienna Woods, maybe, or The Washington Post March. But I was afraid it would seem too arrogant. "You came here," I said instead, "and ran it just for one kindergarten class?"

"Oh, somebody might say it wasn't worth it, just for $15." said Openshaw. "But it is when you look in the eyes of those 60 faces."

I'm sorry I mised Ramona Burnham's excursion. But if we can keep our campfires lit, and keep the vandals back, maybe I'll be on time next year.

Sydney Harris

Things I learned en route to looking up other things:

That in New York City alone, the off-track betting customers had net losses of $187 million during the past fiscal year.

That more living creatures (such as bacteria, mites, and yeast) exist on the skin of a single human being than there are humans alive on the earth.

That the seven U.S. states with the highest murder rates all have death penalty laws, while the six states with the lowest rates don't.

That the unabridged dictionary contains 342 different usages of the word "blue." (At that, it left out one political usage.)

That the mayor of Athens is ready to ban all vehicular traffic in the area of the Parthenon, which has suffered more damage from pollution in the last quarter-century than from any other causes in the last 2,500 years.

That, contrary to detective fiction, in 90 per cent of all homicides, the guilty party is immediately known or quickly apprehended.

That U.S. President John Adams divested himself of the title of commander-in-chief of the U.S. army and navy, giving it to George Washington 20 years after the revolution.

That the Houses of Parliament in London took so long to build — from 1840 to 1860 — that by the time of completion they were derided as hopelessly out of style.

That water is composed of two substances which are flammable: yet when they are bonded together in water, these flammable substances are used to put out fires.

That W. S. Gilbert, whose Savoy libretti delighted millions, but who was rude and prickly in social situations, wrote his own ironic epitaph. "W. S. Gilbert, born 1836, died —, deeply regretted by all who didn't know him."

That Benjamin Franklin was the first American cartoonist. The first cartoon ever published in an American newspaper was his drawing of a snake severed into as many pieces as there were colonies, with the motto, "Unite or die!"

That the concept that woman was made from man is not found in Indian religion. Indians adhere to the doctrine that the female was created simultaneously with the male.

James Bacon's Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD — The James Dean legend goes on and on.

Latest saga is a new play starring Fannie Flagg that is causing much comment at Atlanta's Alliance Theatre Company.

It's titled Come Back to the Five and Dime, Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean, a first play by Ed Graczyk.

Locale is a tacky, drought-ridden town where a group of Dean's original disciples met 20 years after his death. They meet in a decaying dime store.

Some of them had been extras in Giant, the movie Jimmy had just finished before his untimely death in a car crash on the Coast Highway in central California on Sept. 30, 1955.

That was the film in which Dean played a combination of Howard Hughes and wildcatter Glenn McCarthy. He was nominated for an Academy Award but didn't win.

In fact, no actor has ever won posthumously, which brings up an interesting situation this year with the nomination of Peter Finch for Network.

In the Jimmy Dean play, one of the characters is a sensitive boy named Joe who turns up 20 years later as Joanne — a transsexual. First time that has ever been covered in a play to my knowledge.

And Universal has a motion picture due soon called Sept. 30, 1955, about the reaction of a group of high school kids to Dean's death.

It doesn't seem 22 years ago, on Sept. 29, 1955, when a Porsche sped down McCadden Place in Hollywood and skidded its tires to a stop in the old Villa Capri.

Out of the car came Jimmy. I commented to him at the time:

"That's a good way to keep from growing old, Jimmy."

Said he:

"Who wants to grow old?"

Within 24 hours he was dead.

ICBC to appeal ruling

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Insurance Corp. of British Columbia said Thursday that it has launched an appeal in the B.C. Supreme Court as a result of a human rights board of inquiry ruling.

The board ruled Wednesday it has jurisdiction to hear allegations of discrimination by ICBC in refusing a Victoria man property fire insurance.

Robert C. Heerspink, who took his case to the human rights branch after ICBC terminated his insurance policy last June without giving reasons, alleged the policy was cancelled because he had been charged with possession of and trafficking in marijuana. He had not been tried on the charges when the policy was cancelled.

ICBC said in a news release that the board of inquiry heard argument on the question of jurisdiction without hearing evidence on the merits of the case itself.

"The insurance corporation has taken the position that the Human Rights Code does not apply to insurers in that the Insurance Act specifically regulates insurers and therefore the board of inquiry is without jurisdiction," the release said.

Official languages bursaries offered

The education ministry announced Wednesday a $480,000 bursary program to help B.C. post-secondary students improve their knowledge of one of Canada's official languages.

The ministry said in a news release that more than 600 bursaries, each worth $800, were being made available by it and the federal government.

The bursaries are offered as part of a summer language bursary program established six years ago.

Students receiving a bursary will spend a minimum of six weeks attending an immersion course in English or French.

Participating institutions in B.C. are Capilano College, North Vancouver; Douglas College, Surrey - New Westminster-Delta; the University of Victoria and the University of B.C.

Victoria writers excell in contest

Several Victoria students have won prizes in the Canada Permanent Trust student writing contest, with a Mount Douglas High School student placing third in the province.

Victoria students who won honorable mentions were Ainslie Wilson, Claremont High (Saanich); Susan Chapman, Mount Douglas; Greg Glover, Colquitz Junior High; Susan Brown, Belmont High; Jerri Lord, Norfolk House; Rejan Farley, Norfold House; Jean Vivian Dickson, Oak Bay High; Jill Wilkinson, Norfolk House and Joanna Finch, Central Junior High.

Rabin in deep trouble as election time nears

Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

JERUSALEM—With 60 days to go before national elections, things have never looked worse for Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

The worst wave of strikes and work slowdowns in Israel's history is sweeping the country. No sector of the economy remains untouched. Those striking range from gasoline tank truck drivers to university professors.

A new scandal, this time in his own family, has hurt Rabin. Treasury officials this week began an investigation into his wife's admission that she illegally maintained a bank account in Washington, D.C.

Rabin's Labor Party government seemed unwilling to come to grips with the labor unrest," described by newspapers here in terms like "the very edge of sanity," "national suicide" and "bordering on anarchy."

"It is a process which is continuing," said a Rabin spokesman. "No top-level policy-makers are working on it. The usual agencies are handling the problems."

Said another government official, cynically: "A Labor government does not break strikes 60 days before an election."

Most of the labor problems involve attempts by unions to abrogate existing contracts and renegotiate for better pay and benefits. The spiral of strikes began when raises were granted to militant government workers and other unions sought similar raises.

Government accountants were switching from sanctions (work slowdowns) to strikes to enforce a long list of demands. A worker told the accounts department workers at the strike-vote meeting: "We shall close down the country, including industry. All the government budget is in our hands."

Industry was already suffering this week because of a slowdown by customs officials who on March 15 were still clearing goods from Feb. 27, causing some factories to close down because of lack of raw materials.

Rabin
. . . family scandal

International-call telephone operators were due to return to work Thursday after a six-day strike. But the whole communications ministry is threatening to start nationwide sanctions because workers are not getting a clothing allowance similar to that demanded and won by post office employees.

"In both the number of people involved and the spectrum convered by the strikers, this is the worst labor crisis since Israel began," one government official said.

The Labor Party, still smarting from the confession of one and the suicide of another official accused of corruption, must now recover by election day from the disclosure that Rabin's wife, Leah, 48, maintained a ban kaccount in the United States in violation of Israeli monetary laws.

Mrs. Rabin said she would give the some $2,000 in the account to charity, and it was expected that the inquiry would end with her being assessed a fine. Foreign accounts must have authorization of the treasury as a step to discourage the flight of hard currency overseas.

The account was left over from when Rabin was ambassador to Washington four years ago, Mrs. Rabin told a television interviewer. "I was insufficiently conscious of the fact that I ought to have closed the account shortly after our return home," she said.

"This is damaging to Rabin," said a political observer here, "but not very damaging. A month ago it would have been disastrous." Feb. 24, Rabin defeated Defence Minister Shimon Peres by two per centof the vote as choice of the Labor Party convention to be its candidate for prime minister. Another problem then might well have tipped the vote to Peres.

The scandal will help Rabin's opponents in the May 17 national elections — probably doing the most for archaeologist Yigael Yadin's Democratic Movement for Change, a new, reform-minded party which this week was voting on its own choices for leadership.

Cancer fighter 'threat to lungs'

TORONTO (CP) — A medical specialist has warned that possible dangers exist in use of the anti-cancer agent melphalan.

Dr. Paul Dickman of the University of California School of Medicine, San Diego, told delegates to a meeting of the Canada-U.S. division of the International Academy of Pathology that melphalan produces abnormal lung changes that can lead to serious respiratory problems.

Melphalan, or L-phenylalanine mustard, is routinely used to treat patients with multiple myeloma. It came into general use in 1964 and in recent years has been added to a group of drugs tried in women who have undergone surgery for breast cancer, in hope of preventing recurrences.

Dickmari said he and his colleagues reviewed records of 61 patients in San Diego who had received melphalan. Thirteen of these patients died and the lungs of seven of them showed signs of abnormal change.

In contrast, lungs from 13 control cases, matched for age and sex to the melphalan patients, showed only one with similar abnormalities, and that patient had had pneumonia in the affected areas.

Abnormalities were observed as unusual growth of cells lining the air sacs in the lungs until they came to resemble precancerous cells. Other areas showed signs of fibrosis.

Private Goering diaries 'unique' Sotheby's find

LONDON (UPI) — Sotheby's auctioneers say they have found the private diaries of Hermann Goering, Adolf Hitler's right-hand man and founder of the death camps and the Gestapo.

A Sotheby's spokesman called the diaries, written in 1941, 1943 and 1944, "an amazing find" certain to be of great interest to military and other historians.

An unidentified man claiming he was in the Free French forces during the war brought the diaries to a Sotheby session at which the firm's experts assessed the value of possible treasures brought in by the public.

"He said the diaries were his loot and he knew what he had," the spokesman said. He said no value had been Placed on the diaries.

Goering lorded over Nazi Germany's wartime economy was the only man Hitler ever named Marshal of the Third Reich, but he fell in disfavor toward the end of the war and plotted an unsuccessful palace coup.

He was captured by allied troops and a Nurenburg jury found him guilty of a war crime "unique in its enormity" and sentenced him to hang. But hours before his scheduled execution he swallowed a capsule of poison in October, 1946.

Air Canada adds seats

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada is in the process of adding 5,080 extra seats to its air fleet by removing some seats in the first-class sections of some planes and replacing them with economy sections, an airline spokesman said.

For example, seating on Boeing 747s will increase to 405 from the present capacity of 333.

Scared gunman kills himself

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (UPI) — A strongarm bandit, afraid of going back to San Quentin, killed himself early Thursday after holding off police for 14 hours with hostages and demanding a Cadillac getaway limousine with a chauffeur.

Michael Shane Guile, 31, shot himself in the chest about 3 a.m. after telling police he was going to surrender. None of his hostages was hurt.

Connaghan
. . . 'positive move'

B.C. group fighting for unity

VANCOUVER (CP) — Chuck Connaghan, administrative vice-president of the University of British Columbia, says he has formed a small group of prominent British Columbians to take on the fight for Canadian unity.

"We're a broad-based group, concerned about the whole unity issue," he said. "We're trying to develop some program, or make some minimum contribution to do something positive for the unity of Canada."

Connaghan, said his group was one of four low-profile organizations that has sprung up in Vancouver over the last month as a response to the November election victory of the Parti Quebecois.

Among the 15 members Connaghan invited to his first meeting were Jim Kinnaird of the British Columbia and Yukon Building Trades Council, lawyer Brian Williams, Jim Clifford of the Employers' Council of British Columbia, and high school principal Jim Killeen.

Wood on Ararat too young for ark

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Pieces of L-shaped wood found above the tree-line on Mt. Ararat in Turkish Armenia are about 1230 years old and could be shrine of the fabled ark of Noah but not the ark itself, a California anthropologist said this week.

Dr. Rainer Berger, professor of anthropology at the University of California, Los Angeles, told the 1977 Symposium of Archaeometry and Archaelogical Prospection at the University of Pennsylvania Museum that there had been no evidence ever found of the ark's existence.

Despite a popular movie and persistent rumors to the contrary, all radiocarbon and other tests have shown the piece of wood, discovered in 1955 by French industrialist and ark enthusiast Fernand Navarra at the 13,500-foot level of Mt. Ararat, postdates Christ, he said.

Berger, who joined with Associate professor R. E. Taylor of the University of California Riverside in the presentation, said the first tests conducted by the National Physical Laboratories in England dated the wood at about 11,000 years, still not old enough to be part of the ark.

Using methods he had developed for decontaminating wood found in tar pits, Berger said he was able to clean up the piece of wood and through further tests assign it an age of 1,230 years. Taylor, employing a different method, dated it about 1,210 years old.

"If you actually read the King James Bible it says the ark landed on the mountains of Ararat, now in Armenia. It did not specify Mt. Ararat," Berger said.

"We're not even sure that is Mt. Ararat," he said.

He said he suspected that the deeply Christian Armenians built a shrine to the ark at the 13,500-foot level and what was found were pieces of that.

THE ACES® ON BRIDGE
by IRA G. CORN JR.
TEAM CAPTAIN

"Knowledge may give weight, but accomplishments give lustre, and many more people see than weigh." -- Lord Chesterfield

Tommy Sanders of Nashville had lots of lustre and overtricks on his score card after he polished off the opponents on today's interesting deal. He guessed right at every chance and he earned a top score in the Life Master Men's Pair final at the ACBL Fall National Tournament in Pittsburgh.

The bidding and lead were normal enough, but many declarers limped home with only nine tricks under the same conditions. Here's how Tommy managed 11.

The heart lead was won by declarer's jack and the first good guess came when declarer cashed the club king and successfully finessed the jack. Carefully now, he led the club 10 to the ace (the club six would play an important role later) and led a spade from dummy. East ducked routinely and declarer made the startling play of the king.

The heart finesse was taken against West's king and the spade eight was led from dummy. East played low again and declarer finessed, the eight going to West's blanked queen. A diamond shift was won by declarer's ace and the club six went to dummy's seven for a vital entry.

Dummy's last spade was led past East's ace and the jig was up. Regardless of what East did, declarer had two spade tricks where most had trouble scoring one!

The totals? Declarer took two spades, three hearts, two diamonds and four clubs. The defense was left with the rest -- and a splitting headache to go with each loser.

Answer: Two no trump. Two hearts is an underbid and three hearts is an overbid. Two no trump is a good compromise. (Those who play forcing Stayman may bid two clubs and rebid two hearts over two diamonds and two no trump over two spades.)

NEW HOMES FROM $63,440

A quiet, close to town subdivision — 3 cul-de-sacs to choose from — no-through streets. Not the typical feeling — some level lots, others with lake views or look over surrounding area. Some nestled into trees just like living in the country, yet 5 minutes from town. These homes are priced to sell and going quickly. Consider some of these extra features:
—rockwork faced entries, concrete drives —carpeted entry lobbies to most —daylite basements — easy to develop that extra 4th bdrm, party-room or second full bath
—many have 2 finished rockfaced fireplaces
—fancy wallpapers, extra finishing
—walk to busline, shops, all schools.

Prices from $63,440 up to $69,750 and two unique 1½-storey homes nearing completion at $78,900. Low down payments possible to qualified purchasers. Vendor may carry a second mortgage. Interest rates 10 to 10¾%.

SHAWNIGAN LAKE

1—Home heating costs worrying you? Come and see his delightfully wooded 2-acre lot with enough timber to heat the 1439 sq. ft. ranch style home with its beautiful stone heatilator fireplace. Super insulation, attractive Redwood finish in the 23'x16' living room and also in dining area. There are three bedrooms (one ensuite), wall-to-wall carpet, imported Italian tile in entrance hall, bathroom and utility room. All windows and sliding doors thermopane. Custom built cabinets and new fridge, stove, washer and dryer. All this for only $79,900.

MILL BAY

2 — Beautiful view over Saanich Inlet from this very well built, full basement home. All electric heat with extra insulation in ceiling and walls plus styrofoam under the aluminum siding. Double glazing and Franklin fireplace in basement ensure comfort despite any power failure. This is an ideal starter or retirement home and extra bedrooms, bathrooms or kitchen could be completed in basement. Within easy commuting distance of Victoria and yet close to good boating, fishing, or recreation areas. A detached lock-up garage plus a tastefully landscaped lot and all this adds up to a great buy at $60,000. Oh yes! The owners will also sell the furniture and carpets, etc., so that for a negotiated price you could move straight in.

3—Two other excellent seaview homes in Mill Bay — one 2 bedroom and one 3-bedroom — come and see this great selection.

4—Small 2-bedroom home with large workshop area on 1 acre — good well — this property has lots of potential — only $37,500.

METCHOSIN

6— Approx. 18 miles from downtown Victoria you could have your dream home — over 2,000 sq. ft. of comfortable living area in the 2-storey, 3 or 4-bedroom, oil fired hot water heated house. The large feature Living room has a heatilator fireplace, post and beam construction and is 18'5"x24'3" with a distant view of the sea and the Victoria coastline. There is also a 15'6"x12'9" dining room plus a large open kitchen. A 3-car garage with a 30'x20' full height room above, which can be used as a recreation room; plus an attractive flagstone patio and landscaping set in 3.8 acres of trees and paddock all helps to add up to seclusion and relaxation after a busy day in the city. A truly executive style home with its warm brick and cedar siding exterior. Exceptional value at $119,500.

EQUITY EXCHANGE!
Dear Property Owner:
Todays market presents special problems — both for a vendor and for a purchaser — have you considered talking to a realtor — who has clients with perhaps the same problems? Is your equity tied up in a house, acreage or perhaps revenue property? If you are ready to move on to something else — and a phone call costs nothing — please feel free to discuss it with me:

Market board critics rapped

By STEPHEN HUME
Colonist Reporter

Critics of the B.C. marketing board system may have a "vested interest" in destroying it, and are masquerading under a banner of impartiality.

B.C. Federation of Agriculture president Ralph Barichello charged Thursday that the public is being misled about the marketing board system by critics who may have a vested interest in destroying it.

Barichello told the annual convention of Fraser Valley Mill Producers in Chilliwack that the boards are being abused and misrepresented.

Although Barichello did not name Human Resources Minister William Vander Zalam, it was Vander Zalm who announced in February at a Social Credit fund-raising dinner that the concept of marketing boards in the province was under review.

Vander Zalm said marketing boards were responsible for the failure of businesses in B.C., although he did not specify which businesses.

Vander Zalm said the concept of marketing boards was a "pretty rotten system" which provided taxpayers' money, in the form of subsidies, to inefficient growers.

(The farm income assurance plan originated with the former New Democratic Party in government in 1973 to try to stabilize the farm industry and the family farm system in B.C.)

Barichello told milk producers Thursday that farmers neither want nor need a guaranteed income.

He said what farmers do want is the assurance of some security that their income will be in relation to production costs. This is "essentially the same level of support and consideration that most industries in this country have enjoyed since the days of confederation," he said.

Income security is a fact of life in other industries, Barichello said, and named the Canadian textile industry's quota on imports, the auto industry's surcharge on bringing American-purchased cars across the border, the proposed reduction of royalties and stumpage fees for B.C. forest and mining industries, and Canadian Radio-television commission limiting the importation of foreign programs.

Barichello said doctors, lawyers, teachers, accountants, the labor force — and farmers — have all "formed their own organizations to look after their respective interests." He said the federation would continue to support the concepts governing marketing boards.

Barichello said there is a "hint that there is something amiss in a section of the food chain that does not involve producers" when B.C. products can be sold for less in Toronto and Bellingham than in the province.

The current review of marketing boards by the government should therefore be conducted in the open, broadend, and "endowed with the power to look at books, correspondence, political donations, markups, corporate relationships, and marketing practices."

Barichello warned that eliminating marketing boards would result in a food monopoly insensitive to consumer needs.

In the Legislature

Bennett denies promise to cut tax, ferry fare

Premier Bennett denied Thursday that he had promised to reduce the seven-per-cent sales tax and B.C. Ferries fares before the next provincial election.

Scott Wallace (PC—Oak Bay) asked the premier during the question period in the Legislature if what he had heard on two CBC newscasts regarding the sales tax and ferry fare reductions was true.

Bennett said the reports were erroneous.

The Conservative leader then asked what Bennett had told $100-a-plate dinner guests in Vancouver, and whether he had informed the Social Credit party faithful of future fiscal policy.

"I've already said the report was erroneous," Bennett said. "I did not make the statement as reported. What I did say is what I have said in this house on several occasions — that if we are successful in restoring the economy, if we can reduce unemployment and get things moving and the money coming in, then we can consider cutting taxes."

The premier said later that if that time should arrive, the sales tax would be one of the first taxes looked at.

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson Thursday became the second MLA this week to complain about the reluctance of the B.C. Ferry Corp. to provide requested information to members of the Legislature.

Gibson directed his question Thursday to Premier Bennett, who at one time promised the free flow of information from crown corporations to the general public.

"Has a directive gone out saying don't deal with MLAs?" he asked. "And if such a directive has gone out, will he (the premier) order it withdrawn?"

Bennett said he would investigate and request the crown corporations to make all "available information available" to MLAs on request.

For the third day in succession, Graham Lea (NDP — Prince Rupert) in the Legislature Thursday to get Municipal Affairs and Housing Minister Hugh Curtis to say what he thought about a $25,000 cash payment to the North-Central Municipal Association.

And for the second day he was ruled out of order by Speaker Ed Smith.

When Lea first asked Curtis about the $25,000 payment by Kitimat Pipe Line to the association to defray the cost of one day's use of the Princess Patricia in which an annual convention is to be held in May, Curtis took the question as notice.

B.C. will no longer be a haven for "quack psychologists" after the current session of the Legislature.

Health Minister Robert McClelland Thursday introduced a bill, the Psychologists Act, to provide the controls for the profession to police its members.

McClelland said B.C. had become the last resort of many quackes because there were no controls on psychologists and that incidents of abuse were growing dramatically.

The legislation calls basically for the registration of all psychologists in the province.

Indian opposes gas line

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Yukon Indian leader said Thursday his tribe would never accept construction of a trans-Canada gas pipeline across a part of the lands it claims in Canada's Yukon Territory.

"There shall be no pipeline in this area, forever," Daniel Johnson, chairman of the Council for Yukon Indians, told a House subcommittee. He said the tribal body was unanimously opposed to any pipeline through the Old Crow and North Slope areas of the Yukon.

Johnson testified before the House Indian Affairs and Public Lands Subcommittee, which is holding hearings on three competing proposals for delivering Alaskan natural gas to the lower 48 states — including the $8 billion Arctic Gas plan for a 4,000-mile pipeline across Canada to the U.S. Midwest.

He told the committee the tribe also would oppose construction of a pipeline in other areas of the Yukon until its land claims are settled by the Canadian government.

"We in the Yukon are determined that we will not be subjected to continued degradation and humiliation in our own land," he said.

Deportation bid lost by Canadian

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — A 52-year-old Canadian whose theft of a toy watch when he was 11 led to a lifetime behind bars lost his last bid Thursday to escape deportation to Canada.

After spending all but a few weeks of the last 42 years in prison, Arthur Meunier admitted he was terrified at the prospects of entering the outside world — so terrified that he foiled earlier paroles by writing threating letters to Presidents Johnson and Nixon.

Meunier is scheduled to be released this morning from Sandstone Federal Prison, 100 miles northeast of the Twin Cities, and will be taken in custody immediately by agents of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

His last appeal to remain in this country failed Thursday when an INS Administrative Judge, B. W. D'Ambrosia, found no reason to reopen the case.

Meunier, who has served time for such crimes as auto theft, drug violation, burglary and armed robbery, could not be reached for comment on D'Ambrosia's ruling.

He had asked for asylum because Canada is "the country that made me like I am," and several prisoner-help groups in Minnesota have promised to aid him to find his way in a new life. There have been no such offers in Canada, he said.

The Phantom gift

LONDON — Somebody plans to give Queen Elizabeth one of the most expensive cars ever built to mark her 25 years on the throne. The question is, who? "We never talk about individual customers — or cars," said Rolls-Royce managing director David Plastow. But a company spokesman later confirmed a Phantom VI limousine, for which prices start at $77,000, is under construction for presentation to the queen. She already has four Rolls-Royces — all rather old. Meantime, speculation goes on. Is it Prince Philip? "Unlikely," said Buckingram Palace.

MELBOURNE, Australia — Queen Elizabeth invested former Australian prime minister Sir Robert Menzies with the insignia of a Knight of the Order of Australia — the country's highest honor. Sir Robert, 83, was prime minister from 1939-41 and 1949-66 and was knighted by the queen in 1963.

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania — Cuban President Fidel Castro arrived Thursday to a bearhug welcome from President Julius Nyerere for talks on Rhodesia's guerrilla war. Dancing girls garlanded Castro with flowers and thousands of natives chanted "Viva Fidel!" A crowd estimated at 5,000 greeted Castro in what the government promised would be the "biggest and best" reception ever held for a visiting head of state.

WHITEHORSE — Mike Winage, who arrived in the Yukon on March 5, 1900, marked his 107th birthday Tuesday and died Wednesday. One day in 1918 he helped unload a shipment of 400 tons of coal and when he was done

RCMP to back up criminal code, seal hunt rules

ST. ANTHONY, Nfld. (CP) — The icebreaker John Cabot will take seven RCMP members to the seal hunt 55 miles northeast of here today to help fisheries officers enforce sealing regulations and sections of the Criminal Code, a federal official announced Thursday.

Len Cowley, regional director-general for Newfoundland of the federal fisheries service, said 14 RCMP officers had been sworn in as fisheries protection officers.

Cowley said the icebreaker was to be here around noon today to pick up the seven policemen.

Ed Quigley, fisheries information officer, said later the RCMP would use a helicopter carried by the ship.

Quigley said the ship was expected to remain in the hunting area for four or five days or until the six Canadian and five Norwegian sealing ships had taken their quota of harp seal pups.

The move was announced as three protest groups continued their efforts to disrupt the seal hunt.

French film actress Brigitte Bardot, who had joined Franz Weber, a Swiss opponent of the seal hunt, Wednesday in Lourdes du Blanc Sablon, Que., 67 miles west of here, was preparing to return to Paris today for a demonstration on Saturday.

Weber said Miss Bardot had not reached the hunt. Helicopters being used by Weber, the Greenpeace Foundation of British Columbia and Brian Davies, executive director of the International Fund for Animal Welfare, were grounded Thursday by rain and fog.

Reporters covering the hunt from this northern Newfoundland town of about 4,000 had difficulty finding out whether Miss Bardot was still in Lourdes du Blanc Sablon until one succeeded in reaching Weber Thursday night.

The reporters had been told earlier by various sources in the Quebec town that she had not been seen in the area, was probably gone or was in a private home.

Weber, who had brought 65 foreign reporters to Lourdes du Blanc Sablon, succeeded Wednesday in ferrying some onto the ice, one of his spokesmen said in a telephone interview Thursday.

Canadian reporters who visited Lourdes du Blanc Sablon from St. Anthony said many of the journalists from Europe and the United States were pressing Weber to find ways of getting them to the hunt. His helicopter fleet was increased to three from one on Wednesday.

"They're milling around in circles," said one Canadian reporter.

New York move denied

OTTAWA (UPI) — Margaret Trudeau denied an American newspaper report Thursday that she would be moving to new York to become a professional photographer.

"I have no intention at all of doing that," Mrs. Trudeau said in a radio interview.

She said, however, that she would occasionally be working out of New York. "I'm going to be working around the world," she said.

The New York Post reported that U.S. artist Louis Abolafia said Mrs. Trudeau had planned to work from a Manhattan apartment and would commute to Ottawa to visit her husband and children.

But Mrs. Trudeau said later that Abolafia was "barely an acquaintance."

She said Abolafia was the younger brother of photographer Oscar Abolafia, with whom she was working on a photographic assignment in New York.

Louis Abolafia was "a bit made, and was hanging on for a couple of hours," Mrs. Trudeau said. "I certainly don't call him a friend of mine . . . he was hanging on, he thought he could make some money out of it.

"I think everyone wants a piece of the action. I have learned an awful lot about how people try to make money and exploit someone like myself.

Mrs. Trudeau said in future she would not comment "on any subject."

"I have no repsect for the kind of position people have put me in, and that's a general kind of decision I have made."

Belts: Persuasion, not penalties

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial government's campaign to promote the use of seatbelts might have a reverse effect. If the threat of fines and jail terms is used as a sales pitch according to Dr. John O'Brien-Bell, a long-time advocate of seatbelt legislation.

O'Brien-Bell, chairman of the Boundary board of health, said Wednesday that the legislation introduced in the legislature Tuesday, could lose many potential converts if Victoria stressed the penalties motorists faced for not buckling up.

B.C. legislation provides for maximum fines of $500 or three-month jail terms for failing to wear seatbelts.

"They should use the police in an advisory and educational capacity to produce a reflex action in the motoring public before moving into the punitive aspects," O'Brien-Bell said.

"A velvet glove is needed — not a fist. People in this province don't respond well to threats."

O'Brien-Bell said the rate of compliance among motorists in Australia exceeded 80 per cent 18 months after compulsory seatbelt legislation was introduced in 1971.

"The police function (in Australia) in the early days was not to convict but to convince. If a motorist was pulled over and found to be not wearing a seatbelt, he got a piece of literature and a short lecture."

He added that Australia's publicity campaign, credited with the high compliance rates, included the placing of signs at strategic locations reminding motorists to buckle up.

Ontario, however, had no widespread publicity campaign to promote the use of seatbelts after the province began enforcing compulsory use legislation last year, O'Brien-Bell said. As a result, compliance rates of less than 50 per cent were obtained.

B.C. transport Minister Jack Davis had said Tuesday that the government was planning an intensive publicity campaign before and after the bill was proclaimed.

However, he also said motorists stopped for speeding or other infractions would be checked for compliance with the new law and charged if found in violation of it.

Davis said Wednesday that United States citizens driving their own cars in B.C. would have to comply with the law, as would visitors from other provinces.

Two slain chasing knife bandit

VANCOUVER (UPI) — Police appealed Thursday for the public to help identify the killer of two men, including a restaurant patron, fatally stabbed while pursuing the masked robber of a south Vancouver pizza parlor.

Police centred their investigation on a pair of pants and jacket apparently thrown from a car and found 10 blocks from the Cavo-Doros Pizza Restaurant, held up late Wednesday for "what we believe is a small amount of money."

"We haven't got a suspect and we're still playing the field, but we have as many men as we can spare on the case," homicide detective Sgt. Sam Andrews said.

The dead were restaurant owner Milton Lampropoulos, 34, and patron John Wipf, 36, both stabbed in the chest.

CBC Separatists must push unity

OTTAWA (CP) — Although separatists are permitted to work for the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., all of the network's employees must promote national unity, Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday.

"If you work for the CBC, you must produce national unity," Trudeau told his weekly news conference.

While the federal government has asked the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission to investigate an alleged pro-separatist bias in the CBC, Trudeau did not consider it irregular for the network's journalist's to favor federalism.

A pro-federalist attitude would show "a belief in the institution you work for."

While separatists could work for the publicly-owned network, their anti-federalist attitudes should not be revealed in their work.

Despite numerous charges by Liberal cabinet ministers that Radio-Canada, the French-language arm of the CBC, contains a separatist bias, executives from the CBC and CRTC say they have received few complaints.

But Trudeau maintained complaints are made regularly.

To demonstrate his point, he said a Quebec audience of federalists wildly applauds when bias charges are mentioned.

PROVINCIAL COURT

A 19-year-old received a total of 13 months in jail after pleading guilty Thursday in Victoria Provincial Court to two escaped.

Albert Norman Laberge changed his plea on a charge of escaping from the Jordan River camp Oct. 31, 1976, and also entered a guilty plea to a Feb. 23 escape from Wilkinson Road jail.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan told Judge William Ostler that Laberge had a previous conviction for a May 13, 1975, escape and was serving an 18-month sentence for possession of MDA for the purpose of trafficking, imposed Nov. 4, when he got away from Wilkinson Road.

Laberge pleaded guilty March 8 to theft of seat covers which he used to keep himself warm during his brief spell of freedom and was given a two-month sentence.

Ostler imposed a three-month term for the Jordan River escape and another 10 months for the escape from Wilkinson Road.

George Earl Storry, 22, jointly charged with Laberge on the Feb. 23 incident, elected trial by judge and jury March 8 and had a date of June 10 set for a preliminary hearing Thursday.

"What you really need is a good spanking," Ostler told a 17-year-old youth before sentencing him.

Richard Michael Wayne Weller, formerly of 546 Normandy, pleaded guilty Monday to forgery and uttering a forged document in connection with 13 cheques written on a joint account belonging to his stepfather and grandmother.

Ostler ordered a pre-sentence report and when Weller reappeared in court Thursday, two new charges were read.

He was charged with a break-in at 550 Normandy on May 25 and to uttering a forged document in connection with a withdrawal slip taken from the break-in.

Mulligan told the court a portable television set, valued at $112, was taken in the break-in as well as the bank withdrawal slips.

Legal-aid lawyer Ken Walton told the court Weller suffered from immaturity and Ostler agreed before imposing a suspended sentence, three years' probation and 200 hours of community work service.

In addition, Ostler ordered Weller to make restitution totalling $1,597.69 to two banks, his stepfather and the break-in victim.

Four men charged with escaping lawful custody and being unlawfully at large in connection with a breakout Wednesday from Jordan River camp were remanded without plea until next Thursday.

Gary Allan Smith, 19, David Edmond Fredette, 18, Raymond Mickey Bill, 19 and Robert Bruce Rosin, 23, were all represented by duty counsel Ken Walton.

Michael Gene Fraik, 28, of 2575 Wentwich, elected trial by judge without jury on two counts on criminal negligence and one count of impaired driving.

Fraik faces the charges in connection with a fatal accident Jan. 6 in the 300 block Old Island Highway in which 41-year-old Jeffrey Bruce Jaques of 1082 Brook View Drive died.

A preliminary hearing date of June 13 was set.

In a confusing case which took nearly an hour to sort out, a 24-year-old Quebec man received three, concurrent, one-year sentences.

Alain LaForest, serving a two-year term for breaking and entering imposed Oct. 5, pleaded guilty to possession of a pistol, theft under $200 and attempted theft.

The charges were among 40 LaForest wanted transferred from his home province for offences alleged to have occurred mostly in 1974.

Crown counsel Richard Anthony stayed 37 of the charges after the guilty pleas. Anthony, Ostler, LaForest and an interpreter became embroiled in the long proceedings which touched on the propriety of the transfer of jurisdictions and the translation.

Court was told the theft charge involved LaForest and an accomplice who broke into numerous telephone coin boxes with a metal hook and long pole.

Anthony produced a lengthy, three-page criminal history which LaForest acknowledged, dating back to 1971.

Outside the court, Anthony said the operation involved attaching the pole to a car and using the vehicle to break into the coin boxes. He said damage to about 20 phone booths in the Hull area amount to about $4,000.

Ostler said LaForest did a commendable thing in insisting on getting all matters cleared up and said he should thank Anthony for his time and effort in getting the material transferred.

A Saanich man who was handed a 24-hour driving suspension by Victoria city police Wednesday night but was seen driving minutes later, received a $300 fine.

Norman Sidney Howard, of 3228 Wicklow, pleaded guilty to driving while suspended and was given the fine.

Court was told police stopped Howard at 10:15 p.m. and issued the roadside suspension. However, he was observed driving minutes later and was stopped again. He told police he was driving his friend's car home because he didn't want it left parked on the street.

B.C. Tel rate bid up 15%

VANCOUVER (CP) — Public hearings into a rate increase application by B.C. Telephone begin next Tuesday in Vancouver and nearly 1,300 briefs, interventions and submissions are expected to be presented to the Canadian radio-television and telecommunications commission.

B.C. Tel has applied to the CRTC for permission to increase rates by 15 per cent on local services and 10 per cent on long distance.

At a pre-hearing conference Tuesday, hearing chairman Christopher Johnston said the main series of public hearings was expected to last at least two weeks.

Gardom denies payoffs for crown testimony

By JIM HUME
Colonist Reporter

Gardom denied Thursday that witnesses in key trials in B.C. are offered payment to testify for the crown.

He made the statement in answer to a two-week-old question asked by Conservative leader Scott Wallace regarding the Ross murder trial recently concluded in Nanaimo. During the trial an RCMP officer admitted under oath that a key witness, Gordon Caldwell, had been offered varying sums up to $50,000 to testify.

Gardom said that while witnesses were not paid for their evidence, there were instances where the police offered "protection, relocation and a change of identity" to witnesses who could be in danger from other criminal elements.

"That is sometimes done to simply keep the witness alive," Gardom said.

Wallace said he was far from satisfied with the attorney-general's answer. He said that while it was true that Caldwell had not received the $50,000 promised or any cash at all "I'm gathering information on other cases which I shall be bringing up later."

He said he had a copy of a $25,000 cheque made out to a witness in another trial but said he wasn't prepared to release the background until he had checked further. "But

'Deathbed confession' may reopen Quilt case

VANCOUVER (CP) — The widow of Chilcotin Indian Fred Quilt made a deathbed confession that she accidentally backed their pickup truck into him two days before he died, an RCMP official said Thursday.

Chief Superintendent Gordon Dalton also said the evidence may result in a new inquest.

Quilt, 55, of Alexis Creek, died Nov. 30, 1971, of peritonitis in Williams Lake Hospital. Indian leaders maintained he had been injured by being struck and jumped on by RCMP officers, who took him from his truck and drove him to a nearby Indian reserve.

Dalton said that police have learned that on Sept. 25, 1976, the day she died, Mrs. Quilt confessed that she accidentally backed their pickup truck into her husband, knocking him down, the night of Nov. 28, 1971.

Attorney-General Garde Gardom said in Victoria he has asked for more information from the RCMP before making any decision on a new inquest.

Dalton said that a witness to Mrs. Quilt's death also said the woman confessed to the 1968 killing of Rose Satah.

Stephen Hink of Williams Lake was convicted of killing Rose Satth and spent three years in prison.

Hink was charged with non-capital murder after Satah, 22, was shot to death with a .22-calibre rifle early in the morning of Dec. 20, 1968.

Dalton said police learned of the confession only recently, and now were preparing reports for Gardom and the National Parole Service. The parole service could consider ordering a pardon for Hinks, who now is free, Dalton added.

"It's just a recent development," Dalton said, when asked why the deathbed confessions had suddenly surfaced six months after Mrs. Quilt died.

"We found out only recently, but we've since found out that it (the confession) had been rumored in the area (of Williams Lake) for some time," Dalton said.

He said Mrs. Quilt told the witness, who has not been identified, that she accidentally backed the truck while Quilt was standing behind it urinating. The truck struck Quilt, but did not pass over him. He then climbed into the back of the truck.

"That was before RCMP arrived on the scene," Dalton said.

"We have interviewed the witness and are now in the process of providing the information to the attorney-general."

Dr. John Sturdy, consulting pathologist to the inquest into Quilt's death, held in Kamloops, said in a telephone interview from California, where he is vacationing, that "off the top of my head, I would say that Quilt's injuries would be consistent with that kind of an accident."

"I've always known there was something about that injury that didn't fit the autopsy," he said. "I testified at the time that Quilt's injuries were not consistent with a kick or a series of kicks.

"If he (Quilt) were run over by a vehicle, it could compress the small bowel against the spinal cord and sever it," he added.

Lawyer Harry. Rankin, a Vancouver alderman who acted for the Quilt family at the inquest, asked, "How does a deathbed confession suddenly appear in someone's files

Jumblatt revenge: 68 slain

MUKHTARA, Lebanon (Reuter) — At least 68 people have been reported killed in revenge murders following Wednesday's assassination of leftist leader Kamal Jumblatt.

Tens of thousands of people flocked to this mountain village for the funeral of Jumblatt, who was shot in his car by unknown attackers.

Sectarian killers seeking revenge struck quickly in the wake of his death, murdering people in the mountains and in Beirut before the Syrian troops of the Arab League peace force could intervene.

Christian villagers said they knew of at least 58 Christians killed in the villages around Mukhtara, ancestral domain of the Jumblatt family.

Ten more people were killed in Beirut, informed sources said.

There's fuel aplenty but costs gushing up

OTTAWA (CP) — The country has the potential oil and natural gas resources it needs to make itself self-reliant in energy but the costs of developing the supplies will be high, federal Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie said Thursday.

Gillespie said it still was not clear what price would be necessary, but added that it would be significantly higher.

He made the comments after tabling in the Commons energy department papers saying there is a 90-per-cent chance that up to 229 trillion cubic feet of natural gas and 25 billion barrels of oil would be discovered.

The country now uses about 1.4 trillion cubic feet of gas and about 730 million barrels of oil annually.

But Gillespie says "there is a heck of a big difference between proven reserves and potential."

The figures in the report reflect only an estimate of how much oil might be removed from the ground, with no consideration of the cost.

An additional report, making an economic assessment, is expected by about mid-year, energy department officials say. It will likely reduce the estimates of potential reserves.

The new figures significantly reduce the estimates from those given in 1973 when the department put the potential at 99.2 billion barrels of oil and 782.9 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

The cuts result from exclusion of inaccessible areas and new information provided from exploration programs in the North.

A separate study on the oil sands and heavy oil deposits in Alberta and Saskatchewan says they might yield between 80 billion and 200 billion barrels of oil. But economic and technical problems remain to be solved before the area reaches its potential.

The report says there is a 50-per-cent chance that up to 277 trillion cubic feet of gas will be found and a 10-per-cent chance of 378 trillion.

There is a 50-per-cent chance 30 billion barrels of oil will be found and a 10-per-cent chance of 43 billion.

It says 85 trillion cubic feet of natural gas has been discovered in Canada, including 25 trillion in the frontier

Zaire's crisis worsens

KINSHASA, Zaire (UPI) — A U.S. Embassy official said Thursday the situation in the former province of Katanga was "deteriorating" and ordered the evacuation of more Americans.

Zairean forces, bolstered by emergency U.S. and Belgian military aid, said thousands of invaders which it hinted were Soviet-backed Cuban troops were advancing through the copper-rich region but avoiding any engagement with government units.

Government sources said the invaders were "welcomed as liberators" by some Zaireans in towns they captured.

The government confirmed Thursday a small town — Sandoa, 55 miles from the Angolan border — has fallen to the rebels, who overran Dilolo, Kapanga, and Kisenge shortly after they invaded Zaire last week.

But the Zairean news agency AZAP early today denied reports by a foreign news agency that the invaders had overrun Kolwezi, a city of 200,000 persons.

Belted Ontario records 12-year low in road toll

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's traffic death toll dropped in 1976 to the lowest level recorded since 1964, James Snow, minister of transport and communications, said Thursday.

"The only reading I can get from such statistics is that the seatbelt legislation enacted on Jan. 1, 1976, coupled with lower speed limits, is working," Snow said.

CALL TO UN

Expand rights, Carter pleads

Colonist Wire Services

UNITED NATIONS — U.S. President Carter made a strong plea Thursday night for the world expansion of human rights, saying no country can claim that mistreatment of its citizens is solely its own business.

Carter, who has previously criticized the treatment of dissidents in the Soviet Union, South Korea and South America, said U.S. responsibility and support for human rights is a commitment and not just a political posture.

In remarks prepared for delivery to United Nations permanent representatives here, he also called again for a comprehensive Soviet-U.S. Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty.

"While the SALT negotiations remain deadlocked, the arms race goes on and the security of both countries and the entire world is threatened."

He preferred strict controls or even a freeze on new types of weapons, and a sharp reduction in strategic arms held by the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

But he said the two countries could perhaps more easily conclude a more limited agreement and hold further negotiations for fuller arms limitation.

Discussing the world economic situation, Carter pledged the U.S. would support an open international trading system, a concern primarily of Japan. But, he added, business concerns in the U.S. must not be ignored.

The president did not name any country in discussing human rights but said the search for peace and justice also means respect for human dignity.

"All of the signatories of the UN Charter have pledged themselves to observe and respect basic human rights," he declared.

"Thus, no member of the United Nations can claim that mistreatment of its citizens is solely its own business."

He said human rights ideals had not always been attained in the U.S., but the American people had an abiding commitment to them and were determined to deal with their deficiencies quickly and openly.

"The solemn commitments of the UN Charter, the UN's universal declaration of human rights, of the Helsinki Accord . . . must be taken just as seriously as commercial or security agreements."

Quebec soloists face federal delegation bar

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau says he will bar Quebec from attending international conferences if provincial officials continue to renounce their ties with the rest of Canada.

Trudeau said at his weekly news conference Thursday that Quebec government officials cannot go to international meetings and "behave as though the province has an international personality."

"If they do that, they won't be invited to come along on future international delegations," Trudeau said. He said international organizations will be warned by Ottawa not to invite Quebec to conferences because the province does not represent all of Canada.

Trudeau was responding to the actions of two Quebec cabinet ministers at international conferences on pollution and education in Argentina and Belgium respectively.

Quebec Environment Minister Marcel Leger starteld a world water conference in Mar Del Plata, Argentina, Wednesday by announcing that he would speak for Quebec and not for Canda.

In Brussels, Quebec Education Minister Jacques Yvan Morin refused to preside over the entire Canadian delegation at an international conference of French-speaking education ministers. The Canadian and Quebec groups sat at separate tables bearing separate flags.

Trudeau said no province has he power to speak for Canada outside the country, but provincial officisl often are asked to lead delegations to international meetings on education and other subjects under provincial jurisdiction within Canda.

Trudeau said provincial officials can talk about activities in their provinces at international meetings but they cannot formally represent Canada or bypass federal authorities in dealing with other countries.

Saying nay to Ney

By DON COLLINS

NANAIMO—The coat and Sherlock Holmes hat hit the chair on the fly and managed somehow to cling to the edges. The scarf loses the battle to gravity and is left on the broadloomed floor by a man too busy to worry about its fate.

Frank Ney is on the phone giving information on tourism to someone from B.C. Ferries, at the same time pointing to a picture of himself fishing with former baseball great Mickey Mantle.

Behind him is a carton full of miniature bathtubs to be handed to visitors as a plug for the city's big annual attraction—the Nanaimo . to Vancouver bathtub race.

"Funny thing," he says, hanging op the phone and toying with a cigar, "but here I am giving facts on tourism from one government department to somebody from another."

THIS IS NEY talking as mayor and tourism booster—not at city hall—but in the fourth floor office he occupies in the building that serves as the hub of the local real estate empire.

Life has been good to Frank Ney. Business and political success. Respect. Popularity. Widespread recognition. But now the two worlds he occupies—civic administration and real estate — are being questioned and controversy is coming into his life.

Until now the newspaper files bearing his name have been crammed with stories ranging from lattering to colorful—stories picturing Ney as both a tireless civic leader devoted to the betterment of his city, and a clown prince who doesn't mind playing the role of the buffoon to attract tourists.

But now, controversy is entering the bulging files.

A concerted effort is being made to picture the 56-year-old Ney as a big-time realtor with an obvious conflict of interest, a man who stands to gain with others as expansion takes place.

A BATTLE that concerns the man's reputation and possibly even the future direction of the enlarged city of Nanaimo is being fought over such basic subjects as sewers and water.

The questions that have been posed are these:

- Has Nanaimo become, or is it becoming a developers' paradise?
- Should a man with a deep interest in real estate and land development serve as an elected official in the area concerned?
- Or, are the intentions of Ney and his council being misunderstood, or perhaps misrepresented?
- Are those opposing the council simply a "no growth" group intent upon halting the march of Nanaimo into a bustling future?

The citizens—or at least the portion of them who actually care—have been split into two camps, one fighting against a $15.5 million sewers and water program, and the other spending considerable time and money to ensure that it goes through.

PAT BARRON and his Concerned Citizens claim that under the current scheme the taxpayers would be subsidizing developers who stand to make a considerable profit once the sewers and water system reaches outlying areas. The proposed expansion is for the servicing of suburban areas that became part of the city through amalgamation in 1974.

The 60-year-old Barron, a gadfly and obstructionist to those who don't like him, also makes these charges:

- That property tax inequities are so severe that people in plush "new" area homes are paying considerably less than those in much less expensive homes in "old" Nanaimo;
- That planned long-term financing would actually more than double the $15.5 million cost of the program;
- That because he stands to benefit through his real estate connections, Ney was in conflict of interest in voting with council for the sewers bylaw.

So far the "gadfly" Barron, has won one and lost one on the current issue. The sewers and water bylaws were to go through on council's vote alone, but the Concerned Citizens came up with enough signatures on a petition to force a referendum, scheduled for April 2.

THE LOSS has been the failure of the committee to convince Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis to call a public inquiry into the affair.

Curtis, who doesn't hestitate to defend Ney's reputation, has nevertheless put the matter before Deputy Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Long "for review." Long is tackling the job in his other role as inspector of municipalities.

Ney doesn't argue with Bar-

Trudeau said later that Canadians must get used to the idea that the challenge to national unity in Quebec will be around "for a long, long time."

And his government will persist in efforts to persuade the country to rededicate itself to unity even if popular interest in the challenge should wane.

Responding to a series of questions about the Parti Quebecois government of Quebec at his weekly news conference, Trudeau also made these points about the movement to establish an independent state of Quebec:

● The federal government would intervene to disallow any Quebec legislation that curtailed the constitutional rights of English or Protestant minorities.

● "A state based on an ethnic notion might end up as a totalitarian state."

● If Quebec separated from Canada, "I would no longer by here — I'd probably be in Quebec somewhere."

● Trudeau maintains regular communications with Quebec Premier Rene Levesque and, if necessary, he would meet with Levesque.

But Trudeau does not believe he could dissuade Levesque from seeking Quebec independence.

Trudeau was asked whether he is worried that popular interest in the Quebec independence issue might wane in time, and if his government in that case would act to keep interest high.

"Canadians should realize we'll be in this problem for a long, long time," Trudeau said. "It is a deep, ongoing problem."

The prime minister said that even if independence-minded Quebecers lose a promised referendum on independence, "if there is an active, dedicated, energetic minority of 40 per cent, they are not going to lie down the day after a referendum and say: "We love Canada!"

If Canadians say they have not heard from Leveeque lately and forget about the problem, Trudeau said, then "it is our duty as a national government to create a rededication to the union on the part of all Canadians."

And the unity problem is not only because of Quebec, he said. Albertans also feel isolated and badly served by Confederation.

I'm convinced payments are made," he said.

As for the attorney-general's statement in the house, Wallace said Gardom was playing "a semantic game."

"Since bringing the matter up I've received several letters from people who would like to talk to me," he said. "I'm not prepared to say who they are at this time, but I will be coming forward with some more cases which need answering."

The trial referred to in the Legislature was of David John Ross, 34, Victoria, who was convicted for what Gardom termed "a vicious, drug-oriented murder" of Malcolm Preston Cunningham, 23, also of Victoria.

During the trial, Caldwell claimed he was offered $50,000, a new identity and passage to Australia if he testified for the crown. The statement was eventually confirmed by the police witness.

There was also testimony in the trial that Caldwell was questioned for 23 hours while police officers worked in shift. The trial statements suggested that Caldwell eventually broke down and agreed to testify.

In the Legislature, Gardom said the total time Caldwell was being questioned was eight hours although he was in custody for more than 20 hours. Gardom said that during that time he was provided with meal breaks "and all other amenities."

The attorney-general noted that at the time of his interrogation, Caldwell "was a prospective accused, or the only eyewitness to the crime."

In defending the procedure by which crown witnesses were offered relocation, new names and other special considerations, Gardom said they were necessary because "some of our criminal elements are very lethal and may well attempt to remove those whom they consider would bring them to justice or transgressed so-called underworld codes.

If Quebec takes such action, their officials will not be included in Canadian delegations for future meetings and international organizations will be told not to issue separate invitations to the province.

"They just won't come — too bad," Trudeau said.

six to eight months after her death?

"I'm extremely suspicious of any such statement," he said.

"There was no evidence to confirm that he (Quilt) was run over," said Rankin. "If he had been run over there would have been tire tracks on his coat and jacket and body, and there wasn't."

Quilt's death in hospital triggered an investigation that caused prolonged racial controversy.

He had been taken from a stalled truck two days before by two RCMP constables who said Quilt had been drinking.

He was taken to a home on the Anaheim reserve nearby and subsequently taken to hospital in Williams Lake by ambulance on the day he died.

Two inquests were held into the death, which caused widespread attention because of Indian complaints that Quilt was beaten by police.

The first inquest, held in Williams Lake in January, 1972, was quashed by the B.C. Supreme Court on the grounds there was an association between two members of the jury and the RCMP.

A verdict at that inquest absolved the police of blame.

A second inquest, held Aug. 3, 1972, in Kamloops, ruled that Quilt died following an injury received while being handled by police; however, the jury attached no blame and said the injury was caused by an unknown blunt object applied with unknown force.

A nephew, Robin Quilt, 20, testified at the second inquest that Quilt told him shortly after the incident that "the police hurt me."

Quilt's widow, and sister-in-law Agnes, testified that they saw a police officer in plain clothes jump up and down on Quilt, shouting, "Get up, you son of a bitch."

Robin Quilt testified that his uncle, who was "pretty drunk", was driving and stopped the truck on the highway Nov. 28, where police later found the group. He said he did not see police jump on his uncle.

RCMP officers testified they took Fred Quilt from the driver's seat of the truck and that Quilt fell as he was being pulled out.

Rankin said after the inquests that the case was the first to rally native people around "an issue of national importance and perhaps international importance."

Indians and civil rights campaigners flocked to both inquests. Indian spokesmen said the case was a flagrant example of police brutality toward Indians.

One of the results of the prolonged proceedings was setting up of a committee to improve relations between police and Indians.

Some firms to shed crown role

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Bennett said Wednesday that some B.C. crown corporations will soon be returning to private enterprise.

Bennett also told 235 party supporters at a $100-a-plate Social Credit party fund-raising dinner that the government will not use legislation to regulate construction industry bargaining this year even though 65 per cent of major labor contracts in the province are up for negotiation.

He made the comments during a question-and-answer session following his speech.

Bennett's shortest answer of the night came when asked if any crown corporations would be returning to private enterprise.

"Yes, and soon," he replied. He did not elaborate.

"This is a very difficult philosophical question," he said when asked about regulating construction industry bargaining.

Forcing unwilling unions to join one group would be as odious as doing the same to management groups, he said.

"Your companies should stop dealing in one-year contracts and get some stability into the industry," he said. "Collective bargaining can't be solved by more and more government legislation."

The government will bring in amendments to the labor code, he added, but "we're not prepared to take heavy action against any side."

Bennett also said he does not believe the federal government will end the anti-inflation board program this year, but if it does, B.C. is considering alternatives to replace the program.

Bennett said the government is studying all taxes, and the first tax it would remove in future would be the sales tax. He did not elaborate.

areas. Oil discovered totals 8.5 billion barrels.

The study says "the bulk of the hydrocarbon potential, mainly gas, lies in the three frontier regions — the Mackenzie delta-Beaufort Sea, Arctic Islands and the Labrador shelf regions which are expensive and difficult to explore."

It adds that in the frontier the largest part of the potential likely will occur in offshore areas "with very hostile environments and attendant high costs, logistical problems and environmental risks."

The federal government sees the oil sands and the heavy oil deposits as a significant source of petroleum, but adds that it will be expensive — between $15 and $17 a barrel compared with the current domestic price of $9.75 — and much of it awaits new technology.

With only one plant in operation and one more being constructed, Ottawa and Alberta are discussing ways to make industry more interested in oil sands development.

Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a woman, 33, and quite healthy. On my right buttock I have what is called a lipoma. Could you please tell me a little about this? Should it be removed? I don't have any pain or discomfort from it, but I do realize it is there, — Mrs. V.

A lipoma is a fatty tumor (lipo means fat). It appears as a localized lump of fat. Actually it is sometimes difficult to tell it from surrounding fat deposits. They are painless and only rarely malignant.

Lipomas are quite common, occuring most often at the back of the neck, the abdomen, buttocks and arms. If they become a nuisance they can be removed surgically. However, the result may be a depression at the lump site, so it's a choice you have — the lump or the depression.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please tell me why my gynecologist insists on a Pap smear when I had a hysterectomy five years ago. I am 47. — S.K.

Because the cervix apparently remains and is still subject to the same problems as before removal of your uterus (hysterectomy).

Irish police recapture IRA guerrilla

DUBLIN (Reuter) — One of Britain's most wanted men, IRA guerrilla Kieran McMorrow, has been captured after a gunbattle near the Northern Irish border, police said Thursday.

McMorrow, 26, had dodged arrest since 1973 when he headed a list of guerrillas suspected of bombings and murders in England.

He had a number of spectacular escapes from British law before being caught by Irish troops after a gunfight on a farm.

ron's statement that he (the mayor) has a financial interest in some 90 companies and that 21 of these have some connection with property and land. The information was all there, he points out, when he made his public discolosures — and none of this has changed.

What he does argue against, however — and with some conviction — is that his prominent position in the real estate empire in any way keeps him from doing a good and completely above-board job as mayor.

"I OBJECT to the cloak and dagger inferences that have been aimed at council," he says.

Among other things, Ney is president of Great National Land and Investment Corp. Ltd., and Nanaimo Realty, its real estate arm. In its 12th annual report Great National Land was listed as wholly owning 13 other companies and having control of another nine.

As he hurries across Nanaimo in his luxury car during a typically hectic day, Ney seems momentarily stuck for an answer when asked if he is a millionaire.

In the end he says he isn't. But he says so in the hesitant manner of someone who may not be sure what his dollars and cents worth is.

"I've only got a small interest in some of those companies," he says.

IT ISN'T the total worth that bothers Barron. It's Ney's involvement in development.

"We are strongly of the opinion that no land developers be allowed to hold office in the same community where their business is located," he says.

"We are concerned in our committee that because of the influence of developers, the taxpayers are being taken advantage of — that they are footing the bill for the developers."

Ney attacks this statement and the municipal affairs minister comes to his defence.

Barron has made a point of saying the minister is on record as declaring he doesn't believe that anyone having land dealings in a community should hold office in that community.

BUT CURTIS says he was not dictating rules, that it was only a personal opinion.

"As I recall it, I qualified this by saying it was a personal view — that were I active in real estate in a community I would be very reluctant to go into office."

While he said he held "no particular brief for Mayor Ney," Curtis said he found it necessary to point out that Ney's "activities have a very high profile and they always have had."

He felt that the referendum on the controversial bylaws would problably serve the cause better than any public inquiry.

"That's also a pretty good court," indicating that the voting public would be the judge.

BARRON HAS tried unsuccessfully to meet with Curtis. The minister has said he would only agree to a meeting if both sides are represented. So far, that hasn't been arranged.

In a documented letter to Curtis, Barron argued that Ney's position with his large development company and his "personal holdings of land in these benefiting areas makes it impossible to be unbiased."

He adds: "It is the opinion of the Concerned Citizens Committee of Nanaimo that this is a grave abuse of public trust and of the public purse. It is also the opinion of the committee that it constitutes a breach of moral and social justice and is clearly in conflict of interest."

In recent years Barron and his committee have successfully blocked a couple of controversial Nanaimo developments and lost out in one other such battle. They also failed in an earlier bid to prove Ney was in conflict of interest. In that case the ruling was that the zoning bylaw voted on was of general rather than specific nature.

Citizen Barron:

'We are strongly of the opinion that no land developers be allowed to hold office in the same community where their business is located'

BARRON HAS also been quick to pick other targets. He has accused the newspapers of Nanaimo of being lined up against him, has filed a complaint about the weekly Times with the Human Rights Commission and has also complainted officially about the radio station.

In addition to this, he has suggested to Curtis that "public disciplinary action" be taken against Nanaimo administrator Ted Chace. He accuses Chase of supporting the bylaws in public and making policy statements "outside the bounds of propriety."

In an interview, Barron said he isn't opposed to the sewers and water expansion in the areas where it is needed, but only to the manner in which it is being advocated.

He said the suggestion is that there will be a tax increase of about 10 per cent and that it will be across the board — the same for those in both the "old" and "new" city. This would only increase the disparity, he said.

HE GIVES these examples of the current tax situation: The owner of a $120,000 home in the choice subdiviion of Cilaire pays less than $1,000 a year in property taxes, while the owner of a $75,000 home in the "old city" pays $1,500. On Protection Island, the owner of a $50,000 home pays $160.

Ney says Barron should be aware that a five-year moratorium was set on the question of tax equality at the time of the amalgamation. The idea was to equalize the taxes over five years and in the first two years and two months the disparity has been reduced from a average of 25 mills to 19 mills, Ney says.

To greatly increase the rural taxes before the homeowners have the services would, he says, bring a great howl of protest.

Ney admits his companies will, like many others, have dealings in some of the areas to be serviced. But he says there was no conflict of interest on his part because the subject is once again general and not concerning a specific piece of land.

NEY ALSO denies the Concerned Citizens claim that the developers will be reaping big profits at the expense of the taxpayers.

"There are thousands of parcels of land. Some belong to developers, but some are owned by families who have owned them for 50 years.

"Unlike some cities, we make developers pay 100 per cent of the on-site costs, plus a $1,300 per lot impost fee—the highest of its kind on Vancouver Island."

But Barron says a developer told him at a public meeting it cost him $7,200 to put a lot "on stream" and that he would sell it for $17,500.

He said he asked the developer if he wouldn't be prepared to shoulder the service hookup costs as a result, but was told: "Certainly not—that's up to the taxpayers."

"I find that immoral," he said.

NEY EXPRESSES doubt that any developer would make such a statement. But if the man wasn't misquoted, then he (Ney) has no sympathy with him, he says.

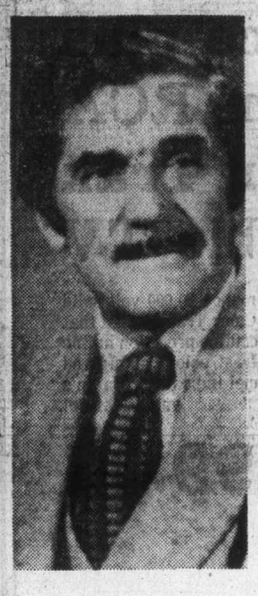

He says one of the stipulations of amalgamation was to supply sewer and water service to all areas and now that the matter has been forced to a public vote, he fears the city may be facing a serious situation.

"I don't know what will happen if they vote against it," he says. "We'll be in a real mess."

The latest poll apparently shows about 55 per cent of the voters in favor of the bylaws.

Ney says he does not agree with the thought that real estate men and developers shouldn't serve on council.

"Under the democratic process, everybody has that right — everybody from every walk of life.

Mayor Ney:

'When we start to segregate people we are getting into that old field of divide and conquer. And then we are getting into anarchy?

When we start to segregate people we are getting into that old field of divide and conquer. And then we are getting into anarchy."

Anyone who would rule out real estate people might eventually rule out others, he says. He suggests the next in line might be media people because of the fear that they "would control people's minds" and teachers because 54 per cent of the budget goes to education.

"If you start that kind of thing, where do you stop?" Ney asks.

He says he considers himself possibly the "hardest working mayor in Canada" and claims that as a real estate man he is in a position to offer much to the city, rather than hinder it.

"I am in a position to realize just what taxes mean," he says.

I SHOULD know. This building of ours (new Nanaimo Trust building) pays $35,000 taxes a year."

If the whole question has split the city, there's no real uniformity to the two sides. There are businessmen for and against Ney and union people in oposite camps.

"I don't go for the guy's grandstanding, the pirate costumes he wears, the bathtubs he hands out and stuff like that," says one downtown merchant. "But I'll tell you this much: Frank Ney has done a helluva lot for this city. And he's given things to the city of his own without any publicity—like the cherry trees lining the road as you come into town."

The matter got as far as the executive level at the Nanaimo-Duncan District Labor Council, but never came into bloom before a regular meeting.

"The feeling of the executive," says labor council president Bob Rogers, "is that we should steer clear of this. We've got members on both sides of the questions. We didn't think it was worth splitting the membership."

MURRAY GRAY, a staff representative for the Canadian Union of Public Employees says: "I think the whole democratic system is being lost because of the pressure groups on both sides."

Opposing the Concerned Citizens is the Nanaimo Action Committee, seen by some as a developers' lobby. It has been taking out large newspaper ads and lengthy radio commercials.

One last word of defence from Frank Ney: "Sure I won by a good majority last time — 67 per cent of the vote. And I'll tel you this. Everyone who voted knew before they did so that I was in real estate."

Sound workers Serve notice

VANCOUVER (CP) — Electrical workers employed in the sound and communication industry Wednesday, served 72-hour strike notice on their employers.

The 50 workers, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 213, are seeking wage parity with inside wiremen in the construction industry at $11 an hour.

Son encaged for 13 years

OSAKA, Japan (Reuter) — Police have arrested a farmer suspected of keeping his mentally retarded son in a cage for the last 13 years. Police said the 18-year-old son was discovered in a six-foot-by-six-foot cage in the storeroom of a farmhouse near here. He was taken to hospital in a weak condition.

No more diet pop, just pure saccharin will be available, only from druggist

Sweet life soured for diabetics

'The bureaucrats will never forget thalidomide'

By PAUL DE GROOT
Colonist Reporter

Life will not be so sweet for diabetics with the government's decision to phase out the use of saccharin in Canada, Greater Victoria sufferers of the disease say.

Brian Tapp, chairman of the diabetes fund drive which is going on this month, says there is a feeling of disappointment among diabetics who will lose not only the soft drinks which non-diabetics also consume, but also other dietetic foods which form part of almost every diabetic's diet.

"You get awful sick of tea and coffee and only eight ounces of milk a day," one diabetic said. "This regulation is not hurting anyone but diabetics. Other people can take other measures to keep their weight down, but the only sweets that diabetics get are the ones with artificial sweeteners."

(Sales of pure saccharin will be limited to drug stores in September.)

"We can live a normal life, but they're taking away all the pleasures," she said.

The number of cans of diet pop which would have to be consumed to equal the intake of the laboratory animals which showed signs of cancer after exhaustive testing is quite prohibitive, Tapp noted.

Just how valid are the tests, in which rats were fed daily doses of saccharin about 800 times higher than that found in a typical 12-ounce can of diet pop?

Dr. James Buckley of the UVic department of bacteriology and biochemistry said such tests raise many questions.

"First of all we're talking about different species. There's the number of animals involved in the test — is it large enough to be significant? Are they all males or females? What level of intake are we talking about?"

"We daily eat far more toxic substances than saccharin," Buckley said. "We would be hard put to find something to eat if everything with a potentially-harmful substance were banned."

The ban on saccharin is partly political, he said. Laws in the U.S., for instance, state that substances which fail certain tests must be banned. Canadian law is not quite as clear-cut, Buckley said.

But "the bureaucrats will never forget thalidomide," Buckley said, and they are in large part responding to a strong public wish to be protected against harmful substances. The problem is that "we want to be protected, but not so that it hurts, and a ban on saccharin does hurt some people."

Buckley said he hadn't seen the actual data from the experiments with rats that led to the ban, but based on what he had read about it, he would probably support the ban, for rather complex scientific reasons, although he admitted that the decision would not be an easy one to make.

Dr. Glenn Friesen, a Victoria heart specialist, dismissed as "ridiculous" statements made by some authorities that a ban on saccharin would result in 2,500 more heart attacks a year in Canada because of higher sugar intake and obesity.

Heart disease takes many years to develop, and once it has reached an advanced stage, it is irreversible, regardless of the diet of the patient, Friesen said.

Thus, short-term effects of the saccharin ban are likely to be negligible, and the long-term effects would be debatable, Friesen said.

Fieldhouse investigation

Error still mystery

By JOHN HENDERSON
Colonist Reporter

PORT ALBERNI — Despite "the most extensive investigation" by the administration of School District 70, the exact cause of an error in the ceiling height of a new fieldhouse currently being constructed at Alberni elementary school has not been identified.

This was the report of school superintendent Ron Lyon to the regular meeting this week of the district school board.

IT WAS at the last meeting of the educational committee of the board that the error came to light through a letter from the principal of the school, Elmer Matthews, who pointed out that the ceiling height of the new building was a mere 13 feet at the wall and just over 15 feet at the centre. The specified height for gymnasiums and field houses was 18 feet minimum at the walls, 20 feet at the centre, in order for them to be used for such sports as volleyball and basketball.

On receipt of his letter, the administration ordered an immediate halt on the construction and instigated an investigation into how the error had occurred.

LYON TOLD the board that the investigation had gone all the way back to the spring of 1975, when a variety of plans were being discussed in connection with the school's need for improved recreation facilities.

When the final decision had been made to build the fieldhouse, he said, many alternatives had been discussed because of a shortage in funding "and this may have led to some confustion".

He said, however, he had been able to trace the original design drawings for the fieldhouse, and there was "no doubt that these called for the higher ceiling height."

TRUSTEE Ron Burley, then and now the chairman of the building committee, said he had gone back over all his reports, and could find no reference to any difficulty or even discussion about constructing the fieldhouse "in any but a normal manner."

"I can find no reference to any discussion that the roof of the building should be anything but the accepted height, and can recall none, so obviously all of us were assuming a normal situation," he said.

Lyon confirmed this, and said that his further investigations into the mattter had failed to turn up "the point at which the original design was changed, or for what reason."

"IT IS A prefabricated structure, so obviously the contractor and any sub-contractors working on the job cannot be at fault," he said.

He had been unable to find any subsequent design drawings showing the ceiling height.

In any case, Lyon said, structural engineers had been called in to ascertain whether the ceiling joists could be extended an additional four feet, which they had estimated would cost about $6,000. They had, however, returned with a verdict that such an extension would produce too much stress, and the entire outer walls would have to be replaced. This would double the original estimate to approximately $12,000.

AT THE SAME time, Lyon announced that agreement had been reached with the city parks and recreation commission that it undertake to add a 12 foot extension along one side of the new building for the future installation of kitchens, locker and storage space and meeting rooms to accommodate public use of the building, with the board's approval.

Since the outer walls were to be replaced in any case, Lyon said, this request could be accommodated without difficulty and at minimal cost. The commission had given no indication as to when it would install such facilities, but wanted the space ready when it could accommodate the additions in its own budget.

THE BOARD gave approval to both the recommendation to reconstruct the building to accomplish the new ceiling height and to provide the commission with the additional space requested.

One trustee remarked that it was unfortunate the administration had not been able to pinpoint the time at which the error occurred. "I'd like to know that such a thing wouldn't happen again," he said.

Lyon assured him that "after this experience, I can assure you that there will be no recurrence of the problem."

Girl, 16 found hanged in cell

COURTENAY (CP) A 16-year-old runaway was found hanged in RCMP cells here Thursday.

The girl, who ran away from a holding home in Parksville, was found by a police matron at 1 a.m. Police said a strip of blanket was used by the girl.

Coroner Ken Scott of Campbell River has ordered an inquest.

Nanaimo rivalled in steel mill bid

Nanaimo Mayor Frank Ney has an official rival in his bid to encourage construction of a steel mill in the Nanaimo area.

Walter Davidson (SC — Delta) said Thursday he had written the mayor and council of Delta and the North Delta Chamber of Commerce, urging them to consider the possibility of persuading the government to build the steel manufacturing complex at Roberts bank.

The steel mill proposal was revived last Monday when Economic Development Minister Donald Phillips suggested that the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island request him to conduct social and environmental impact studies in the Nanaimo area as a phase two project to bring such a mill to the Island.

Ney said Wednesday he would welcome such studies but David Stupich (NDP — Nanaimo) said he would oppose any attempt to locate the industrial plant on the Island. Stupich claims there is not enough water or power to support such a project short of nuclear power.

Nanaimo was one of the top sites selected in phase one studies undertaken by New Democratic Party administration but Nanimo was quickly removed from the list by cabinet order.

Davidson said he was convinced a modern steel mill could be built to meet "every environmental requisite."

He added that Roberts Bank "with its tidewater facilities and rail access, could be proven as the most desirable site in B.C. for this project."

It is estimated that if the Japanese-B.C. government project went ahead it would cost about $3.5 billion and would create hundreds of jobs in the construction stage of the on-going steel making processes.

Davidson said that if local officials in Delta responded favorably to his request he would do all he could to persuade the provincial cabinet to select the Roberts Bank site.

The proposed steel mill first came to public attention when Gary Lauk (NDP — Vancouver Centre) was economic development minister. He has accused his successor, Phillips, "of blowing the deal with Japan" during the minister's late 1976 trip to Tokyo.

Phillips said earlier this week that the proposed steel mill project had never been abandoned." The studies were just suspended," he said. "But the options and the interest are still very much alive."

Indians win grant, loan

Urban Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet announced Thursday the approval of $199,600 in federal funds to the Cowichan Indian band. The funds will be used to construct eight single detached dwellings on band property and will be rented to member families of low and moderate income.

The development will consist of five three-bedroom and three five-bedroom homes. Total cost will be $359,000 with $160,000 being provided from band funds and Indian affairs department allocation.

Federal funding for this development includes a 10 per cent capital grant of $35,900 and a long-term repayable loan of $163,640.

This is the first non-profit loan to be made to the Cowichan Indian band. The loan, provided under the non-profit section of the National Housing Act, is for a term of 35 years and the interest rate of 9¾ per cent is reduced by a federal grant to make it an effective eight per cent.

Capfull of fun

For the first time this winter Mt. Arrowsmith near Port Alberni has full cap of snow, which accounted for estimated 1,100 or more skiers being on mountain both Saturday and Sunday. Arrowsmith ski facility opened only last week for first time of a season even worse than last year, when skiing didn't start till February. It will stay open daily "as long as possible."

Keep Protection Island—council

NANAIMO — City council doesn't want Protection Island to secede from the city.

That was the indication this week after the Island Ratepayers' Association had asked council to take a poll of aldermen so it knew where it stood on the issue.

Council didn't take a poll but unanimously passed a motion by Ald. Nelson Allen that the island was in the city and council should deal with it on that basis.

In a letter to council the association said until a formal stand was taken by all members of council, it would be wasting its time trying to resolve problems on the island.

The island is currently without a regular ferry service to serve the 350 residents and is waiting for the April 2 vote on the controversial sewer and water bylaw to find out whether a water line will be built across the harbor.

The ferry, which has been on and off since last fall, was halted at the end of February when operator Bob Armstrong said he couldn't carry on unless he received a $25,000 a year subsidy.

AHOP losing some appeal

PORT ALBERNI — With the recent decline in home mortgage rates through regular channels to a 10 per cent level and CMHC financing availalbe, interest in a local AHOP (Assisted Home Ownership Plan) building scheme has declined.

The developer of the low-cost ($38,000) units, Pearson Johnstone and Associates, had convinced the city to participate in the AHOP plan last fall on terms of providing lots in its Cameron Heights subdivision at a reduced price of $13,500. Some 30 lots were set aside for the program.

Under the federal plan, first-time buyers could move into the new suits far as little as $500 down and a mortgage rate of only 9¼ per cent.

Since then, eight of the new homes have been built and occupied, and a further 12 are close to completion.

However, the company advised city council at a late February meeting, with the lowering on rates on conventional mortgages, buyers were indicating greater interest in obtaining houses under Central Mortgage and Housing guidelines with greater amenities than were available with the basic AHOP design the company was offering.

It therefore requested that the company be allowed to buy the remaining lots set aside for the AHOP plan at the same price but to be allowed to build housing other than AHOP units on them.

The request was turned over to the city finance committee and its recommendations came back to this week's council meeting.

The committee recommended that while the 12 lots remaining in the AHOP "reserve" be still available for that purpose, they be also made available for other types of housing.

Should they be used for AHOP units, the committee said, the price would be as agreed upon with the company, the lot price should return to that listed orginally in the city prospectus for the subdivision.

In effect, the city returned the 12 lots to the open market, since, unless the company sells them for the AHOP program, any buyer may bid on them at the prospectus price. The city had never agreed to sell the lots directly to the company, but only to the buyer of a unit on them.

March 26 lucky

Saturday, March 26, could be your lucky day if you bought a Shawnigan Lake School raffle ticket on a 1977 car or a two week vacation at Maui.

Winning tickets will be drawn from 15,000 sold on Vancouver Island, Vancouver and the Lower Mainland.

Duncan Mayor Ken Paskin will draw the winning car ticket and Miss Victoria will pull the vacation winner. Other winners will also be announced.

Students sold the tickets to raise money for the school band's upcoming Easter tour on the United States west coast and a later summer trip to Europe.

The rowers will participate in England regattas and then travel to France, Italy and West Germany for a three week cultural tour.

Meanwhile the band will play a series of 10 concerts in Washington, Oregon and California making appearances at the Seattle Centre and Disneyland, and give a special first-year school jazz concert for the inmates of San Quentin State prison.

At a warmup, band director Lance Bean has invited the public to attend a special concert featuring the band and choir of Strathcona Lodge School for Girls scheduled at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, March 23.

The raffle draw is open to the public and Headmaster Horace McClelland also invites people to view the school, learn its purpose and values and inspect displays students have prepared in connection with their end of term open house.

Woman receives city's appreciation

PORT ALBERNI — A local woman has become one of the few recipients of a Certificate of Appreciation from the city of Port Alberni for her contribution to community work.

Mayor Howard McLean presented the certificate to Mrs. Helen Patenaude at a recent meeting of city council on the occasion of her ccompletion of six years as a director of the city's parks and recreation commission, the last two as chairman of that body.

The mayor also made mention of Mrs. Patenaude's other activities in the community in making the award.

She has been actively involved in the Family Guidance service for several years, and was a board member of Smith Independent School before that institution was forced to close last year because of financial problems. She has also been active in church affairs.

Mrs. Patenaude and her husband came to Port Alberni in the late 1940s and have made their home here since.

Patenaude
. . . 'fun, fascinating'

They are, the parents of three children, two boys and a girl.

Along with her other activities, Mrs. Patenaude is a student in religious anthropology at the new North Island College here. "It's fun and it's fascinating," she says.

Point nailed down

By JIM GIBSON
Colonist Reporter

A lumpy mattress is about as close as most people get to a bed of nails but there's nothing to lying on the real thing, according to Komar the Hindu fakir who, back home in the Ohio cheese factory, is known as Vernon E. Craig.

"Almost anyone in the audience can lie down on a bed of nails," the turbaned Craig told a crowd who watched him do just that in a demonstration Wednesday at Hillside mall.

The only audience participation Craig could muster was to get six volunteers to balance atop the smooth side of a second board of nails which had Craig sandwiched between 450 spikes.

"I feel the pressure of the nails but not the pain," said Craig, who boasts three pain-defying entries into the Guinness Book of World Records.

Komar in action gives painless interview to reporter Gibson

Craig travels with the medical conviction that he's just as sensitive to pain as the next guy but the secret to his ouch-less stunts is his state of mind while performing them.

While anyone might try a simple stretch on a bed of nails, Craig warned people against trying any of his more elaborate stunts which had the mall crowd cringing, all in an attempt to promote the Victoria ESP Spectacular, a sort of psychic bazaar slated for Monday and Tuesday at the Empress.

The fancy stuff takes a bit of training. Before Craig lies down on the nails, walks on hot coals or climbs a ladder of knives, he switches his state where pain no longer exists for him.

And the 45-year-old Craig has been working on that one which enables him not only to eradicate pain but also alter circulatory and respiratory patterns since as an eight-year-old boy he found a discarded book on yoga in a garbage can.

Just how successful or reliable Craig has been in altering his mind to make otherwise painful experiences almost pleasant has been documented and tested at several universities and medical centres. Craig checks in this week at the University of Victoria psychology department to have his pain sensations tested.

Aside from making him a bit of a lucrative freak-show-style attraction, Craig's talent is not without some benefit for his everyday life. He hasn't been sick or even had a headache in years.

All the show-business spectacle doesn't appeal to Craig. But he regards it as necessary nonetheless to make people aware of his message that life without pain is possible if certain steps are followed which he explains in his paid lectures and book.

After all, who would believe that a stocky little man from an Ohio cheese factory would know anything about the workings of the brain, let alone the eradication of pain?

Judge rules for Kuhn in suit filed by Finley

CHICAGO (AP) — Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has virtual dictatorial powers over baseball, a federal judge ruled Thursday.

McGarr ruled that Kuhn had the authority to void the $3.5 million sales last June of Oakland stars Joe Rudi, Rollie Fingers and Vida Blue.

There was no evidence of ill will or capriciousness on Kuhn's part, McGarr said.

"The fact that this case has commanded a great deal of attention in the vociferous world of baseball fans, and has provoked widespread and not always unemotional discussions, tends to obscure the relative simplicity of the legal issues involved," McGarr wrote.

All the rhetoric and name-calling, he said, boiled down to a single issue. The current major-league agreement and its history "are all to the effect that the commissioner has the authority to determine whether any act . . . is 'not in the best interests of baseball' and . . . to take whatever preventive or remedial action he deems appropriate," McGarr wrote.

"The questionable wisdom of this broad delegation of power is not before the court," McGarr said. "What the parties intended is. And what the parties clearly intended was that the commissioner was to have jurisdiction to prevent any conduct destructive of the confidence of the public in the integrity of baseball.

"So broad and unfettered was his discretion intended to be that they provided no right of appeal and even took the extreme step of foreclosing their own access to the courts."

"We seem to have a good result and I am obviously pleased," Kuhn said. "I think it's a good sign for the future of professional baseball."

"I've said right along that there really was more at stake here than a hassle between Charley Finley and Bowie Kuhn. What is more important is the fact that the court upheld the commissioner's authority to do what he thinks is right for baseball. The overriding question was what was good for professional baseball."

Finley was clearly disappointed, and said he will appeal.

"Maybe it's 18 years of blood, sweat and sacrifice down the drain," Finley said. ". . . This is the decision of just one man. We believe that 90 per cent of the judges in the United States would have reached the opposite decision and we think the judges of the appellate court will, too."

Joe Burke, general manager of Kansas City Royals, welcomed the decision backing Kuhn.

"It confirms, if nothing else, the power of the commissioner," Burke said. "The judge's decision really solidifies the commissioner's role at this point. It's tough to tell a man he can't sell his assets but all along we felt what Finley did was not good for the game."

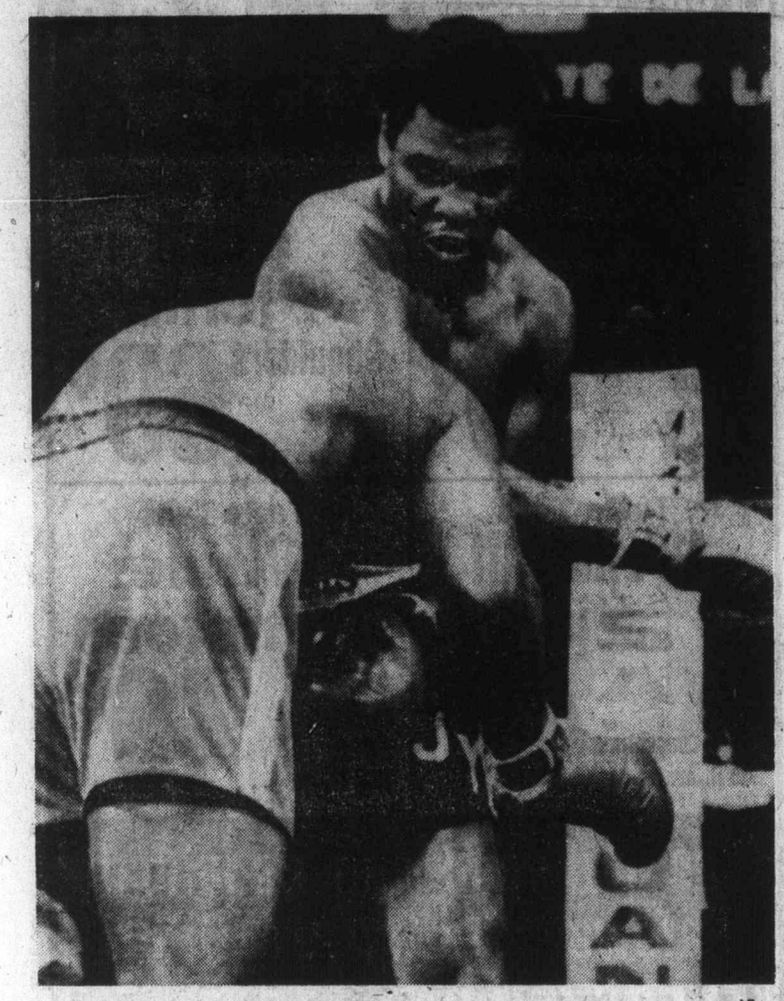

Kuhn said it was difficult to reach his decision to block the sales of Blue to New York Yankees and Fingers and Rudi to Boston Red Sox.

"The problem with the deals tipping baseball's competitive balance in mid-season was very apparent," the commissioner said.

"But the decision to go ahead and stop them was difficult because I knew it would generate litigation, trouble and harassment which the game didn't need. You must balance those things and do what you think is right."

"My discussion with him was serious and not acrimonious," Kuhn recalled. "Finley explained that he had to sell the players for the good of the team and would use the money to rebuild the team. My question was whether that was feasible."

Foreman admitted to hospital after stunning loss to Young

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Jimmy Young stunned the boxing world Thursday night by beating George Foreman, who about an hour after the fight was carried from his dressing room on a stretcher and taken to a hospital in an ambulance.

Foreman was on the losing end of a 12-round decision and in the final round was knocked down by Young, who said he had sensed three rounds earlier that Foreman was very tired.

Young brought a sellout crowd of 10,000 roaring fans in the Roberto Clemente Coliseum to their feet in the 12th and final round.

With Foreman pressing him into a corner, Young unleashed a series of six solid head shots that sent the former champion reeling backwards, obviously hurt.

Foreman lasted the round, but the crowd sensed the outcome as it cheered "Jimmy Young, Jimmy Young."

Schmidt scored it 118-111 for Young under the 10-point must system. Judge Cesar Ramos saw it 116-112 for Young and judge Ishmael Fernandez called it 115-114 Young.

Young showed his coolness in the seventh round, when it looked as though Foreman would end the fight with a knockout.

In the first 15 seconds of the round, as Young backed along the ropes, Foreman unleashed a powerful left hook that badly stunned the Philadelphian, who reeled across the ring with Foreman in pursuit.

For most of the first two minutes of the round, Foreman was in complete command, but could not land the punch to put Young down.

Young did not panic and did not try to fight his way out of trouble. His head gradually cleared and he came back in the final minute with several head shots that had the crowd cheering him on.

Before the fight, Young had said the fifth round would be the decisive round. He was two rounds off, but he could care less.

The victory may have earned Young another shot at Ali, to whom he lost a disputed decison last year. Promoter Don King shouted from the ring, "We're going to make Young-Ali."

When asked about a Foreman-Ali rematch, King said, simply: "We want to get George back into the ring as soon as possible."

While the loss does not rule out another Foreman-Ali fight, it certainly hurt Foreman's financial bargaining power.

Foreman, who seldom has had to go more than five rounds in his 47-bout career, proved to doubters that he could go the distance. But it was costly proof.

Foreman, who weighted 229, was paid $700,000 for the fight which was shown live on home television in the United States and parts of Canada. The payday could be his best for some time.

Young's greatest victory was his 21st against five losses and two draws. Foreman's defeat, which snapped a five-bout winning streak that began after his title loss to Ali in 1974, was his second against 45 wins.

In a preliminary bout, Alfredo Escalera of Puerto Rico retained his junior lightweight boxing title when he stopped Ronnie McGarvey in the sixth round of their scheduled 15-rounder.

The end came at 2:03 of the sixth round when Escalera, defending his World Boxing Council crown for the eighth time, caught McGarvey with a right to the chin.

Referee Abraham Chavarria of Mexico gave McGarvey an eight count, and, after the challenger had regained his feet, stopped the fight.

By JIM TANG

Only British Columbia is left hanging on the ropes as unbeaten Manitoba and Saskatchewan, who meet this afternoon at the Victoria Curling Club, head into the last three rounds of the Canadian police curling championship.

The co-leaders both won their seventh and eighth games on Thursday, and only Bob Hawkes and his Victoria RCMP rink, at 6-2 after two Thursday wins, managed to stay close enough to retain a mathematical chance of catching up and getting a playoff chance at the Rothman Silver Stone. Eliminated Thursday were Alberta, New Brunswick and Northern Ontario, who shared third place with B.C. after Wednesday play.

On what happened Thursday, it looks like a toss-up in this afternoon's crucial matchup between the co-leaders.

Roy Gislason and his defending champions from the Winnipeg RCMP have looked stronger each time out, and Thursday never went into the ninth end in disposing of two potentially-dangerous opponents — Bill Dustin and his Thunder Bay City Police rink, by 8-2, and Murray Macara of Territories, 10-2.

It was tougher for youthful Norm Gilbertson and his Saskatoon City Police rink. The Saskatchewan champions did breeze in the afternoon, by 7-2 over then-winless Quebec, but Northern Ontario's Dustin yielded only to a last-rock hit-and-stay which brought a 7-6 decision on the evening draw.

The Saskatchewan-Northern Ontario game was easily the highlight of Thursday's play. Saskatchewan, stealing single points on the third and fourth ends for a 3-1 lead, appeared to have taken control. But Dustin got a point on the fifth end and stole on the seventh end after Gilbertson had deliberatedly blanked the sixth.

Dustin fanned on both takeout attempts on the eighth end, and again it seemed decided when Gilbertson had a free draw for three which sent him into the ninth end at 6-3.

A draw to the edge of the four-foot ring fully behind cover by second Bob Armstrong, set up the ninth end, and Dustin was able to draw for three after Gilbertson wrecked trying to come down to second rock.

And Saskatchewan was in early trouble on the home end, Northern Ontario getting a covered rock not far from the front of the four-foot ring. But three failures to replace the guard left Dustin facing an open house when he came down for his last rock.

He drew into the four-foot circle, and Gilbertson made a perfect hit to avoid an extra end.

B.C. started badly Thursday, and was 0-3 after two ends of the afernoon game against New Brusnwick's Sonny Hiretle, who had been proving tough to handle. But the Victorians came on strongly and pulled away to an 11-5 win.

And it was surprisingly easy for the B.C. champions against Ken Ursuliak and his Edmonton City Police rink on the evening draw.

Hawkes, who had come up light with a free draw for two on the second end, started the turn on the fourth end with a delicate tapout for two to take a 3-2 lead. And Ursuliak completed it on the fifth end when he got only to the front rink with a last-rock draw against three B.C. rocks clustered in or close to the four-foot ring.

Ursuliak, the all-star skip in the Alberta Consols playdowns this year, has so far not hit expected form. But he could still have a big bearing on the decision about who is to take possession of the Rothman Silver Stone. He is in against Manitoba Saturday morning in the scheduled draw, and he could force a playoff if Manitoba defeats Saskatchewan this afternoon.

However, a Saskatchewan victory is expected by most to be decisive. The Saskatoon rink plays winless Newfoundland this morning and closes out against Ontario. Manitoba starts today against New Brunswick.

Bruins top Sabres for share of lead

Boston Bruins, the hottest team in the National Hockey League at the moment, are back in a first-place tie with Buffalo Sabres in the Adams Division.

Bruins stretched an unbeaten streak to 11 games Thursday by scoring a 4-2 win over the Sabres before 13,110 fans, one of the better crowds of the season at Boston Garden.

The Bruin victory, ninth in the unbeaten run, leaves each team with 94 points and eight games to play, including a return match March 30 in Buffalo.

Bruins never trailed in the game although Buffalo recovered from a two-goal deficit in the first period to tie the game heading into the final 20 minutes.

Veteran winger Don Marcotte snapped the tie midway through the final period by backhanding the puck over a mass of bodies in front of the Sabre net.

Defenceman Rick Smith, who returned to the Bruins this season after a stay in the World Hockey Association, cinched the victory with an unassisted goal with less than five minutes remaining.

Terry O'Reilly and Jean Ratelle, playing in his 999th NHL game, also scored for the Bruins and Jim Schoenfeld and Rene Robert replied for the Sabres, who were outshot 28-20.

In another key game, Atlanta Flames took a big step toward a playoff spot by scoring their first win in three years over Philadelphia Flyers at the Spectrum.

It was a 4-1 decision and stretched an Atlanta winning run to four games. The Georgia club now has a nine-point lead over New York Rangers in the battle for third place in the Patrick Division and each team has eight games left.

Eric Vail scored what proved to be the winner at 26 seconds of the second period, blasting a 30-foot slapshot behind Wayne Stephenson. It was the 30th goal of the season for he husky leftwinger, Calder Cup winner in 1975.

Ken Houston, Curt Bennett and rookie Dave Shand scored the other Atlanta goals and Harvey Bennett was the only marksman for the lacklustre Flyers, who lead the New York Islanders by three points in the fight for Patrick Division honors.

In a late game, Los Angeles Kings evened their record at 29-29-14 by scoring a 3-2 win over the visiting Detroit Red Kings.

University of Victoria Vikings virtually clinched the final playoff spot in the first division of the Vancouver Island Rugby Union Thursday by scoring a 25-6 win over Castaways at UVic.

Vikings, who play their last schedule game against winless Velox, lead Castaways by two points and Castaways must face second-place Cowichan.

Ian Reston, Alistair Palmer, Reg Moore, Tom Gordon and Ian Benson scored tries for the Vikings, who held an 8-6 lead at the half and Brent Johnston kicked a penalty goal and conversion.

Barbara Ann 'home'

Barbara Ann was world champion in 1947 and won the Olympics title in 1948, aged 19 in a Switzerland snowfall.

Thursday, she attended a preview of the first of three films resurrecting great moments in Canadian sport including her own career.

Barbara Ann, married to a Chicago resident, has lived in the United States for the last 20 years, trains riding horses and has retained her Canadian citizenship.

Ottawa gave her a yellow convertible with licence 47U1 after she won the world championship in 1947, but she declined it to hold her amateur status for the 1948 world championships and Olympic Games.

When she returned from the 1948 competitions a double winner, she accepted the automobile, which had a new license number—48U12.

Fans won't let Ilie change

LAKEWAY, Tex. (SP) — Romanian tennis star Ilie Nastase says he wants to change his "Nasty" image but fans and reporters won't let him.

"Everywhere I go, almost always the crowd is against me because of my reputation," says the world's No. 3-ranked palyer.

"They expect from me swear words and gestures. Everybody else swears, but I always get caught. I always pay the fines.

"Jimmy Connors is no angel. But he is an American. I am Romanian, so people are always out to get me. It is written badly in the papers whether I behave or I don't."

Baseball reserves belt big homers

Dave Revering and Dane Iorg, pair of little-known reserve infielders, belted grand-slam home runs Thursday to help Cincinnati and Philadelphia to exhibition baseball victories.

Revering unloaded his homer in the fifth inning as the Reds rocked Houston Astros 10-1. Steve Henderson hit a pair of solo homers and Joe Morgan had one for Cincinnati.

Iorg, pinch hitting for slugger Greg Luzinski, capped a five-run seventh inning with his homer as the Phillies whipped Toronto Blue Jays 12-6. Garry Maddox contributed two doubles to the Phils' attack.

Elsewhere, Tommy Smith had four hits and drove in four runs as Seattle Mariners outlasted San Francisco Giants, 13-11, in 10 innings.

Tiant rejoins Red Sox today

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Luis Tiant, the Boston Red Sox right-handed pitching ace, is ending a three-week boycott of spring training with the American League baseball team.

An apparent compromise was reached Thursday in Tiant's demands for an extension of his current contract, which calls for $180,000 a year through the 1977 season.

After months of negotiations, Red Sox general manager Dick O'Connell and Tiant's lawyer, Bob Woolf of Boston, got together during an exhibition game with the New York Yankees in Ft. Lauderdale.

"I was with Dick O'Connell until early this morning and we came close to reaching an agreement — close enough to have Luis go to camp tomorrow," Woolf said by telephone from New York during a stopover on a flight north from Florida.

Tiant is reported to have been demanding a two-year contract extension through 1979 but the Red Sox balked mainly because of his age — 37 in November. Best guesses are that Luis settled for one extra year, through 1978.

Alberta girls capture title

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Cathy King's foursome from Edmonton won the Canadian girls curling championship title Thursday even though they lost their final game. They had a 9-1 win-loss record. Alberta clinched the title in the 10th-round morning draw with a 12-1 win over Prince Edward Island in a game which was conceded after six ends.

Ontario, the last team to play Alberta and until the 10th round the only team with a shot at upsetting the leaders, won the final game 6-4 earning a tie with Saskatchewan for second place. Both teams finished with 7-3 records.

Manitoba, at one point in the lead with a 4-0 record, finished with a 5-5 performance, tied with Quebec after fourth-place Nova Scotia which rallied from a shakey start and finished 6-4.

British Columbia and Newfoundland finished with 4-6 records, New Brunswick was 3-7 and the Yukon-Northwest Territories team won two of 10 games. This was the first year of competition for Yukon-Northwest Territories.

Australia wins test match

MELBOURNE (Reuter) — Australia won the centenary cricket test against England Thursday by 45 runs after the game swung back and forth on a gripping last day.

The winning margin was exactly the same as when Australia won the first test between the two countries in 1877.

England's bid to win the match faltered after tea when they lost five wickets for 41 runs to be all out for 417.

The match ended when England wicketkeeper Alan Knott was trapped leg before wicket by fast bowler Dennis Lillee in the second of the last 15 overs of the match.

The Australians rushed up and carried Lillee from the field after his magnificent bowling display. He took six for 26 in the first innings and followed up with five for 139 in the second.

The special test was the only match against Australia on a brief visit by England following a victorious tour of India. Australia visits England on a full tour later this year.

Scores: Australia 138 and 419 for nine declared; England 95 and 417.

Hanratty quits football

'Ban New Zealand'—Kenya

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuter) — The Kenya Amateur Athletics Association has called on the International Amateur Athletics Federation to keep New Zealand out of its competitions until that country severs sports links with South Africa.

Sam Ongeri, KAAA president, made the appeal Thursday in commenting on a statement by Adrian Paule, IAAF president, that if eight African countries entered in the international cross-country championships at Duesseldorf, West Germany, Sunday withdrew because of New Zealand's presence, he would propose that the African continental team be banned from the World Cup track-and-field meet in September.

Ongeri described Paulen's statement as "a biased prejudgment of our case . . . a threat we can't stomach . . . a serious disregard against apartheid (racial segregation) in sport."

"I hope that the IAAF at its council meeting this weekend in Duesseldorf will consider the demerits and merits of our stand against New Zealand, and in the interest of preservation of human dignity in athletics, it should lock New Zealand out of its competitions," Ongeri said.

Teams from eight African countries — Uganda, Ethiopia, Sudan, Zambia, Tunisia, Algeria, Morocco and Nigeria — are entered in the cross-country championships.

Pierre Cardin (centre) in Toronto with models in his fashions

I'm for the world—Cardin

By JUDY CREIGHTON
CP Family Editor

TORONTO (CP) — Pierre Cardin, the French designer who brought high fashion into ready-to-wear 17 years ago, says that the popularity of blue jeans has been dangerous to the fashion industry.

"And jeans aren't fashion," he said in an interview. "Designers can do nothing about this revolution. I can do nothing about jeans."

The 55-year-old Cardin, whose signature now appears on a range of products from facial tissue and chocolates to furniture, jewelry and automobile interiors, said he does not consider it crass or over-commercial to lend his name because "it makes good business sense."

"I am one of the fashion leaders in the world and when people buy Cardin they know tye are buying quality."

Although he continues to dress many of the richest men and women in the world, Cardin said his main business interests are in the ready-to-wear field.

He said that most ot the top Paris fashion designers who have entered the ready-to-wear business are copying him and placing their signatures on everything from swimwear to T-shirts and scarves.

"But a lot of my clothes don't bear my signature on the outside, but Pierre Cardin's label is on the inside," he said.

Cardin has 346 factories in 46 countries producing his clothing and accessories. He employs 70,000 people.

"People were shocked when I went into ready-to-wear," he said.

"But I could see the writing on the wall, that haute couture — high fashion — would eventually die. Yet, people, many people, want quality and I could see the need."

He said that he has designed versions of the miniskirt for summer but "I only see that length on 16-year-old girls."

Some bargains in nutrition

MONTREAL (CP) — Consumers who cut purchases of expensive items need not worry about getting the required nutrients in their diet, says dietitian Helene Tremblay, if they substitute processed fruit and vegetables and if the rest of their diet contains a variety of foods.

Vitamins B and C are more sensitive to air and light than other vitamins, she said.

In winter consumers are never sure of the nutrients present as they're influenced by transportation time and the way produce is stored.

She said vitamin C content of oranges increases also at the fruit matures o n the tree. picked for shipment, the vitamin C content is not that high.

Ms. Tremblay is president of the recently formed L'Association des Dietetists Autonomes du Quebec, which numbers about 70 private practising dietitians around the province.

To be sure you're getting enough vitamin C, she tells her patients, use frozen and canned orange juice in the winter. High quality, mature fruit is used for processing.

Four ounces of orange juice provides all the vitamin C an adult requires for the day.

Potatoes, are also a good source. One medium potato, peeled after baking because the vitamin C is right under the skin, will provide two thirds of the required amount as will one cup of mashed potato.

A medium banana supplies about a third of the day's requirement.

The B complex vitamins provided by vegetables are also present in whole grain breads and cereals and meat.

ann landers

Dear Ann Landers: There has been a great deal of palaver lately about the "rat" who takes advantage of an innocent young girl. I cringe at your sanctimonious (but tardy) counsel — "she should have given him the bum's rush before she got pregnant." You have also been a strong proponent of birth-control information for girls who are sexually active.

Now will you please advise a young boy on how to avoid becoming trapped by an overly aggresive girl? Stress the signals for him to heed so he can "buzz off." And will you also remind him of his responsibility to use contraceptives no matter what the girl says?

Too often the boy is the object of "long-range planning" by a girl and her mother — and he is devastated when faced with an unwanted marriage or 21 years of child-support. Just ask me. I know all about it because I'm — The Boy's Mother.

Dear Mother: I have repeatedly emphasized the wisdom of both partners taking precautions against not only pregnancy but VD. I welcome the opportunity to do so again.

As for the signals to "buzz off" — sorry, dear, each individual knows his threshold of tolerance. The problem isn't in recognizing the signals but in mustering the self-discipline to stop short of the goal line.

Dear Ann Landers: A woman who started to work here last month has a southern accent so thick you could cut it with a knife. The men hang around her desk by the droves because she talks "so darlin'." Please tell the Southerners who come up north to learn to speak English. — Red, White and Blue.

Red, White and Blue? You sound green — with envy. The southern accent is very much "in" these days — and I love it.

By JIM HUME
Colonist Reporter

Attorney-General Garde Gardom denied Thursday that witnesses in key trials in B.C. are offered payment to testify for the crown.

He made the statement in answer to a two-week-old question asked by Conservative leader Scott Wallace regarding the Ross murder trial recently concluded in Nanaimo. During the trial an RCMP officer admitted under oath that a key witness, Gordon Caldwell, had been offered varying sums up to $30,000 to testify.

Gardom said that while witnesses were not paid for their evidence, there were instances where the police offered "protection, relocation and a change of identity" to witnesses who could be in danger from other criminal elements.

"That is sometimes done to simply keep the witness alive," Gardom said.

Wallace said he was far from satisfied with the attorney-general's answer. He said that while it was true that Caldwell had not received the $30,000 promised or any cash at all "I'm gathering information on other cases which I shall be bringing up later."

He said he had a copy of a $25,000 cheque made out to a witness in another trial but said he wasn't prepared to release the background until he had checked further. "But

'Deathbed confession' may re-open Quilt case

VANCOUVER (CP) — The widow of Chilcotin Indian Fred Quilt made a deathbed confession that she accidentally backed their pickup truck into him two days before he died, an RCMP official said Thursday.

Chief Superintendent Gordon Dalton also said the evidence may result in a new inquest.

Quilt, 55, of Alexis Creek, died Nov. 30, 1971, of peritonitis in Williams Lake Hospital. Indian leaders maintained he had been injured by being struck and jumped on by RCMP officers, who took him from his truck and drove him to a nearby Indian reserve.

Dalton said that police have learned that on Sept. 15, 1976, the day she died, Mrs. Quilt confessed that she accidentally backed their pickup truck into her husband, knocking him down, the night of Nov. 28, 1971.

Attorney-General Garde Gardom said in Victoria he has asked for more information from the RCMP before making any decision on a new inquest.

Dalton said that a witness to Mrs. Quilt's death also said the woman confessed to the 1968 killing of Rose Satah. Stephen Hink of Williams Lake was convicted of killing Rose Satah and spent three years in prison.

Hink was charged with non-capital murder after Satah, 22, was shot to death with a .22-calibre rifle early in the morning of Dec. 20, 1968.

Dalton said police learned of the confession only recently, and now were preparing reports for Gardom and the National Parole Service. The parole service could consider ordering a pardon for Hinks, who now is free, Dalton added.

"It's just a recent development," Dalton said, when asked why the deathbed confessions had suddenly surfaced six months after Mrs. Quilt died.

"We found out only recently, but we've since found out that it (the confession) had been rumored in the area (of Williams Lake) for some time," Dalton said.

He said Mrs. Quilt told the witness, who has not been identified, that she accidentally backed the truck while Quilt was standing behind it urinating. The truck struck Quilt, but did not pass over him. He then climbed into the back of the truck.

"That was before RCMP arrived on the scene," Dalton said.

"We have interviewed the witness and are now in the process of providing the information to the attorney-general."

Dr. John Sturdy, consulting pathologist to the inquest into Quilt's death, held in Kamloops, said in a telephone interview from California, where he is vacationing, that "off the top of my head, I would say that Quilt's injuries would be consistent with that kind of an accident."

"I've always known there was something about that injury that didn't fit the autopsy," he said. "I testified at the time that Quilt's injuries were not consistent with a kick or a series of kicks.

"If he (Quilt) were run over by a vehicle, it could compress the small bowel against the spinal cord and sever it," he added.

Lawyer Harry Rankin, a Vancouver alderman who acted for the Quilt family at the inquest, asked, "How does a deathbed confession suddenly appear in someone's files

Jumblatt revenge: 68 slain

MUKHTARA, Lebanon (Reuter) — At least 68 people have been reported killed in revenge murders following Wednesday's assassination of leftist leader Kamal Jumblatt.

Tens of thousands of people flocked to this mountain village for the funeral of Jumblatt, who was shot in his car by unknown attackers.

Sectarian killers seeking revenge struck quickly in the wake of his death, murdering people in the mountains and in Beirut before the Syrian troops of the Arab League peace force could intervene.

Christian villagers said they knew of at least 58 Christians killed in the villages around Mukhtara, ancestral domain of the Jumblatt family.

Ten more people were killed in Beirut, informed sources said.

There's fuel aplenty but costs gushing up

OTTAWA (CP) — The country has the potential oil and natural gas resources it needs to make itself self-reliant in energy but the costs of developing the supplies will be high, federal Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie said Thursday.

Gillespie said it still was not clear what price would be necessary, but added that it would be significantly higher.

He made the comments after tabling in the Commons energy department papers saying there is a 90-per-cent chance that up to 229 trillion cubic feet of natural gas and 25 billion barrels of oil would be discovered.

The country now uses about 1.4 trillion cubic feet of gas and about 730 million barrels of oil annually.

But Gillespie says "there is a heck of a big difference between proven reserves and potential."

The figures in the report reflect only an estimate of how much oil might be removed from the ground, with no consideration of the cost.

An additional report, making an economic assessment, is expected by about mid-year, energy department officials say. It will likely reduce the estimates of potential reserves.

The new figures significantly reduce the estimates from those given in 1973 when the department put the potential at 99.2 billion barrels of oil and 782.9 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

The cuts result from exclusion of inaccessible areas and new information provided from exploration programs in the North.

A separate study on the oil sands and heavy oil deposits in Alberta and Saskatchewan says they might yield between 80 billion and 200 billion barrels of oil. But economic and technical problems remain to be solved before the area reaches its potential.

The report says there is a 50-per-cent chance that up to 277 trillion cubic feet of gas will be found and a 10-per-cent chance of 378 trillion.

There is a 50-per-cent chance 30 billion barrels of oil will be found and a 10-per-cent chance of 43 billion.

It says 85 trillion cubic feet of natural gas has been discovered in Canada, including 25 trillion in the frontier

Zaire's crisis worsens

KINSHASA, Zaire (UPI) — A U.S. Embassy official said Thursday the situation in the former province of Katanga was "deteriorating" and ordered the evacuation of more Americans.

Zairean forces, bolstered by emergency U.S. and Belgian military aid, said thousands of invaders which it hinted were Soviet-backed Cuban troops were advancing through the copper-rich region but avoiding any engagement with government units.

Government sources said the invaders were "welcomed as liberators" by some Zaireans in towns they captured.

The government confirmed Thursday a small town — Sandoa, 55 miles from the Angolan border — has fallen to the rebels, who overran Dilolo, Kapanga, and Kisenge shortly after they invaded Zaire last week.

But the Zairean news agency AZAP early today denied reports by a foreign news agency that the invaders had overrun Kolwezi, a city of 200,000 persons.

Belted Ontario records 12-year low in road toll

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's traffic death toll dropped in 1976 to the lowest level recorded since 1964, James Snow, minister of transport and communications, said Thursday.

"The only reading I can get from such statistics is that the seatbelt legislation enacted on Jan. 1, 1976, coupled with lower speed limits, is working," Snow said.

CALL TO UN

Expand rights, Carter pleads

Colonist Wire Services

UNITED NATIONS — U.S. President Carter made a strong plea Thursday night for the world expansion of human rights, saying no country can claim that mistreatment of its citizens is solely its own business.

Carter, who has previously criticized the treatment of dissidents in the Soviet Union, South Korea and South America, said U.S. responsibility and support for human rights is a commitment and not just a political posture.

In remarks prepared for delivery to United Nations permanent representatives here, he also called again for a comprehensive Soviet-U.S. Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty.

"While the SALT negotiations remain deadlocked, the arms race goes on and the security of both countries and the entire world is threatened."

He preferred strict controls or even a freeze on new types of weapons, and a sharp reduction in strategic arms held by the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

But he said the two countries could perhaps more easily conclude a more limited agreement and hold further negotiations for fuller arms limitation.

Discussing the world economic situation, Carter pledged the U.S. would support an open international trading system, a concern primarily of Japan. But, he added, business concerns in the U.S. must not be ignored.

The president did not name any country in discussing human rights but said the search for peace and justice also means respect for human dignity.

"All of the signatories of the UN Charter have pledged themselves to observe and respect basic human rights," he declared.

"Thus, no member of the United Nations can claim that mistreatment of its citizens is solely its own business."

He said human rights ideals had not always been attained in the U.S., but the American people had an abiding commitment to them and were determined to deal with their deficiencies quickly and openly.

"The solemn commitments of the UN Charter, the UN's universal declaration of human rights, of the Helsinki Accord . . . must be taken just as seriously as commercial or security agreements."

Quebec soloists face federal delegation bar

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau says he will bar Quebec from attending international conferences if provincial officials continue to renounce their ties with the rest of Canada.

Trudeau said at his weekly news conference Thursday that Quebec government officials cannot go to international meetings and "behave as though the province has an international personality."

"If they do that, they won't be invited to come along on future international delegations," Trudeau said. He said international organizations will be warned by Ottawa not to invite Quebec to conferences because the province does not represent all of Canada.

Trudeau was responding to the actions of two Quebec cabinet ministers at international conferences on pollution and education in Argentina and Belgium respectively.

Quebec Environment Minister Marcel Leger startled a world water conference in Mar Del Plata, Argentina, Wednesday by announcing that he would speak for Quebec and not for Canda.

In Brussels, Quebec Education Minister Jacques Yvan Morin refused to preside over the entire Canadian delegation at an international conference of French-speaking education ministers. The Canadian and Quebec groups sat at separate tables bearing separate flags.

Trudeau said no province has the power to speak for Canada outside the country, but provincial officials often are asked to lead delegations to international meetings on education and other subjects under provincial jurisdiction within Canda.

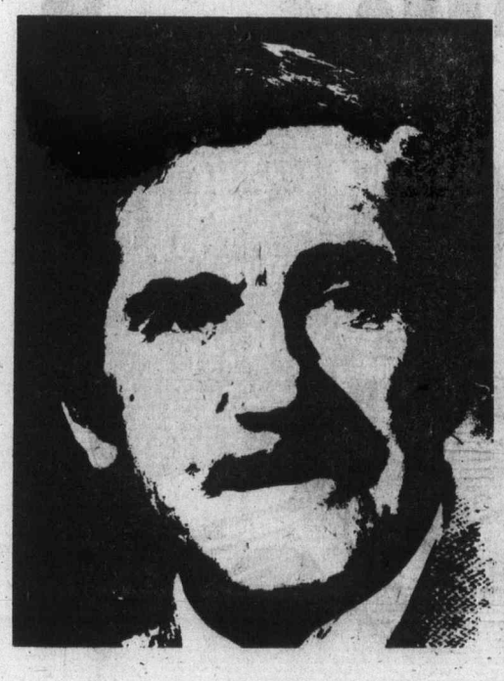

Trudeau said provincial officials can talk about activities in their provinces at international meetings but they cannot formally represent Canada or bypass federal authorities in dealing with other countries.

Saying nay to Ney

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Reporter

NANAIMO—The coat and Sherlock Holmes hat hit the chair on the fly and managed somehow to cling to the edges. The scarf loses the battle to gravity and is left on the broadloomed floor by a man too busy to worry about its fate.

Frank Ney is on the phone giving information on tourism to someone from B.C. Ferries, at the same time pointing to a picture of himself fishing with former baseball great Mickey Mantle.

Behind him is a carton full of miniature bathtubs to be handed to visitors as a plug for the city's big annual attraction—the Nanaimo-to-Vancouver bathtub race.

"Funny thing," he says, hanging up the phone and toying with a cigar, "but here I am giving facts on tourism from one government department to somebody from another."

THIS IS NEY talking as mayor and tourism booster—not at city hall—but in the fourth floor office he occupies in the building that serves as the hub of the local real estate empire.

Life has been good to Frank Ney. Business and political success. Respect. Popularity. Widespread recognition. But now the two worlds he occupies—civic administration and real estate — are being questioned and controversy is coming into his life.

Until now the newspaper files bearing his name have been crammed with stories ranging from flattering to colorful—stories picturing Ney as both a tireless civic leader devoted to the betterment of his city, and a clown prince who doesn't mind playing the role of the buffoon to attract tourists.

But now, controversy is entering the bulging files.

A concerted effort is being made to picture the 56-year-old Ney as a big-time realtor with an obvious conflict of interest, a man who stands to gain with others as expansion takes place.

A BATTLE that concerns the man's reputation and possibly even the future direction of the enlarged city of Nanaimo is being fought over such basic subjects as sewers and water.

The questions that have been posed are these:

- Has Nanaimo become, or is it becoming a developers' paradise?
- Should a man with a deep interest in real estate and land development serve as an elected official in the area concerned?
- Or, are the intentions of Ney and his council being misunderstood, or perhaps misrepresented?
- Are those opposing the council simply a "no growth" group intent upon halting the march of Nanaimo into a bustling future?

The citizens—or at least the portion of them who actually care—have been split into two camps, one fighting against a $15.5 million sewers and water program, and the other spending considerable time and money to ensure that it goes through.

PAT BARRON and his Concerned Citizens claim that under the current scheme the taxpayers would be subsidizing developers who stand to make a considerable profit once the sewers and water system reaches outlying areas. The proposed expansion is for the servicing of suburban areas that became part of the city through amalgamation in 1974.

The 60-year-old Barron, a gadfly and obstructionist to those who don't like him, also makes these charges:

- That property tax inequities are so severe that people in plush "new" area homes are paying considerably less than those in much less expensive homes in "old" Nanaimo;
- That planned long-term financing would actually more than double the $15.5 million cost of the program;
- That because he stands to benefit through his real estate connections, Ney was in conflict of interest in voting with council for the sewers bylaw.

So far the "gadfly" Barron, has won one and lost one on the current issue. The sewers and water bylaws were to go through on council's vote alone, but the Concerned Citizens came up with enough signatures on a petition to force a referendum, scheduled for April 2.

THE LOSS has been the failure of the committee to convince Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis to call a public inquiry into the affair.

Curtis, who doesn't hestitate to defend Ney's reputation, has nevertheless put the matter before Deputy Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Long "for review." Long is tackling the job in his other role as inspector of municipalities.

Ney doesn't argue with Bar-

Enterprise engineer James Doohan

Beaming down with Scotty

By PAUL DE GROOT
Colonist Reporter

Now we know why they gave James Doohan lines like "The engine is going to blow, Skipper-r."

He came across as a wooden figure, uncomfortable and corny without cue cards Thursday night when he beamed into the Old Gym at UVic to capitalize on his portrayal as Scotty in Star Trek, television's all-time great sci-fi series.

But then, there is something logic-defying about Star Trek's incredible appeal today, and the 2,000 Trekkies who jammed the gym to talk Star Trek trivia and see a number of the old team went away happy.

They heard about the movie. No contracts yet, said Scotty, so don't ask about the film. But it will be good — the writers are laboring with love over the script.

Will there be another series? "No, I don't see another TV series. But there might be a series of films . . ."

Scotty talked family as well. His boyhood turned out to be of more than passing interest in a university crowd: his father had degrees in dentistry, veterinary science, and pharmacy, and ended up in Vancouver driving a horse team, with a PhD as his stable boy.

It was a bit incongruous to hear the man who beamed Enterprise personnel up and down complaining about the unreliability of the ferries, and how he had to leave his family in Tacoma with the motorhome.

Or how the engineer for light-years of space travel was thrilled by a ride on the latest model battery-powered cart developed by NASA.

He may have come even closer to pricking the Star Trek bubble with a showing of "bloopers," takes that didn't make it to the screen because of horseplay or mistakes in the shooting.

In the bloopers, icy heroines from futuristic planets become Hollywood starlets in weird get-ups who have (figuratively, this time) two left feet; the doors that always opened automatically fail to function, flattening a few noses; an engineer stokes the boilers of the Enterprise with a coal shovel; and unkindest cut of all, Spock smiles, a big silly grin worthy of Jimmy C.

The Trekkies got their fix as well — a commercial-less showing of "Assignment: Earth," a show nice and heavy on Scotty, with a taut ending, featuring a mystery man, Kirk, Spock, and a girl for everyone but Spock.

Now he must have some stories to tell . . .

Business tax cutback urged

By JIM GIBSON
Colonist Reporter

Victoria businessmen, students and theatre-goers all stand to gain if separate committee recommendations made Thursday are adopted by council.

- City businessmen could see a one per cent drop in their tax levy.
- The provincial labor department has $65,380 for summer student employment in Victoria if the city can come up with suitable programs and the support of its two CUPE unions.
- Theatre-goers can likely expect a refurbished Royal Theatre after a committee recommended the city pay its share of the $400,000 cost.

One committee recommended that the business tax levy be reduced from five to four per cent of the gross annual rental of the premises occupied or used for the purpose of a business.

The reduction was recommended in a brief from city manager James Bramley.

Bramley told the committee that many city businessmen were concerned that they would have to pay a substantially higher levy this year with a five per cent assessment on the new higher property assessments.

Under the five per cent the city would have collected $1,446,738 but at four per cent the total would be $1,157,390.

Ald. Ron McKenzie tried to have the business levy removed because of the existence of a $1 million surplus from the city's 1976 budget. But he could get no support for his motion.

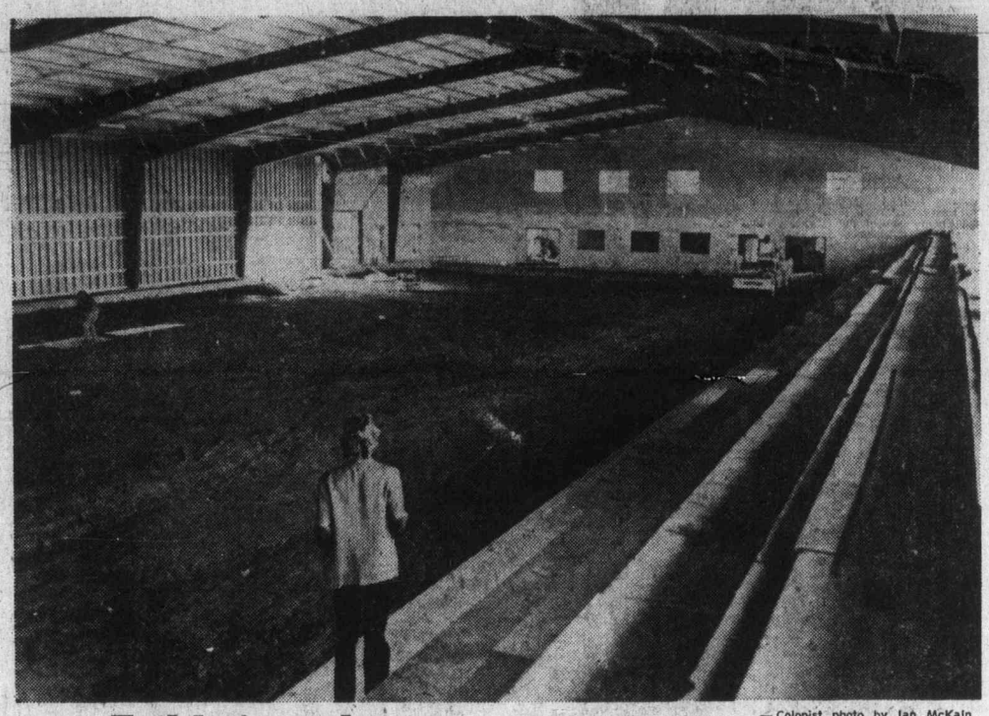

The committee also instructed Bramley to meet both city hall CUPE unions to see whether they would support the provincial youth employment program.

Bramley will also prepare a list of job proposals for the students. Two suggestions were city walking tours and an improved street-cleaning program.

The committee also recommended that the city pay its share, along with Saanich and Oak Bay, for the upgrading of The Royal Theatre, on the urging of Mayor Michael Young.

"If we're not going to tear it down, then we should fix it up," Young said.

Victoria's contribution to the $400,000 cost would be $158,702, but only $100,008 if a $133,333 grant from the community recreational facilities fund becomes available.

Labor divided on industrial democracy

Local labor is taking a cautious approach to the concept of industrial democracy.

There is such a mixture of opinion on the question of whether labor should involve itself, that the subject sparked a half-hour debate at Wednesday night's Victoria Labor Council meeting.

At issue was the executive's recommendation against accepting an invitation for council representation on a community committee that is looking into the subject.

The question split the delegates with the executive winning support by a 23-18 vote and taking its lumps along the way from objectors, one of whom accused it of taking a "mealy-moth" approach to the matter.

Some of those backing the executive recommendation said industrial democracy as it exists in western Europe is weak and company-oriented.

Two members of the executive, first vice-president Linda Baker of the B.C. Government Employees' Union and Jim Walker of The Canadian Union of Public Employees are already on the community committee on an individual basis. As a result they registered oppositon to the stand-off approach of fellow executive council members.

Council secretary Larry Ryan said it was not within the labor council's jurisdiction to become involved in activities that should properly be left to individual unions. Because the concept of industrial democracy could become a matter of negotiations, Ryan said: "We (council) don't tell them what they should negotiate in their agreements."

The committee is the brainchild of Charles Barber (NDP-Victoria), and is made up of Barber, the two labor people, two management representatives and three university professors.

In defending her presence on the committee and pushing for labor council involvement, Baker said there was no commitment to any hard-fast program. She said she was on the committee simply as an interested person, and that the objective of the committee was to promote education on the subject.

"None of us should ever profess to know everything about anything," she said.

Daryl Anderson of CUPE said he thought it was taking a "dangerous position" to agree "to get into bed with management at that level."

Walker reflected the feelings of Baker and some of the others when he said he could see nothing wrong with sitting on the committee as an observer and reporting later to labor.

Baker was still thinking of Anderson's comment.

"I take exception to the remarks that I am in bed with management," she said.

When the laughter had died away, Anderson said he hadn't been aiming his comments at her.

FACULTY'S QUEST

UVic studies 8% pay hike

An eight-per-cent salary increase, with an additional 4.3 per cent merit increase for faculty members who qualify, has been proposed by the University of Victoria Faculty Association.

The association prepares a report for the university administration each year in which it suggests changes in the salary structure, but the university administration ultimately makes the decision on its own, Dr. Rod Symington, president of the faculty association said Thursday.

The report this year also suggests an annual cost-of-living adjustment in summer session stipends, a change in the method by which "career progress increments" are awarded, and higher pay for faculty members on academic leave.

At present, faculty members receive a flat two-thirds of their regular salary while on leave. Under the proposed change, professors on leave would get the basic pay for an assistant professor ($15,500 at present), plus 60 per cent or the remaining portion of their salary. A professor making $21,000 a year, for instance, now gets $14,000 while on study leave. Under the new system the pay would be $18,800.

On another front, progress is continuing in the faculty association's quest for certification as a union.

More than 80 per cent of the responses to a mail ballot were in favor of a resolution calling for freezing of existing salary and tenure agreements, and a no-strike, no-lockout contract with compulsory binding arbitration if the association forms a union.

Next week the association plans to conduct a straw vote among its membership on the union issue itself, Symington said. The idea is strongly opposed by some faculty members, and the ballot should give some guidance to the new executive of the association which will be elected in March, he stated.

Railwest 'probe ordered'

Canadian Press

Charles Barber (NDP — Victoria) said Thursday that directors of B.C. Rail have ordered an inquiry into the operations of Railwest, the company's wholly-owned subsidiary which operates a rail-car plant in Squamish.

Barber said the inquiry is being conducted without reference to the current royal commission into the railway.

He also said that Jack Fraine, chairman of the B.C. Rail board, had told him the board alone would determine whether any or all of the Railwest inquiry report would be made public. Attorney-General Garde Gardom said he has not heard anything about an inquiry into Railwest which is in poor financial shape because of a lack of contracts.

Governments 'stirring Indian storm rumors'

By STEPHEN HUME
Colonist Reporter

Rumors of political turmoil within the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs are encouraged by the provincial and federal governments, and should not obscure the common goal of all 193 B.C. Indian bands — the resolution of land claims.

Tsawout manager Gus Underwood said Thursday in an interview from Central Saanich that reports of the Nanaimo Indian Band Council formally breaking with the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs should not obscure the issue of land claims.

It was reported this week that six native bands — Kamloops, Musqueam, Sechelt, Squamish, Sliammon and Nanaimo — were seeking to withdraw from the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs.

Underwood said it is the prerogative of bands to pursue land claims in the manner they wish.

"The Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs is no different from the NDP or the Social Credit party in this respect — we disagree sometimes among ourselves. In this way we are no different from any other governmental institution."

The B.C. Union of Indian Chiefs has had difficulty unifying the 193-band organization since the spring of 1975 when it rejected federal government funds, executive council chairman Bob Manuel said in a news release Thursday.

Manuel said it was a "serious error" to reject the federal funds, even if it was done as an approach to achieve Indian independence "or as a means of bringing the land claims issue to the forefront."

In a letter released Sunday, the six withdrawing bands made a "formal request" to the union for a proportionate share of government financing to pursue their individual plans for economic development. The six bands represent about 4,000 people.

But Underwood said that as far as he knows Indian bands in Greater Victoria are not actively seeking to withdraw from the union.

"There is still a union of B.C. chiefs and we (Tsawout band) are still in it," he said.

"All B.C. is together on land claims. How we achieve it is another thing," he said.

Underwood charged that the department of indian and northern affairs and the provincial government were "great for putting band against band" by offering money to one band without offering it to another.

Meanwhile, the conference of B.C. Indian Chiefs, originally scheduled to be held April 26-28 in Prince George will not be held there after all. The Colonist learned Thursday night from union spokesman Theresa Nahanee that the union was informed there was not enough hotel space in Prince George. She said the conference was still scheduled for the same time, but where she did not know.

City firm to design TV station

A Victoria firm of architects has been named to design the proposed Canadian Broadcasting Corp. television station for a 1.6 acre site between Douglas and Blanshard at Kings Road.

The Bastion Group (Donovan Marshall, Gerald Sager and Raymond Goldsworthy) will work in association with CBC architects and engineers to develop a design most suitable for the region and the property, bought last year from the city for $550,000.

Capital costs of the building and equipment are estimated at $6.7 million. A transmitter broadcasting on Channel 10 is to be erected on Saturna Island at an estimated cost of $2 million.

More social aid 'in 60 days'

There was a promise of a further boost within 60 days in social assistance allowances for British Columbians who are unable to provide for themselves, by Human Resources Minister William Vander Zalm Thursday night. (See also Page 15.)

The minister wouldn't say what the increase would involve or exactly when it would be paid "but it will be announced within 60 days," he said.

Under debate at the time was Vote 190, the welfare vote, totalling $193,920,046 for the next fiscal year. Rosemary Brown (NDP — Vancouver-Burrard) had asked when extra assistance might be forthcoming.

The income assistance program provides social allowances and special allowances to British Columbians who are unable to provide for themselves. Special allowances include grants for work incentives, special needs, educational upgrading, vocational training, dietary and pre-natal care, transportation and other costs.

The flurry of questions and answers on income assistance was the last before the house approved all human resources expenditures for the coming year, which total $569,826,615, shortly before 10:30 p.m.

The Legislature now moves to debate on the estimates of Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy.

Sewage bad spots: Priority list asked

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist Reporter

Sewage flows across the roads in the Ten Mile Point area, and it is discharged across Lochside Drive into Cordova Bay from a high school, but Saanich council has no early intention of cleaning up the problems, a community health committee of the Capital Region Board has been told.

In all, eight problem areas were pinpointed by public health inspection director I. E. Benham in a report which had been requested by the committee.

Only two of the eight were dealt with by the committee — View Royal and Ganges.

"We have a list of eight areas which are polluted," View Royal director Pat Massy noted.

"Ten Mile Point, where effluent is flowing over the road, is passed over" by the committee.

The View Royal director agreed there was a serious sewage problem in her area, but said she objected to that district, which is unorganized, being singled out.

Over the years several approaches had been made to the public health board to have faulty systems corrected in View Royal, and to have building permits refused that would add to pollution.

Massy
. . . eight areas polluted

The health board had never given any aid.

According to the report, faulty sewage disposal systems existed on most roads.

"Many of the systems are on rocky lots and cannot be corrected except for hauling away,' the report said.

"Sewering would be very costly.

"Saanich has no current intention to undertake sewering."

Saanich is sewering two areas included in Benham's list — Beckwith Road-Panorama Drive, and Knibbs Place.

Drafting of plans for the Dunsterville, Hastings, Santa Rosa area, where there were a large number of faults, was also under way.

But there are no plans to extend a sewer trunk into the hillside slopes above Cordova Bay.

In this area "in addition to known housing malfunctions, the high school discharges many thousands of gallons each day into an open ravine which flows down and across Lochside Drive and then over the beach into Cordova Bay waters."

And there was no intention on the part of North Saanich council to clean up a problem on the west shore of the municipality.

There were a number of roads in the area, the major one being Madrona Drive, where there were a large number of faulty systems.
